20 I. C. Freight Cars Derailed Near Sibley

Salvage Crewmen Clearing Wreckage; Trains From Monroe To Shreveport Rerouted; No One Hurt

Gibsland, La., Nov. 25—Twenty cars of an east-bound Illinois Central freight train were derailed today two miles west of Sibley, spilling a cargo of lemons, tuna fish and pipeline tubing.

A report from the scene of the derailment said the cars left the railing and tumbled down a steep embankment and demolished a trestle. Debris was strewn for several hundred yards down the track, the report said.

No one was injured. Most of the overturned cars were reported to have been demolished.

Cause of the derailment had not been determined late tonight. The 20 cars which left the rails were in the middle section of the train. A faulty car could have caused the mishap.

Telephone lines between Meridian, Miss. and Shreveport were knocked out. The town of Doyline was reported completely cut off from telephone communication due to the wreck.

Telephone crewmen were busy restoring the lines. They expected to have the lines back in operation tomorrow.

A temporary re-routement of Monroe-Shreveport trains was put into effect by the railroad company. The stretch of road at the scene of the wreck will be impassable for a few days, a railroad spokesman said tonight.

J. L. Seidenspinner, ticket agent at the Monroe office, said trains from Monroe will switch to the Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad tracks at Sibley and continue to Shreveport. The same track is being used for east-bound trains from Shreveport, Seidenspinner said.

Salvage crews went to work today to clear the wreckage. The track is expected to be restored to service in three or four days.

The engine of another east-bound Illinois Central freight train jumped the track today in downtown Monroe. However, the locomotive was restored to the rails within 45 minutes.

A west-bound passenger train was delayed about 30 minutes due to the Monroe derailment and long lines of automobiles accumulated on streets intersecting the track from the Ouachita river bridge to Five-Points.

COPPER EXPORTS MAY BE TESTED

Prosecutions May Result In Shipments Made To Red China

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Senator O'Conor (D.-Md.) said today "that certain individuals or firms "face" possible prosecution in Japan regarding shipment of more than 4,000,000 pounds of copper to Communist China."

He announced that a senate commerce subcommittee which he heads as acting chairman is taking steps to have General Douglas MacArthur's staff look into the matter with a view to possible action by Japanese authorities."

The committee, investigating exports to Red China, has received testimony that most of the copper was bought in Japan by American importers and reshipped to North China from New York.

"The devious methods used to get this copper from Japan to China by means of around-the-world shipments did not then constitute any apparent violation of our own export control regulations," O'Conor said in a statement.

"However, it is quite apparent that there have been violations, or at least very open evasions, of the Japanese export control laws."

For that reason, O'Conor added, the subcommittee is sending

EX-BUCHENWALD PRISON BULLY TO FACE NEW TRIAL

HER WORD RULED INSIDE NAZI CONCENTRATION CAMP

By Richard K. O'Malley

Augsburg, Germany, Nov. 25—(AP)— Ilse Koch; whose whim was once law at Buchenwald, faces a German court here Monday on charges of egging men on to murder.

This is the second time the portly red-haired widow, now 43, has been called to account legally for her conduct as queen of the dreary and brutal Nazi concentration camp.

Her first trial was for crimes against Allied nations. The German charges concern German and Austrian nationals.

When Mrs. Koch, widow of the former Buchenwald commander, stepped through the gates of the U.S. war crimes prison at Landsberg in October, 1949, German authorities were waiting. They clapped her into the grim Aichach women's prison, not far from Augsburg.

These are the charges the woman with the cat-green eyes will face before three judges and a jury of six:

Instigating the murder of 45 Buchenwald inmates.

Instigating the attempted murder of 135 inmates.

Brutal mistreatment of German and Austrian inmates.

The maximum punishment if she is convicted is life imprisonment. West Germany has abolished the death penalty.

German prosecutors indicate they will attempt what the Americans failed to do: prove that Mrs. Koch did have the skins of tattooed prisoners treated and prepared as lamp shades.

The trial promises to be one of the most costly criminal actions in recent German history. Pre-

SICILY'S VOLCANO ETNA SPITS FLAME

Molten Lava Streaming Down Toward Nearby Lowland Villages

Rome, Nov. 25—(AP)—Mount Etna, Sicily's huge volcano, erupted tonight in flames which lighted up the town of Catania, 20 miles always, and sent streams of molten lava pouring down toward the nearer villages.

The eruption caused widespread alarm. First reports reaching Rome indicated it might be serious.

Etna has been relatively quiet since a four-day eruption last December. Fears have been expressed since then that the quiet was only temporary and that the next eruption might be more severe.

The new outbreak of the 10,741-foot high volcano began shortly before 11 p.m. (5 p.m. EST). It was accompanied by severe earth shocks felt over much of eastern Sicily. Catania, a city of nearly 250,000 inhabitants, was shaken badly, but first reports did not indicate any casualties.

The whole city of Catania was lighted by flame from the crater. Molten lava was reported rooling down the east slope of the mountain.

Serious fears were expressed for

BORDEN ORDERED TO WEST COAST

Close Friend Of Mickey Cohen Given Subpoena By Committee

New Orleans, Nov. 25—(AP)—Eddie Borden, close friend of west coast gambler Mickey Cohen, was ordered today to appear before the federal grand jury in Los Angeles next Wednesday.

Borden was served with a subpoena after he left the New Orleans office of the federal bureau of investigation. He had gone there voluntarily to inquire about reports he was being sought.

The 49-year-old fight manager was not taken into custody. He was given money to buy his railroad ticket to California and pay other expenses of the trip.

"Boy, this is something," the amazed Borden said. "They're giving me money just like that. They're trusting. What would stop a guy from going somewhere else?"

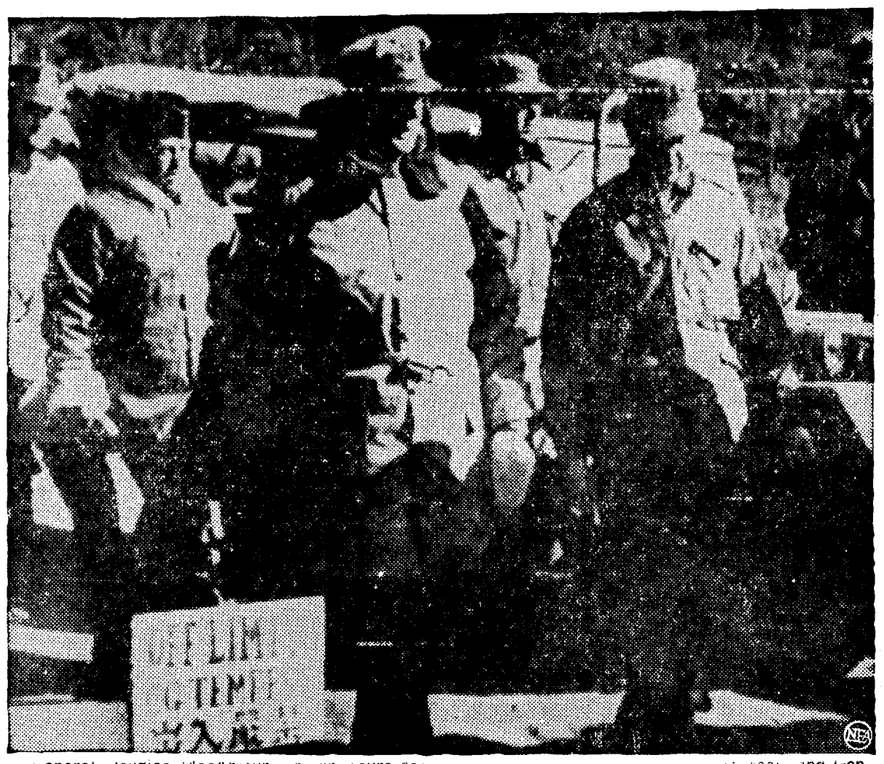

Reminded that it was a federal subpoena, Borden smiled and said, "don't worry, I'll be out there."

Borden went to the local FBI office—one block from the hotel where he has been living under his own name for several days—after learning from newsmen that the FBI in Los Angeles said it was investigating his disappearance.

Borden managed Cohen when the latter was a preliminary fighter. His name entered last week's Cohen session of the Ke-

Communist Counter-Push Met By United Nation Allies

Surging 110,000 U.N. Troops May Be Facing Grim Showdown Battle For Northwest Korea

Tokyo, Sunday, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Rallying Red forces fought back in Northwest Korea today and rushed reinforcements up for what may be the showdown battles with 110,000 surging United Nations Troops.

The Communist counter-attack crimpled a push by the U. S. 25th division on the Unsan sector of the general northwestern allied offensive that jumped off Friday, aiming to end the war quickly.

Enemy resistance stiffened everywhere in the northwest except at the left end of the line where the U. S. 24th division had driven two miles north of Chongju without a fight by Saturday noon.

The crucial northwest front overshadowed the snowy northeast sector where south Koreans rolled unopposed into the big coastal city of Chongjin. It was the last known big barrier between the south Koreans and the Soviet Siberian border, 55 air miles ahead.

Sub-zero temperatures and mountains were proving the biggest obstacles in the northeast where one American unit already has reached the Manchurian frontier.

But the estimated 100,000 Chinese and Korean Reds in the northwest showed fight against a U. N. offensive which General MacArthur himself said was intended to get the Americans home by Christmas.

Large areas reeled under their worst weather-whipping in years.

Smothering snow paralyzed entire industrial centers in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania with a forecast of no early letup. The Eastern Seaboard was pounded for more than 12 hours by hurricane force winds. Damage ran into the millions.

Bitter cold and blustery snow spread deep into the south.

Santa Arrives In Time For Annual Christmas Parade

Colorful High School Outfits Greet Grandest Man Of The Season

Santa Claus came to town to the accompaiment of martial music, high-stepping drum majorettes, flashy floats and well-drilled marching units in the annual Christmas parade Saturday morning.

The parade, sponsored each year by the Retail Merchants Division of the Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, featured the melodies of two bands, the color of three floats and the precision of three snappy marching units. The high point of the entire celebration, though, was the appearance in the Twin Cities of Kris Kringle himself, jovial, colorful and picturesque as ever, even though the press of circumstance demanded he ride in an automobile rather than his sleigh.

The bands from the Ouachita Parish High School and the Monroe Colored High School were on hand for the musical background to the spectacle, with the special

Prominent Bank Cashier Accused

West Point, Miss., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A 43-year-old bank cashier, father of three children and a Sunday school leader, was accused today of the embezzlement of $25,875.

The defendant, Joseph Edward Bryan, cashier of the bank of West Point, Miss., was in custody of the U. S. marshal at Aberdeen, Miss. Miss Ruth West, U. S. commissioner at Aberdeen, fixed bond at $7,500 and set a preliminary hearing for Dec. 1. Bryan waived examination.

Miss West said "He asked for time to consult an attorney."

Don S. Hostetter, agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation at Memphis, said Bryan told FBI agents he had taken the money from the bank over a period of the past 12 or 15 years.

Bryan has been a bank employe for 20 years. He became cashier a little more than a year ago. He is treasurer of his Sunday school class, former treasurer of the Clay county Chamber of Commerce and a member of the West Point school board.

His salary as cashier was $275 a month. He also ran a filling station.

R. L. Ballard, bank president, said the "unfortunate incident" would not affect the bank's standing since the loss is fully covered.

Zero hour in the $63,000 Red Feather Drive will fall this coming week as nearly 600 volunteer workers redouble their efforts to bring in nearly $25,000 and wind up the campaign by noon Thursday.

The keystone factor which will spell success or failure lies solely in the hands of the men and women who still have uncompleted assignments to report, campaign leaders said Saturday night.

Chest heads said they were looking to the following divisions to produce the desired pledges by the Thursday noon deadline:

Industrial Division, Walter W. Kellogg, chairman and T. H. Scott co-chairman; commercial division, Dave Silverstein, chairman and C. G. McAdams, co-chairman; Manufactures and Processors division, H. Michigan, Kentucky Train Sights On Bowl Assignments

By Harold Claassen

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Michigan and Kentucky grabbed lush bowl assignments today as the other teams hung onto their helmets and shoulder pads while playing on fields that were swept by wind, snow and rain.

Kentucky, although it lost to Tennessee by 7 to 0, announced it would play in the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl game Jan. 1. Michigan, surprise champion of the Big Ten, hasn't been named officially as the Big Ten's Rose Bowl choice but that is a mere formality.

Michigan defeated Ohio State, 9 to 3, in a game that almost had to be postponed because of a heavy snowfall. In fact, the contest started a half hour late so that the field could be cleared. While the weather man frowned on Coach Ben Oosterbaan's Wolverines, lady luck smiled. Illinois, with its bags half packed for the trip west was spilled by Northwestern, 14 to 7, at Evanston and dropped out of the running.

Wisconsin, another Big Ten Rose Bowl possibility, downed Minnesota, 14 to 0, but the Badgers finished with a 5-2 conference record as compared with the Michigan mark of four victories, one defeat and one tie.

The day, last big one of the 1950 campaign, produced its usual share of bowl talk and much more than its share of conversation about the weather.

Four games in the eastern sector were called off because of the elements. The Penn State at Pittsburgh game will be played Monday afternoon but the Colgate at Rutgers was cancelled although the teams agreed to meet next November. The Scranton-Niagara game now is billed for tomorrow while the Kings College-Gannon contest also was postponed. No new date was set.

Except for the Texas-Oklahoma and farwest area, the weather was bad everywhere. At Princeton, where the unbeaten Tigers took the Ivy League crown by downing Dartmouth, 13 to 7, officials had to hold the ball when the teams went into the huddle. At Athens, Ga., the mercury skidded

Tighter Law On Kickbacks Sought

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The justice department asked congress today to tighten the law against salary kickbacks in the government service.

The request was sent to Chairman McCarran (D.-Nev.) of the senate judiciary committee and House Speaker Rayburn (D.-Texas).

The letter, signed by Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford, said the justice department "has recently been advised of instances in which employes or prospective employes of the federal government have been required to make payments to an employing officer as a condition of obtaining or retaining public office."

The department is known to have investigated a number of such alleged incidents in the past two years, involving in some cases members of congress.

The last prosecution on this allegation involved former Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R.-N. J.), onetime chairman of the house un-American activities committee. Thomas was convicted here last year on charges that he collected kick-backs from persons on his congressional office payroll. Fined $10,000 and given a sentence of six to eighteen months, he was paroled from the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn., several weeks ago after serving his minimum time.

Reward Offered For L. S. U. Boy Missing In Fla.

Orlando, Fla., Nov. 25—(AP)—A $200 reward was offered here today for information leading to the whereabouts of a Louisiana State University graduate student who disappeared Tuesday night from a wedding party in Windermere, about 10 miles from here.

Walter C. Mix of Shreveport, La., was last seen making his way down a dark Windermere road after he had left a prenuptials party for his brother, Sidney.

The reward was offered by the parents of the 21-year-old student. Mix is about five feet, nine inches tall and has dark brown hair and brown eyes. When last seen he was wearing a gray suit, white shirt and a red and blue tie. Mix has a slight scar on the right side of his chin.

Members of his family said that they had been advised by a medical friend that Mix may be suffering from amnesia.

Communist Counter-Push Met By United Nation Allies

Surging 110,000 U.N. Troops May Be Facing Grim Showdown Battle For Northwest Korea

Tokyo, Sunday, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Rallying Red forces fought back in Northwest Korea today and rushed reinforcements up for what may be the showdown battles with 110,000 surging United Nations Troops.

The Communist counter-attack crimpled a push by the U. S. 25th division on the Unsan sector of the general northwestern allied offensive that jumped off Friday, aiming to end the war quickly.

Enemy resistance stiffened everywhere in the northwest except at the left end of the line where the U. S. 24th division had driven two miles north of Chongju without a fight by Saturday noon.

The crucial northwest front overshadowed the snowy northeast sector where south Koreans rolled unopposed into the big coastal city of Chongjin. It was the last known big barrier between the south Koreans and the Soviet Siberian border, 55 air miles ahead.

Sub-zero temperatures and mountains were proving the biggest obstacles in the northeast where one American unit already has reached the Manchurian frontier.

But the estimated 100,000 Chinese and Korean Reds in the northwest showed fight against a U. N. offensive which General MacArthur himself said was intended to get the Americans home by Christmas.

Tighter Law On Kickbacks Sought

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The justice department asked congress today to tighten the law against salary kickbacks in the government service.

The request was sent to Chairman McCarran (D.-Nev.) of the senate judiciary committee and House Speaker Rayburn (D.-Texas).

The letter, signed by Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford, said the justice department "has recently been advised of instances in which employes or prospective employes of the federal government have been required to make payments to an employing officer as a condition of obtaining or retaining public office."

The department is known to have investigated a number of such alleged incidents in the past two years, involving in some cases members of congress.

The last prosecution on this allegation involved former Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R.-N. J.), onetime chairman of the house un-American activities committee. Thomas was convicted here last year on charges that he collected kick-backs from persons on his congressional office payroll. Fined $10,000 and given a sentence of six to eighteen months, he was paroled from the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn., several weeks ago after serving his minimum time.

Colorful High School Outfits Greet Grandest Man Of The Season

Santa Claus came to town to the accompaiment of martial music, high-stepping drum majorettes, flashy floats and well-drilled marching units in the annual Christmas parade Saturday morning.

The parade, sponsored each year by the Retail Merchants Division of the Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, featured the melodies of two bands, the color of three floats and the precision of three snappy marching units. The high point of the entire celebration, though, was the appearance in the Twin Cities of Kris Kringle himself, jovial, colorful and picturesque as ever, even though the press of circumstance demanded he ride in an automobile rather than his sleigh.

The bands from the Ouachita Parish High School and the Monroe Colored High School were on hand for the musical background to the spectacle, with the special

Prominent Bank Cashier Accused

West Point, Miss., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A 43-year-old bank cashier, father of three children and a Sunday school leader, was accused today of the embezzlement of $25,875.

The defendant, Joseph Edward Bryan, cashier of the bank of West Point, Miss., was in custody of the U. S. marshal at Aberdeen, Miss. Miss Ruth West, U. S. commissioner at Aberdeen, fixed bond at $7,500 and set a preliminary hearing for Dec. 1. Bryan waived examination.

Miss West said "He asked for time to consult an attorney."

Don S. Hostetter, agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation at Memphis, said Bryan told FBI agents he had taken the money from the bank over a period of the past 12 or 15 years.

Bryan has been a bank employe for 20 years. He became cashier a little more than a year ago. He is treasurer of his Sunday school class, former treasurer of the Clay county Chamber of Commerce and a member of the West Point school board.

His salary as cashier was $275 a month. He also ran a filling station.

R. L. Ballard, bank president, said the "unfortunate incident" would not affect the bank's standing since the loss is fully covered.

VOLUNTEERS WILL REDOUBLE EFFORT

Nearly $25,000 Still Needed To Successfully End Red Feather Drive

Zero hour in the $63,000 Red Feather Drive will fall this coming week as nearly 600 volunteer workers redouble their efforts to bring in nearly $25,000 and wind up the campaign by noon Thursday.

The keystone factor which will spell success or failure lies solely in the hands of the men and women who still have uncompleted assignments to report, campaign leaders said Saturday night.

Chest heads said they were looking to the following divisions to produce the desired pledges by the Thursday noon deadline:

Industrial Division, Walter W. Kellogg, chairman and T. H. Scott co-chairman; commercial division, Dave Silverstein, chairman and C. G. McAdams, co-chairman; Manufactures and Processors division, H. Michigan, Kentucky Train Sights On Bowl Assignments

By Harold Claassen

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Michigan and Kentucky grabbed lush bowl assignments today as the other teams hung onto their helmets and shoulder pads while playing on fields that were swept by wind, snow and rain.

Kentucky, although it lost to Tennessee by 7 to 0, announced it would play in the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl game Jan. 1. Michigan, surprise champion of the Big Ten, hasn't been named officially as the Big Ten's Rose Bowl choice but that is a mere formality.

Michigan defeated Ohio State, 9 to 3, in a game that almost had to be postponed because of a heavy snowfall. In fact, the contest started a half hour late so that the field could be cleared. While the weather man frowned on Coach Ben Oosterbaan's Wolverines, lady luck smiled. Illinois, with its bags half packed for the trip west was spilled by Northwestern, 14 to 7, at Evanston and dropped out of the running.

Wisconsin, another Big Ten Rose Bowl possibility, downed Minnesota, 14 to 0, but the Badgers finished with a 5-2 conference record as compared with the Michigan mark of four victories, one defeat and one tie.

The day, last big one of the 1950 campaign, produced its usual share of bowl talk and much more than its share of conversation about the weather.

Four games in the eastern sector were called off because of the elements. The Penn State at Pittsburgh game will be played Monday afternoon but the Colgate at Rutgers was cancelled although the teams agreed to meet next November. The Scranton-Niagara game now is billed for tomorrow while the Kings College-Gannon contest also was postponed. No new date was set.

Except for the Texas-Oklahoma and farwest area, the weather was bad everywhere. At Princeton, where the unbeaten Tigers took the Ivy League crown by downing Dartmouth, 13 to 7, officials had to hold the ball when the teams went into the huddle. At Athens, Ga., the mercury skidded

City Struggles To Survive Chocking Effect Of Wind And Snow

Youngstown, O., Nov. 25—(AP)—Where you ever in a ctiy strangled by the grip of blizzard?

It's almost like living in a vacuum.

The snow slants down before a blizzard wind so thick it's hard to see across the street. Sometimes you can't. The streets are left victims of the wind and snow.

Once in a long while some hardy soul pushes down the sidewalk in waist-deep snow, his body tipped forward against the drive of the wind, his head hunched turtle-like in the collar of his coat.

And, the noise. There isn't the noise you've grown accustomed to. The blare of the buses' air horns, the squeal of brakes, the pound of the heavy machinery in the factories, the hum of living.

Just the howl of the wind and the pelting of the snow crystals on the window pane. Because you're home, probably, stranded from your job.

The radio chatters the news of drifted highways, sunken tugboats, suspended newspapers. But, that's the only link with the outside.

You are a citizen of Youngstown, where 19 inches of snow muffles life and where traffic, business, industry and services have been choked off.

Outside your home, the city is struggling for its civic breath. The city's three hospitals were hardhit because staff doctors, like yourself, couldn't get away from their homes. So, surgical cases were trundled back to bed and operations called off.

Snowplows are huffing and puffing in trying to clear the way for emergency deliveries of milk, meat and other foods.

You won't get your newspaper, because the vindicator didn't publish today.

Funeral services and weddings, two of the three major milestones in human life, were postponed, but the third milestone, birth, kept right on. Police had to hurry one Youngstown mother to the hospital but they made it.

You look outside. The snow has stopped. But, now comes a freezing rain.

So, you turn back to your radio, the only outside air that comes into your vacuum.

5000 Families Without Heat

Pascagoula, Miss., Nov. 25—(AP)—With temperatures hovering near freezing, about 5,000 families here and at nearby Moss Point were without heat today as a natural gas line broke.

City Commissioner H. C. Ezell said service was disrupted when the line broke between Moss Point and Dog River.

Heat of the Jackson County hospital was off several hours until an emergency line was installed, he said.

Tonight repair crews from bordering towns and as far away as Mobile, Ala., raced a sinking thermometer, trying to restore service.

Ezell warned those without heat that normal service might not come before early tomorrow.

The weather man predicted more sub-freezing weather tonight—about 22 degrees.

U. N. Leaks In Lashing Storm

The lashing rain caused a spready stain across the ceiling in a west - wing corridor through which arriving and departing delegates are channeled.

The U. N.'s fire department also was kept busy with broken windows, and two doors were ripped from their hinges by the wind.

India's Sir Benegal Rau reached headquarters after a tough drive from New York in time to be told of the general alarm to delegates to leave the building.

COHEN ASSOCIATE IS FOUND IN N. O.

Says Has Done Nothing, 'Knows Nothing About Mickey's Income Tax'

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Eddie Borden, former fight manager for gambler Mickey Cohen, went to the federal bureau of investigation today to discuss reports that he was the object of a nationwide FBI search.

Borden's trip to the FBI was made voluntarily. It was understood that the FBI here had no pickup order for him.

Borden previously expressed surprise at reports that he was sought by the FBI.

"I haven't done anything and don't know anything about Mickey's income tax," Borden said.

He came here several days ago, registered under his own name at a local hotel and has been talking with fight Promoter Lew Raymond, Pete Herman, Eddie Kid Wolfe and other friends in the fistic world. Borden formerly was a writer for Ring Magazine. During the war he was a legal bookmaker in England.

Borden scoffed at reports that Los Angeles police suspect he was kidnaped early this month from Las Vegas by Cohen's henchmen and returned to Los Angeles. Los Angeles officers were reported to have a tip that Cohen wanted Borden in connection with some bets.

He also denied that he had been in business with Cohen but said he had loaned money to Cohen "who is in bad shape financially."

Borden said he did return from Las Vegas to Los Angeles by airplane in company with Eli Lubin, a Cohen associate. Borden insisted he made the trip voluntarily.

"I went back to Los Angeles with nobody forcing me," Borden continued. "I left Los Angeles because I didn't want to be any place where they think it's a crime worse than murder to make a bet or take a bet."

U. N. Leaks In Lashing Storm

The lashing rain caused a spready stain across the ceiling in a west - wing corridor through which arriving and departing delegates are channeled.

The U. N.'s fire department also was kept busy with broken windows, and two doors were ripped from their hinges by the wind.

India's Sir Benegal Rau reached headquarters after a tough drive from New York in time to be told of the general alarm to delegates to leave the building.

Says Has Done Nothing, 'Knows Nothing About Mickey's Income Tax'

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Eddie Borden, former fight manager for gambler Mickey Cohen, went to the federal bureau of investigation today to discuss reports that he was the object of a nationwide FBI search.

Borden's trip to the FBI was made voluntarily. It was understood that the FBI here had no pickup order for him.

Borden previously expressed surprise at reports that he was sought by the FBI.

"I haven't done anything and don't know anything about Mickey's income tax," Borden said.

He came here several days ago, registered under his own name at a local hotel and has been talking with fight Promoter Lew Raymond, Pete Herman, Eddie Kid Wolfe and other friends in the fistic world. Borden formerly was a writer for Ring Magazine. During the war he was a legal bookmaker in England.

Borden scoffed at reports that Los Angeles police suspect he was kidnaped early this month from Las Vegas by Cohen's henchmen and returned to Los Angeles. Los Angeles officers were reported to have a tip that Cohen wanted Borden in connection with some bets.

He also denied that he had been in business with Cohen but said he had loaned money to Cohen "who is in bad shape financially."

Borden said he did return from Las Vegas to Los Angeles by airplane in company with Eli Lubin, a Cohen associate. Borden insisted he made the trip voluntarily.

"I went back to Los Angeles with nobody forcing me," Borden continued. "I left Los Angeles because I didn't want to be any place where they think it's a crime worse than murder to make a bet or take a bet."

Little Theatre Curtain Call

We report to you today a very interesting and unusual turn of events for "The Hasty Heart". Stanley Timmerman who had to drop from the cast because of his transfer from Monroe to New Orleas on December 1, is back in the cast. We are very very happy to have him back again and here is the unusual side of our piece of good luck. Stanley wrote to his bosses, I. C. railroad officials, about the situation and on Friday he received their reply. His transfer was delayed until December 18. He will play in "The Hasty Heart" for its week run here, move to New Orleans the following week and make the playdate with Veterans' Hospital, Alexandria on Sunday December 17, before he reports for his new assignment in the Crescent City on Monday, Dec. 18.

There will be Sunday afternoon rehearsal for "The Hasty Heart" at Little Theatre playhouse as it goes into its last week of workout before its opening on Monday evening December 4. The rehearsal is called for 2 p. m. President Clark Boardman has called a board of directors meeting for Little Theatre, 3:30 p. m. Sunday at the Lotus Club, to iron out the financial and social perspective of this second production of the '50-'51 season.

RANDOM NOTES . . . Sant. Knowing these two as I do, I'm laying odds that the place will come out a decorational landmark . . . Any disagrement? . . . Speaking of Garland Shell reminds us that only last Wednesday F. Strauss & Son, Inc. announced the appointment of Shell Advertising Agency as their exclusive local advertising agents. This is another typical illustration of Strauss leadership in the Twin Cities. Remembering their campaign with the Anheuser-Busch champion Clydesdale horses a short time back, watch for something sensational as they get going with the Sweetheart wine promotion . . . Quite by accident, we learn that our director of the Little Theatre will spend ten days of his Christmas vacation in New York.

Attacks From The Flank

A fine commentary on the United States and its history was recently made by Robert S. Henry of the Association of American Railroads.

"In the short space of a little more than a century and a half this nation has settled and civilized a continent," he said. "It has established a system of government and an operating economy under which men produce more, live better and have greater freedom, than ever before in history, or anywhere else in the world today. . . .

"But for a long generation this truly incomparable record of achievement in human freedom, satisfaction and happiness has been under attack. Some of the attack has been frontal, from external sources. More insidious and more dangerous have been internal attacks from the flank —attacks working through those enterprises which shape public opinion, working by subtle twisting of thought and debasement of values. In fictionalized biography, in decadent drama, in so-called 'realistic' novels great American figures are given a pseudo-Marxist complexion, while the self-supporting, tax-paying, substantial citizen of today, especially if he be a business man, is satirized or ridiculed. . . .

"In a popular 'Ballad for Americans,' written no doubt with patriotic intent, the movement for American liberty is described in the following couplet:

'Nobody who was anybody believed it;
Everybody who was anybody, they doubted it.'

"The implication that the American revolution was carried forward by nobodies against the doubts and indifference of 'everybody who was anybody', is a strange perversion of the part played in history by those great 'nobodies' who risked their all, and jeopardized their very necks, by signing their names to the Declaration of Independence, or the part of that other great 'nobody', George Washington. No, the American republic was not created by nobodies. It was created by great men, wise men, men of character and vision, supported . . . by self-respecting, hard-working men and women. . . .

"Today, as never before, the continued strength, the very existance, of the nation depends upon public appreciation of . . . the facts of the vast and varied organization of our free economy, what it is, how it works, what it does, what its achievements mean to us all."

That economy produced our railroads, our natural resource industries, our great manufacturing concerns, our progressive agriculture, our religious and education system—everything that makes us strong. It is based on freedom. If we abandon it, the blessings we think of as American will die.

Heirs Ain't What They

A lot of people seem to be disappointed in David Clarkson. He is the 21-year-old G. I., fresh from Korea, who learned he had inherited $250,000 while he was dodging North Korean bullets.

Now Clarkson didn't do anything rash. He didn't go AWOL and spend his time buying pretty baubles for pretty chorines. He didn't get himself a specially-tailored uniform with nylon fatigues. In fact, he didn't behave at all like a lot of people expect young heirs to behave.

All he did do is say, in a matter-of-fact tone, "I don't see what all the excitement's about; a lot of people come into money." While that is, of course, a slight exaggeration, it does show a commendable restraint on his part.

Undoubtedly, part of Clarkson's lack of enthusiasm—or, rather, lack of excitement—is due to his immediate past. To a G. I. back from Korea, $250,000 may be nice but a comfortable bed and an easy chair are far more tempting assets.

But there is more to his restraint than simply his status as a war veteran. He is a representative of a generation that doen't even have a nodding friendship with a fortune. Today's youth grows up with the knowledge that taxes and inflation have combined to make the accumulation of large sums of money an impossible hobby to pursue. Millions just can't be made these days. Even a quarter of a million, like Clarkson got, will boil down to just a little better than a week's allowance for a 1925 millionaire after Unce Sam takes his share.

Any red-blooded American boy of the 20's, after hearing about an inheritance like Clarkson's, would have painted the town a flaming scarlet. But today, what's the use? Even a can of red paint and a good brush are expensive.

An Unused Trinket—We Hope

Let us hope that the dosimeter is never needed. Of course, it's very comforting to know that we've got dosimeters now. But just the same, all things being equal, the world will be better off if they don't become common articles of wearing apparel.

The dosimeter, in case you missed the new stories about it, is a little gimmick you hang around your neck. It's a metal case. Inside is a flat paper package of photographically sensitized film, plus a pod of developing solution.

When you run into some atomic radiation, the film turns white. The whiter it gets, the worse off you are. So when the doctors swoop down on an area that has been atom bombed (this is the theory behind the development) they just look at your dosimeter. Comparison of the whiteness of your film with a graduated scale shows whether you're worth trying to save or not.

Remember the pictures of the English during the blitz? Every man, woman and child carried his canister containing a gas mask. The Nazis didn't drop any poison gas—for fear of retaliation, of course—and the canisters remained unopened.

The dosimeter isn't a direct counterpart of the gas mask. It can't prevent injury from radiation—so far, nothing has been developed that will do that. But, if another war ever does develop, the dosimeter (or something like it) will become a very fashionable dress accessory. It will be the gas mask of the future.

And let's hope that, like the gas mask, it turns out to be unnecessary.

The Farmers' Education

Louisiana farmers who really want "grass roots" control of one of their most important federal farm programs, the production and marketing administration program, will have an opportunity during the week of Dec. 11 to practice a little of what they have been preaching. During that week, community P. M. A. committeemen elections will be held in 453 communities throughout the state. P. M. A. officials have been sending out notices—the date and place of each community election will be announced locally—and urging farmers to come out and vote. In the past, the turnout hasn't been so large as they would have liked, their expressed opinion being that the more active the intrst of the farmers the more effective will be the work of the committeemen and the more the program will reflect the wishes and needs of the farmers.

That last is certainly true, to a large extent. If there is a tendency to concentrate more control of some farm programs in Washington, it is due at least in part to the inertia which the farmers themselves sometimes show. If farmer themselves don't seem too interested in making themelves heard, there always will be someone who will speak up for them, write their farm programs for them, and administer the programs for them.

Any owner, tenant, sharecropper or operator on a farm that is taking any part in any P. M. A. program is eligible to vote. If you are one of those eligible farmers, why not check the date and place of your community election and cast your vote? Show that you are personally interested in helping run your farm program.

In New York

WALTER WINCHELL

Men, Motives and Morals.

Two publications of national interest appeared this week. The first was a so-called objective study of the FBI by Max Lowenthal, which to this writer is nothing more nor less than a vicious one-sided attack on J. Edgar Hoover. The other publication is the official record of the testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee of Lee Pressman, Nathan Witt, Charles Kramer, John J. Abt and the same Max Lowenthal. Pressman admitted he had been a Communist and named Abt, Kramer and Witt as members of his Commy cell. Witt, Abt and Kramer declined to testify on the constitutional grounds that it would tend to incriminate and degrade them. Lowenthal, whose testimony appears last, admitted he knew all four men, plus Alger Hiss, but denied he was a Communist.

Lowenthal's book relies heavily on selected statements about the FBI, many in the Congressional Record. The cover jacket states the book is objective. However, it fails to note that Lowenthal himself has been vigorously attacked in these words in the Cong. Record of Sept. 1st, 1950: "His skill and technic are unparalleled. He does his work, lusts and thrives on obscurity. He knows he could never accomplish what he has in the open. Americans do not like his ilk, and once his shroud of mystery is penetrated he knows his usefulness is at an end. Doors that once opened to him will be closed because no good American would care to be contaminated by his known presence. I have named this man in passing before. Today I bring him into the open and introduce Max Lowenthal. Like the Communist Party whose cause he has served so well, he operates on two levels. One is seemingly respectable; the other completely underground."

Obviously, if Max Lowenthal believes the Congressional Record is part of an objective study of J. Edgar Hoover, the jacket of his book—to be objective—ought to set forth what the Congressional Record contains about Max Lowenthal.

Congressman Dondero further stated: "Lowenthal's record is one of attack on any American institution which stands 4-square for the American way of life. He has attacked railroads, banks and a thoroughly fine American institution of B'nai B'rith as a 'bourgeois organization.' Even the cause of liberalism has felt his vengeance." . . . If the FBI is also considered an American institution, then Lowenthal has spared no names, however hallowed, in his attack. Cleverly, he does not make the charges himself. Following is a sample of his devious tecnique on the memory of President Theodore Roosevelt. Lowenthal says: "Newspaper articles appear, disclosing the fact that dossiers had been assembled for President Theodore Roosevelt containing information about the personal affairs of various congressmen active in the campaign to investigate the Federal detectives. News accounts conveyed the Prsident's intention to publicize this collection, if the Congressional investigation of Federal Secret Police were carried to the lengths of provoking him."

To this writer, that is an objectionable—and not an objective charge—that President Theodore Roosevelt was a criminal blackmailer. It comes, it must be objectively noted, from Max Lowenthal, whose own loyalty to his country has been challenged on the floor of congress. It should also be objectively noted that even Theodore Roosevelt's bitterest opponents called him a great American.

For the FBI to be an enduring and growing conspiracy since 1908, the Attorneys-General of the United States must have been part of it. At any rate, Lowenthal lists them at the beginning of his book. By any objective standard, they are an honor roll of the American Bar. Republicans and Democrats, Protestant and Catholic, Rich and Poor, Conservative and Liberal, they are a cross-section of some of the most distinguished names in American history.

Five of them, for example, went to the United States Supreme Court. Most Amricans will be revolted by any inference that Conservative Republican George Wickersham, Conservative Southern Democrat James McReynolds, New England's great Harlan Stone and Michigan's Frank Murphy as Attorneys-General, either didn't know what was going on or were part of the same expanding conspiracy. The records show, for instance, that Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, practically the American apostle of civil rights—fought as Attorney-General for a double budget for the FBI. To this writer, Max Lowenthal's book virtually and idiotically charges that all these great Americans remained quiescent or actively helped the growth of a great conspiracy against the American people.

The Congressional Record may throw some light on the reasons Lowenthal wrote the book. At least Cong. Dondero's opinion deserves mention. From the record of September 1, 1950: "In the thirties, Lowenthal concentrated upon weakening our internal security by aiding an all-out Communist attack against the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In 1940 Lowenthal sent out anonymous memorandums, smearing the FBI, which fact can be attested to by many Washington newsmen, hoping to head off the FBI in its fight to protect our shores against the menace of Communism and Fascism at a time when the Nazis and Communists were allies. Lowenthal has worked diligently and deviously, but always relentlessly, to destroy the effectiveness of the FBI in its efforts to protect our country from the emissaries of Godless communism. He has always realized the FBI is the one agency he could not penetrate or intimidate. He has long known it was the one agency which blocked his efforts to completely undermine our internal security."

So, along with seven Presidents and 15 Attorneys-General of the United States, J. Edgar Hoover must consider himself as accused by inference of either allowing, permitting of furthering the growth of the FBI at the expense of the liberties of the American people. Objective history appears to be strongly on the side of the statesmen, and not Max Lowenthal.

It is probable that all Congressmen do not share Congressman Dondero's drastic opinion that no good American would care to be contaminated by Lowenthal's known presence. But a certain typical, very dry American skepticism of Lowenthal appears from the record of his testimony before the House Un-American Activities Comm. The testimony: Mr. Lowenthal: "The number of people that I didn't know were members of the Communist arty is something that sometimes makes my hair stand on end". . . . Mr. Russell: "Our's, too."

Storm, Rain And Robbery Strikes

Philadelphia, Nov., 25—(AP)— The season's worst storm brought plenty of rain-drenched customers to Harry Fox's hosiery shop today—but that wasn't all.

Fox was so busy waiting on a man wanting dry socks that for a moment he didn't quite under stand what a newcomer was demanding. Them he saw the pistol and heard the man's sharp order: "Get back there fast, both of you."

Fox and the customer ducked behind the counter, Fox handing over his cash.

"How about the socks?" The customer asked after the thief fled.

Fox wilted, could mumble only "I haven't any."

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE FIGHT STARTS

The principal issue before the 82nd congress has been established by Dean Acheson. In an unprecedented attack on such Republican senators as Robert A. Taft, Homer Ferguson and William Knowland, he ridiculed "re-examinism. He called them "re-examinists.

So that is what it is to be: A fight over the re-examination of the secretly conducted foreign policy of the United States since 1943 (the Moscow and Teheran conferences). This foreign policy has brought us to a fighting war and close to a third general war in one generation.

Precisely why is it wrong to re-examine a policy and a series of acts which have produced nothing but failure—failure in China; failure in India; failure in Germany; failure in our relations with Great Britain? And to these failures must be added the confusions of the United Nations.

The need for re-examination is not to get even with anybody or to discredit anyone. It is rather to discover what can be salvaged out of what seems at this moment to be a hopeless situation. It can only remain hopeless as long as we are kept in ignorance as to our commitments.

Since the Moscow, Cairo and Teheran conferences in 1943, the American people have been ignorant as to these commitments, not only as to details but even as to the general considerations that led to them. Senator JJoe McCarthy's outcry last winter arose out of the shock as to the results but not the nature of the commitments.

One of the major impediments to getting at the truth is the so-called bipartisan foreign policy which was introduced in the 1944 election campaign to keep the Republicans from asking questions.

The Republican members of the senate committee on foreign relations should have been the watchmen at the gates; they should have examined our foreign policy and the deals that this country made with other countries. During the 80th congress, when the Republicans might have explored the problem, Senator Vandenberg pursued the bipartisan foreign policy to such an extent that the Republicans really assumed some of the responsibility for a policy the objectives of which were unknown to them.

For instance, in September, 1947, General Albert Wedemeyer presented his reports on China and Korea to the president. These reports were suppressed. I know the contents of both, although I do not say that I ever saw the one on Korea. But I do say that if the Wedemeyer reports had been examined and made public by the senate committee on foreign relations, we probably would not today have our sons dying on the Yalu river.

The Republican members of the aforesaid committee are: Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan; Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin; H. Alexander Smith, of New Jersey; Bourke B. Hickenlooper, of Iowa; and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts.

Senator Vandenberg has long been very sick. His participation in the 82nd congress will be limited by his health.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith, during many years, was a state department adherent, but having a conscience, he seems to have recently discovered that he has been misled. The degree of his revolt from bipartisanship has yet to be seen.

As for Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., he was on the Tydings committee and he might have forced the issue of the truth. This he did not do. Actually, he now represents the state department in the United Nations.

On the whole, this committee is not too competent and the Republican side of it is very weak. If this committee is to be of any value, it has to be reorganized and strengthened—particularly the Republican side.

Dean Acheson has a candidate for the Republicans, Sen. Wayne Morse, who generally votes New Deal and is strongly supported by the C. I. O. He has some seniority. Should has name be considered, it will result in such an outcry among the rank and file of Republicans that even seniority-ridden senators will hear it.

Among the senators whom Republicans would like to see on this committee are William Knowland of California and Homer Ferguson of Michigan and Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

If there is to be a re-examination, to use Dean Achesons phrase this is the committee to do it. As this committee stands, it is not manned for that job.

Fire Destroys Baptist Church

Tupelo, Miss., Nov. 25 —(AP)— Firemen unsuccessfully fought 15 hours in freezing temperatures a blaze that destroyed the first Baptist church and its education building here today.

Ministers estimated it would cost about $500,000 to replace both structures. Insurance was said to amount to $55,000.

A thick covering of snow on the roof tops kept the fire from spreading to nearby homes.

Firemen from Fulton, Oklahoma and Natchez Trace aided Tupelo's department in the hopeless struggle. Their wet oilskins soon turned to glistening ice-coated armor in the seven degree temperature.

Their work was hampered by a ten mile-an-hour wind that fanned the big blaze.

The ruined church building was a a landmark in this town. It was a beautiful 33-year-old structure of colonial design. The education building was brick veneer with steel framing.

The cause of the fire is as yet undetermined.

Ship Fire Off N. Y. Under Control

New York, Nov. 25 —(AP)— The Norwegian American line motorship "Lyngenfjord" took fire off storm-swept Long Island today but reported later the blaze was under control.

The coast guard said at 6:45 p.m. (EST) that the ship reported it was proceeding to New York under its own power.

The ship's S.O.S. was received at 5 p.m. (EST), the coast guard said. Her position was given as "just south of Shinnecock Bay," which is off the summer resort of Southampton, 90 miles from New York City.

The coast guard cutter "Yeaton' was sent to aid the ship.

The freighter "Steelworker," which was near the scene, said it also was answering the Lyngenfjord's call for help.

The burning freighter is of 3.800 tons. Built in 1948, she is 406 feet long.

Charles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

New York This is the day when we usually look at the mail. There are vast piles of it here, and some of it should be interesting. In fact it is all interesting to me.

I don't know anybody who doesn't love to receive mail. I know several persons, one of them quite a man of the world, who consider the mail delivery the most important event of the day.

Our smiling friend from Independence is the first President of the United States to fail to advance and improve mail service and, instead, to damage and hamper it. This is too bad, and Harry doesn't know how much damage this is doing to him in the estimation of all the people, not merely the business men.

Our mail service was our pride. We bragged about it abroad. I never knew a postman who was not courteous, civil, smiling, and anxious to serve. Every postman has a sense of his own importance to those whom he serves. With that goes a sense of responsibilty to serve well, courteously, and as a worthy representative of his government in one of its most important aspects.

I don't know how it is where you live, but in our part of the world, where a lot of people live the postal service is going to the dogs. I think it is better in Spain, where one sometimes waits a day or so for the delivery of a letter, but the postman comes, singing a gay song smiling, and removing his cap to ladies and elderly men.

We have a polite postman on our home route, who was young when he started carrying those precious letters, and is now white-haired. He has never been overpaid, Iassure you but he remains the faithful servant of the people, though over-worked and treated like a parasite by his government.

If Harry would listen to me he would restore postal service and the pride of the postal workers in their jobs.

I have many letters from postoffice employes, but I do not print them lest the writers get into trouble. I understand many of their difficulties, including that chief one, feeding their families.Let us hope for better days and a new policy in the postoffice.

Friend Harnett Kane was in town briefly, and circumstances prevented me from seeing him. He left a note saying that his new novel, "Pathway to the Stars," is having a wonderful reception from the critics. It deserves every good word. For Author Kane I wish and predict continued success for many more years and books.

Mrs. J.E.Beasley, Fargo, Ga., writes me about those feed bags that I was wondering about recently She reports that the feed bags, (I don't know what kind of feed comes in them) are of good material, with a texture somewhat like linen and much can be done with them by clever women.

At the country fair in Fargo (not N. D.), the booth displaying articles made of feed bags took first prize. One lady displayed a lovely rug, made from bags of many colors. Another showed a fine luncheon cloth that cost nothing except the thread and some hours of pleasant work.

All this is new to me, but it must be extremely interesting. I like people who can make something out of nothing. My mother made my baby clothes out of flour sacks, and so far as I know they were satisfactory.

In Washington With

BASCOM TIMMONS

The women suffered a setback in the last election, but let there be no cracks about that outdated business of "the weaker sex. After 34 years, since the first female came to congress even the diehards admit that women are there to stay. In fact, most of those who get to Washington stay as long as the men, and have just as strong support back home.

There were 10 women in the 81st congress, and there will be 9 in the 82nd, including one woman senator, Margaret Chase Smith (R.-Me.). Five were elected in the house, including Edith Nourse Rogers (R.-Mass.) 14th term Frances Bolton (R.-O.) 7th term, Katharine St. George, (R.-N. Y.) 3rd term, Cecil M. Harden (R.-Ind.) 2nd term. All four of them have served consecutively, meaning they have never been defeated. The same is true of Edna F. Kelly, New York City Democrat, the first woman ever to be elected from the metropolis, and Reva Beck Bosone (D.-Utah) both of whom were reelected for a second term.

Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Bolton, two of the most highly respected members of congress, are wealthy widows of members, whom they succeeded. Mrs. St. George is a first cousin of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose New Deal program she strongly opposed and is married to George Baker St. George, a nephew of the late George Baker, one of the countrys outstanding financiers. Mrs. Harden has been married for 36 years, and has a son who is a physician. Mrs. Kelly is the widow of a New York City court justice. Mrs. Bosone is a widow, a lawyer, an ex-legislator and judge.

Unlike some of their males colleagues, they do not hestitate to tell their ages—except Mrs. St. George and Mrs. Bosone—Mrs. Rogers is 69, Mrs. Bolton 65, Mrs. Harden 56, Mrs Kelly 44. Senator Smith of Maine, a widow, is 51.

Two new women Republican members are Mrs. Marguerite Church (Rep .Ill.), an energetic woman who succeeds her husband who died a few months ago, and Miss Ruth Thompson (Rep. Mich.)

Mrs. Church may be here for a long time. A woman of middle age, she campaigned constantly for her husband. From a dry district, her "cakes and tea parties were well known here and in the erudite Evanstan, Ill., district she represents, which is the national headquarters of the W. C. T. U. She is popular and has personality.

Other women have made records in congress as outstanding as that of Mrs. Rogers, who has probably introduced more successful veterans legislation than any other member. Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, who will retire at the end of this year, served 13 terms —26 years—and was chairman of three different house committees. She has sponsored many labor bills.

The first woman in congress, Miss Jeanette Rankin (Rep. Mont) not only voted against World War I, but returned years later in time to vote against World War II. She was the only woman ever to attend a dinner of the exclusively male Gridiron Club. After that, the club changed its dinner rules to bar women.

Rep. Alice Robertson (Dem. Okla.) sponsored much Indian legislation. The late Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick (Re. Ill.), daughter of Mark Hanna, introduced the first government reorganization legislation during the Hoover administration.

The women are really out of the experimental stage, and many Capitol attaches believe they work harder than men.

While the United States was voting on Nov. 7 to continue its free way of life, the Soviet embassy here was celebrating the November Revolution which put the Bolsheviks in power in Russia. There were upsets in our election, but things didn't go too smoothly at the embassy, where a local caterer reports a last minute ruckus over a giant cake, which was the centerpiece of a table loaded with food.

The caterer says the embassy directed him to crown the cake with a simulated sheaf of golden wheat and below it, a hammer and sickle, emblem of the U. S. S R. The emblem was also to be a yellow matching the wheat. When the cake was all made an emissary from embassy dashed in orders to change it. Some higher up said the hammer and sickle in yellow would not do—it should be in red, but that had been vetoed, too.

So the big cake's top was smooth, except for the Roman numerals "XXXIII" on top. It was the 33rd anniversary of the uprising in Moscow and Leningrad, which was responsible for all the present world turmoil.

FORESTS PROMOTED

Kuala Lumpur—(AP)—The dense forests of the Malayan peninsula are likely to stay that way for a long time to come. The government of the Federation of Malaya is determined to keep them growing.

J. P. Edwards, acting director of forestry, has announced $2,193,000 is being spent to push a forestry development plan.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

And I said Hear, I pray you, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Isral; Is it not for you to know judgement?—Micah 3:1.

Rashly, nor ofttimes truly, doth man pass judgement on his brother; for he seeth not the springs of the heart, nor heareth the reasons of the mind.

Attacks From The Flank

A fine commentary on the United States and its history was recently made by Robert S. Henry of the Association of American Railroads.

"In the short space of a little more than a century and a half this nation has settled and civilized a continent," he said. "It has established a system of government and an operating economy under which men produce more, live better and have greater freedom, than ever before in history, or anywhere else in the world today. . . .

"But for a long generation this truly incomparable record of achievement in human freedom, satisfaction and happiness has been under attack. Some of the attack has been frontal, from external sources. More insidious and more dangerous have been internal attacks from the flank —attacks working through those enterprises which shape public opinion, working by subtle twisting of thought and debasement of values. In fictionalized biography, in decadent drama, in so-called 'realistic' novels great American figures are given a pseudo-Marxist complexion, while the self-supporting, tax-paying, substantial citizen of today, especially if he be a business man, is satirized or ridiculed. . . .

"In a popular 'Ballad for Americans,' written no doubt with patriotic intent, the movement for American liberty is described in the following couplet:

'Nobody who was anybody believed it;
Everybody who was anybody, they doubted it.'

"The implication that the American revolution was carried forward by nobodies against the doubts and indifference of 'everybody who was anybody', is a strange perversion of the part played in history by those great 'nobodies' who risked their all, and jeopardized their very necks, by signing their names to the Declaration of Independence, or the part of that other great 'nobody', George Washington. No, the American republic was not created by nobodies. It was created by great men, wise men, men of character and vision, supported . . . by self-respecting, hard-working men and women. . . .

"Today, as never before, the continued strength, the very existance, of the nation depends upon public appreciation of . . . the facts of the vast and varied organization of our free economy, what it is, how it works, what it does, what its achievements mean to us all."

That economy produced our railroads, our natural resource industries, our great manufacturing concerns, our progressive agriculture, our religious and education system—everything that makes us strong. It is based on freedom. If we abandon it, the blessings we think of as American will die.

Heirs Ain't What They

A lot of people seem to be disappointed in David Clarkson. He is the 21-year-old G. I., fresh from Korea, who learned he had inherited $250,000 while he was dodging North Korean bullets.

Now Clarkson didn't do anything rash. He didn't go AWOL and spend his time buying pretty baubles for pretty chorines. He didn't get himself a specially-tailored uniform with nylon fatigues. In fact, he didn't behave at all like a lot of people expect young heirs to behave.

All he did do is say, in a matter-of-fact tone, "I don't see what all the excitement's about; a lot of people come into money." While that is, of course, a slight exaggeration, it does show a commendable restraint on his part.

Undoubtedly, part of Clarkson's lack of enthusiasm—or, rather, lack of excitement—is due to his immediate past. To a G. I. back from Korea, $250,000 may be nice but a comfortable bed and an easy chair are far more tempting assets.

But there is more to his restraint than simply his status as a war veteran. He is a representative of a generation that doen't even have a nodding friendship with a fortune. Today's youth grows up with the knowledge that taxes and inflation have combined to make the accumulation of large sums of money an impossible hobby to pursue. Millions just can't be made these days. Even a quarter of a million, like Clarkson got, will boil down to just a little better than a week's allowance for a 1925 millionaire after Unce Sam takes his share.

Any red-blooded American boy of the 20's, after hearing about an inheritance like Clarkson's, would have painted the town a flaming scarlet. But today, what's the use? Even a can of red paint and a good brush are expensive.

An Unused Trinket—We Hope

Let us hope that the dosimeter is never needed. Of course, it's very comforting to know that we've got dosimeters now. But just the same, all things being equal, the world will be better off if they don't become common articles of wearing apparel.

The dosimeter, in case you missed the new stories about it, is a little gimmick you hang around your neck. It's a metal case. Inside is a flat paper package of photographically sensitized film, plus a pod of developing solution.

When you run into some atomic radiation, the film turns white. The whiter it gets, the worse off you are. So when the doctors swoop down on an area that has been atom bombed (this is the theory behind the development) they just look at your dosimeter. Comparison of the whiteness of your film with a graduated scale shows whether you're worth trying to save or not.

Remember the pictures of the English during the blitz? Every man, woman and child carried his canister containing a gas mask. The Nazis didn't drop any poison gas—for fear of retaliation, of course—and the canisters remained unopened.

The dosimeter isn't a direct counterpart of the gas mask. It can't prevent injury from radiation—so far, nothing has been developed that will do that. But, if another war ever does develop, the dosimeter (or something like it) will become a very fashionable dress accessory. It will be the gas mask of the future.

And let's hope that, like the gas mask, it turns out to be unnecessary.

The Farmers' Education

Louisiana farmers who really want "grass roots" control of one of their most important federal farm programs, the production and marketing administration program, will have an opportunity during the week of Dec. 11 to practice a little of what they have been preaching. During that week, community P. M. A. committeemen elections will be held in 453 communities throughout the state. P. M. A. officials have been sending out notices—the date and place of each community election will be announced locally—and urging farmers to come out and vote. In the past, the turnout hasn't been so large as they would have liked, their expressed opinion being that the more active the intrst of the farmers the more effective will be the work of the committeemen and the more the program will reflect the wishes and needs of the farmers.

That last is certainly true, to a large extent. If there is a tendency to concentrate more control of some farm programs in Washington, it is due at least in part to the inertia which the farmers themselves sometimes show. If farmer themselves don't seem too interested in making themelves heard, there always will be someone who will speak up for them, write their farm programs for them, and administer the programs for them.

Any owner, tenant, sharecropper or operator on a farm that is taking any part in any P. M. A. program is eligible to vote. If you are one of those eligible farmers, why not check the date and place of your community election and cast your vote? Show that you are personally interested in helping run your farm program.

WALTER WINCHELL

Men, Motives and Morals.

Two publications of national interest appeared this week. The first was a so-called objective study of the FBI by Max Lowenthal, which to this writer is nothing more nor less than a vicious one-sided attack on J. Edgar Hoover. The other publication is the official record of the testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee of Lee Pressman, Nathan Witt, Charles Kramer, John J. Abt and the same Max Lowenthal. Pressman admitted he had been a Communist and named Abt, Kramer and Witt as members of his Commy cell. Witt, Abt and Kramer declined to testify on the constitutional grounds that it would tend to incriminate and degrade them. Lowenthal, whose testimony appears last, admitted he knew all four men, plus Alger Hiss, but denied he was a Communist.

Lowenthal's book relies heavily on selected statements about the FBI, many in the Congressional Record. The cover jacket states the book is objective. However, it fails to note that Lowenthal himself has been vigorously attacked in these words in the Cong. Record of Sept. 1st, 1950: "His skill and technic are unparalleled. He does his work, lusts and thrives on obscurity. He knows he could never accomplish what he has in the open. Americans do not like his ilk, and once his shroud of mystery is penetrated he knows his usefulness is at an end. Doors that once opened to him will be closed because no good American would care to be contaminated by his known presence. I have named this man in passing before. Today I bring him into the open and introduce Max Lowenthal. Like the Communist Party whose cause he has served so well, he operates on two levels. One is seemingly respectable; the other completely underground."

Obviously, if Max Lowenthal believes the Congressional Record is part of an objective study of J. Edgar Hoover, the jacket of his book—to be objective—ought to set forth what the Congressional Record contains about Max Lowenthal.

Congressman Dondero further stated: "Lowenthal's record is one of attack on any American institution which stands 4-square for the American way of life. He has attacked railroads, banks and a thoroughly fine American institution of B'nai B'rith as a 'bourgeois organization.' Even the cause of liberalism has felt his vengeance." . . . If the FBI is also considered an American institution, then Lowenthal has spared no names, however hallowed, in his attack. Cleverly, he does not make the charges himself. Following is a sample of his devious tecnique on the memory of President Theodore Roosevelt. Lowenthal says: "Newspaper articles appear, disclosing the fact that dossiers had been assembled for President Theodore Roosevelt containing information about the personal affairs of various congressmen active in the campaign to investigate the Federal detectives. News accounts conveyed the Prsident's intention to publicize this collection, if the Congressional investigation of Federal Secret Police were carried to the lengths of provoking him."

To this writer, that is an objectionable—and not an objective charge—that President Theodore Roosevelt was a criminal blackmailer. It comes, it must be objectively noted, from Max Lowenthal, whose own loyalty to his country has been challenged on the floor of congress. It should also be objectively noted that even Theodore Roosevelt's bitterest opponents called him a great American.

For the FBI to be an enduring and growing conspiracy since 1908, the Attorneys-General of the United States must have been part of it. At any rate, Lowenthal lists them at the beginning of his book. By any objective standard, they are an honor roll of the American Bar. Republicans and Democrats, Protestant and Catholic, Rich and Poor, Conservative and Liberal, they are a cross-section of some of the most distinguished names in American history.

Five of them, for example, went to the United States Supreme Court. Most Amricans will be revolted by any inference that Conservative Republican George Wickersham, Conservative Southern Democrat James McReynolds, New England's great Harlan Stone and Michigan's Frank Murphy as Attorneys-General, either didn't know what was going on or were part of the same expanding conspiracy. The records show, for instance, that Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, practically the American apostle of civil rights—fought as Attorney-General for a double budget for the FBI. To this writer, Max Lowenthal's book virtually and idiotically charges that all these great Americans remained quiescent or actively helped the growth of a great conspiracy against the American people.

The Congressional Record may throw some light on the reasons Lowenthal wrote the book. At least Cong. Dondero's opinion deserves mention. From the record of September 1, 1950: "In the thirties, Lowenthal concentrated upon weakening our internal security by aiding an all-out Communist attack against the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In 1940 Lowenthal sent out anonymous memorandums, smearing the FBI, which fact can be attested to by many Washington newsmen, hoping to head off the FBI in its fight to protect our shores against the menace of Communism and Fascism at a time when the Nazis and Communists were allies. Lowenthal has worked diligently and deviously, but always relentlessly, to destroy the effectiveness of the FBI in its efforts to protect our country from the emissaries of Godless communism. He has always realized the FBI is the one agency he could not penetrate or intimidate. He has long known it was the one agency which blocked his efforts to completely undermine our internal security."

So, along with seven Presidents and 15 Attorneys-General of the United States, J. Edgar Hoover must consider himself as accused by inference of either allowing, permitting of furthering the growth of the FBI at the expense of the liberties of the American people. Objective history appears to be strongly on the side of the statesmen, and not Max Lowenthal.

It is probable that all Congressmen do not share Congressman Dondero's drastic opinion that no good American would care to be contaminated by Lowenthal's known presence. But a certain typical, very dry American skepticism of Lowenthal appears from the record of his testimony before the House Un-American Activities Comm. The testimony: Mr. Lowenthal: "The number of people that I didn't know were members of the Communist arty is something that sometimes makes my hair stand on end". . . . Mr. Russell: "Our's, too."

Storm, Rain And Robbery Strikes

Philadelphia, Nov., 25—(AP)— The season's worst storm brought plenty of rain-drenched customers to Harry Fox's hosiery shop today—but that wasn't all.

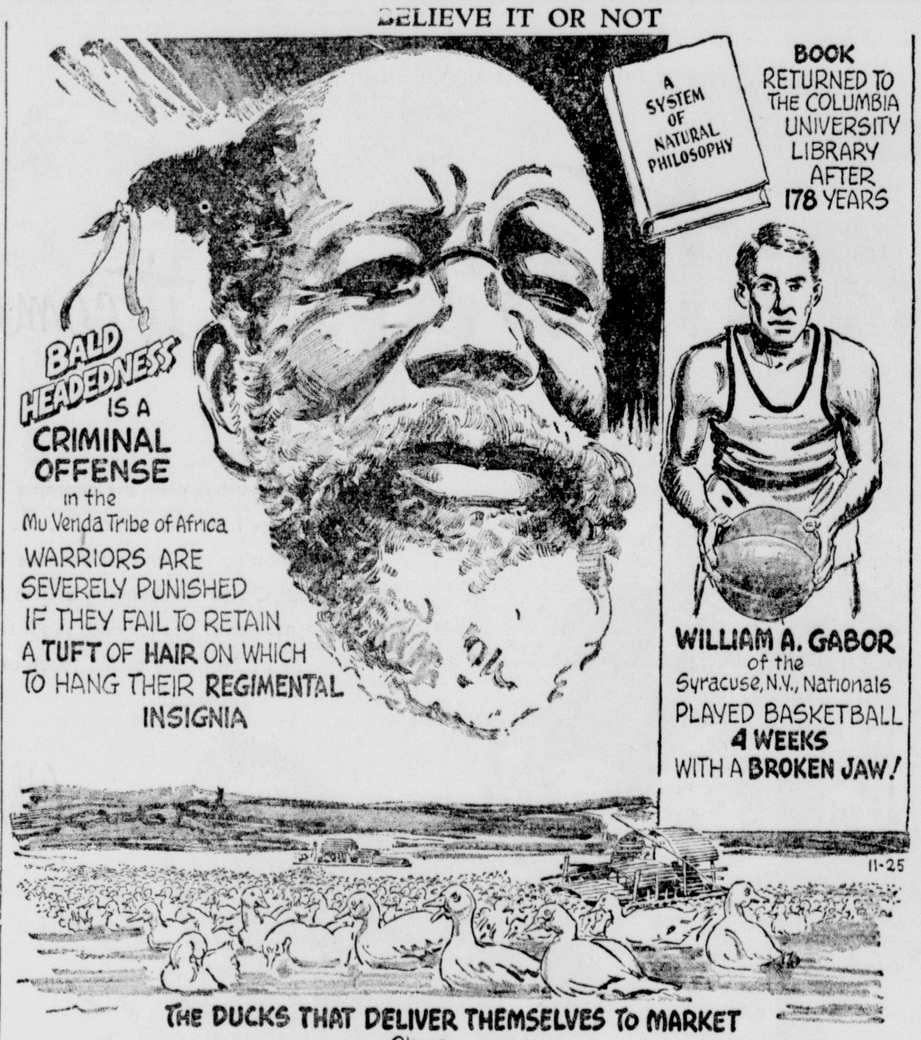

Fox was so busy waiting on a man wanting dry socks that for a moment he didn't quite under stand what a newcomer was demanding. Them he saw the pistol and heard the man's sharp order: "Get back there fast, both of you."

Fox and the customer ducked behind the counter, Fox handing over his cash.

"How about the socks?" The customer asked after the thief fled.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE FIGHT STARTS

The principal issue before the 82nd congress has been established by Dean Acheson. In an unprecedented attack on such Republican senators as Robert A. Taft, Homer Ferguson and William Knowland, he ridiculed "re-examinism. He called them "re-examinists.

So that is what it is to be: A fight over the re-examination of the secretly conducted foreign policy of the United States since 1943 (the Moscow and Teheran conferences). This foreign policy has brought us to a fighting war and close to a third general war in one generation.

Precisely why is it wrong to re-examine a policy and a series of acts which have produced nothing but failure—failure in China; failure in India; failure in Germany; failure in our relations with Great Britain? And to these failures must be added the confusions of the United Nations.

The need for re-examination is not to get even with anybody or to discredit anyone. It is rather to discover what can be salvaged out of what seems at this moment to be a hopeless situation. It can only remain hopeless as long as we are kept in ignorance as to our commitments.

Since the Moscow, Cairo and Teheran conferences in 1943, the American people have been ignorant as to these commitments, not only as to details but even as to the general considerations that led to them. Senator JJoe McCarthy's outcry last winter arose out of the shock as to the results but not the nature of the commitments.

One of the major impediments to getting at the truth is the so-called bipartisan foreign policy which was introduced in the 1944 election campaign to keep the Republicans from asking questions.

The Republican members of the senate committee on foreign relations should have been the watchmen at the gates; they should have examined our foreign policy and the deals that this country made with other countries. During the 80th congress, when the Republicans might have explored the problem, Senator Vandenberg pursued the bipartisan foreign policy to such an extent that the Republicans really assumed some of the responsibility for a policy the objectives of which were unknown to them.

For instance, in September, 1947, General Albert Wedemeyer presented his reports on China and Korea to the president. These reports were suppressed. I know the contents of both, although I do not say that I ever saw the one on Korea. But I do say that if the Wedemeyer reports had been examined and made public by the senate committee on foreign relations, we probably would not today have our sons dying on the Yalu river.

The Republican members of the aforesaid committee are: Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan; Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin; H. Alexander Smith, of New Jersey; Bourke B. Hickenlooper, of Iowa; and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts.

Senator Vandenberg has long been very sick. His participation in the 82nd congress will be limited by his health.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith, during many years, was a state department adherent, but having a conscience, he seems to have recently discovered that he has been misled. The degree of his revolt from bipartisanship has yet to be seen.

As for Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., he was on the Tydings committee and he might have forced the issue of the truth. This he did not do. Actually, he now represents the state department in the United Nations.

On the whole, this committee is not too competent and the Republican side of it is very weak. If this committee is to be of any value, it has to be reorganized and strengthened—particularly the Republican side.

Dean Acheson has a candidate for the Republicans, Sen. Wayne Morse, who generally votes New Deal and is strongly supported by the C. I. O. He has some seniority. Should has name be considered, it will result in such an outcry among the rank and file of Republicans that even seniority-ridden senators will hear it.

Among the senators whom Republicans would like to see on this committee are William Knowland of California and Homer Ferguson of Michigan and Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

If there is to be a re-examination, to use Dean Achesons phrase this is the committee to do it. As this committee stands, it is not manned for that job.

The cause of the fire is as yet undetermined.

Ship Fire Off N. Y. Under Control

New York, Nov. 25 —(AP)— The Norwegian American line motorship "Lyngenfjord" took fire off storm-swept Long Island today but reported later the blaze was under control.

The coast guard said at 6:45 p.m. (EST) that the ship reported it was proceeding to New York under its own power.

The ship's S.O.S. was received at 5 p.m. (EST), the coast guard said. Her position was given as "just south of Shinnecock Bay," which is off the summer resort of Southampton, 90 miles from New York City.

The coast guard cutter "Yeaton' was sent to aid the ship.

The freighter "Steelworker," which was near the scene, said it also was answering the Lyngenfjord's call for help.

The burning freighter is of 3.800 tons. Built in 1948, she is 406 feet long.

Charles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

New York This is the day when we usually look at the mail. There are vast piles of it here, and some of it should be interesting. In fact it is all interesting to me.

I don't know anybody who doesn't love to receive mail. I know several persons, one of them quite a man of the world, who consider the mail delivery the most important event of the day.

Our smiling friend from Independence is the first President of the United States to fail to advance and improve mail service and, instead, to damage and hamper it. This is too bad, and Harry doesn't know how much damage this is doing to him in the estimation of all the people, not merely the business men.

Our mail service was our pride. We bragged about it abroad. I never knew a postman who was not courteous, civil, smiling, and anxious to serve. Every postman has a sense of his own importance to those whom he serves. With that goes a sense of responsibility to serve well, courteously, and as a worthy representative of his government in one of its most important aspects.

I don't know how it is where you live, but in our part of the world, where a lot of people live the postal service is going to the dogs. I think it is better in Spain, where one sometimes waits a day or so for the delivery of a letter, but the postman comes, singing a gay song smiling, and removing his cap to ladies and elderly men.

We have a polite postman on our home route, who was young when he started carrying those precious letters, and is now white-haired. He has never been overpaid. Iassure you but he remains the faithful servant of the people, though over-worked and treated like a parasite by his government.

If Harry would listen to me he would restore postal service and the pride of the postal workers in their jobs.

I have many letters from postoffice employes, but I do not print them lest the writers get into trouble. I understand many of their difficulties, including that chief one, feeding their families.Let us hope for better days and a new policy in the postoffice.

Friend Harnett Kane was in town briefly, and circumstances prevented me from seeing him. He left a note saying that his new novel, "Pathway to the Stars," is having a wonderful reception from the critics. It deserves every good word. For Author Kane I wish and predict continued success for many more years and books.

Mrs. J.E.Beasley, Fargo, Ga., writes me about those feed bags that I was wondering about recently She reports that the feed bags, (I don't know what kind of feed comes in them) are of good material, with a texture somewhat like linen and much can be done with them by clever women.

At the country fair in Fargo (not N. D.), the booth displaying articles made of feed bags took first prize. One lady displayed a lovely rug, made from bags of many colors. Another showed a fine luncheon cloth that cost nothing except the thread and some hours of pleasant work.

All this is new to me, but it must be extremely interesting. I like people who can make something out of nothing. My mother made my baby clothes out of flour sacks, and so far as I know they were satisfactory.

In Washington With

BASCOM TIMMONS

The women suffered a setback in the last election, but let there be no cracks about that outdated business of "the weaker sex. After 34 years, since the first female came to congress even the diehards admit that women are there to stay. In fact, most of those who get to Washington stay as long as the men, and have just as strong support back home.

There were 10 women in the 81st congress, and there will be 9 in the 82nd, including one woman senator, Margaret Chase Smith (R.-Me.). Five were elected in the house, including Edith Nourse Rogers (R.-Mass.) 14th term Frances Bolton (R.-O.) 7th term, Katharine St. George, (R.-N. Y.) 3rd term, Cecil M. Harden (R.-Ind.) 2nd term. All four of them have served consecutively, meaning they have never been defeated. The same is true of Edna F. Kelly, New York City Democrat, the first woman ever to be elected from the metropolis, and Reva Beck Bosone (D.-Utah) both of whom were reelected for a second term.

Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Bolton, two of the most highly respected members of congress, are wealthy widows of members, whom they succeeded. Mrs. St. George is a first cousin of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose New Deal program she strongly opposed and is married to George Baker St. George, a nephew of the late George Baker, one of the countrys outstanding financiers. Mrs. Harden has been married for 36 years, and has a son who is a physician. Mrs. Kelly is the widow of a New York City court justice. Mrs. Bosone is a widow, a lawyer, an ex-legislator and judge.

Unlike some of their males colleagues, they do not hestitate to tell their ages—except Mrs. St. George and Mrs. Bosone—Mrs. Rogers is 69, Mrs. Bolton 65, Mrs. Harden 56, Mrs Kelly 44. Senator Smith of Maine, a widow, is 51.

Two new women Republican members are Mrs. Marguerite Church (Rep .Ill.), an energetic woman who succeeds her husband who died a few months ago, and Miss Ruth Thompson (Rep. Mich.)

Mrs. Church may be here for a long time. A woman of middle age, she campaigned constantly for her husband. From a dry district, her "cakes and tea parties were well known here and in the erudite Evanstan, Ill., district she represents, which is the national headquarters of the W. C. T. U. She is popular and has personality.

Other women have made records in congress as outstanding as that of Mrs. Rogers, who has probably introduced more successful veterans legislation than any other member. Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, who will retire at the end of this year, served 13 terms —26 years—and was chairman of three different house committees. She has sponsored many labor bills.

The first woman in congress, Miss Jeanette Rankin (Rep. Mont) not only voted against World War I, but returned years later in time to vote against World War II. She was the only woman ever to attend a dinner of the exclusively male Gridiron Club. After that, the club changed its dinner rules to bar women.

Rep. Alice Robertson (Dem. Okla.) sponsored much Indian legislation. The late Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick (Re. Ill.), daughter of Mark Hanna, introduced the first government reorganization legislation during the Hoover administration.

The women are really out of the experimental stage, and many Capitol attaches believe they work harder than men.

While the United States was voting on Nov. 7 to continue its free way of life, the Soviet embassy here was celebrating the November Revolution which put the Bolsheviks in power in Russia. There were upsets in our election, but things didn't go too smoothly at the embassy, where a local caterer reports a last minute ruckus over a giant cake, which was the centerpiece of a table loaded with food.

The caterer says the embassy directed him to crown the cake with a simulated sheaf of golden wheat and below it, a hammer and sickle, emblem of the U. S. S R. The emblem was also to be a yellow matching the wheat. When the cake was all made an emissary from embassy dashed in orders to change it. Some higher up said the hammer and sickle in yellow would not do—it should be in red, but that had been vetoed, too.

So the big cake's top was smooth, except for the Roman numerals "XXXIII" on top. It was the 33rd anniversary of the uprising in Moscow and Leningrad, which was responsible for all the present world turmoil.

PITTSBURGH, PA. HAS RECORD SNOW

Transportation, Business Operations Are Practically At Standstill

Pittsburgh, Nov. 25 —(AP)— The heaviest continuous snowfall in Pittsburgh's history brought transportation and business to a near standstill in this industrial metropolis today. At least five deaths resulted.

City streets and suburban areas were buried under 22 inches of snow. It was much deeper in drifts.

The weather bureau told Pittsburghers to expect more snow flurries tonight—and predicted the official depth may go to 25 inches. The record is 26.2 inches which fell in 1925.

The snow kept thousands away from work. A few slogged miles to their jobs in snow above the waist and temperatures that hovered around the 20-degree mark.

In most cases it was either walk or stay at home. Nearly all bus, trolley, auto and airline transportation halted. Trains ran hours behind schedule.

Taxi companies stopped service at noon. One by one their cabs became mired hopelessly in snowdrifts. A taxi spokesman said:

"We'd dispatch a cab and it wouldn't even reach its destination. We had to give up."

The huge United States Steel Corporation began shutting down Pittsburgh district plants employing more than 50,000. Neither manpower nor materials could get in or out of the plants. Other big steel firms said they are trying to continue.

Long distance calls were placed on an emergency basis.

The downtown area was deserted. Big department stores failed to open.

Some theaters opened to admit a few straggling customers. They came as much as to get out of the relentless snow as they did to see movies, one manager said.

Maintenance workers at the University of Pittsburgh gave up trying to clear out Pitt Stadium for the Pitt-Penn State football game scheduled today. The contest was postponed until 1:30 p.m. (EST) Monday.

Five deaths from heart attacks in the Pittsburgh district were attributed to exhaustion from battling the storm.

At Erie, Pa., a man was killed by a New York Central train which he failed to see in the blinding snowstorm. An automobile collided with a snowplow near Washington, Pa., killing another man.

Newspapers were unable to distribute Saturday afternoon editions.

"We didn't have a chance to get them out," a spokesman said.

"So we started work immediately on our Sunday editions with hopes we could get them out."

The heavy snow caved in a grocery store roof in suburban Aliquippa, causing $15,000 damage. Other structures around the city collapsed under the weight of tons of snow.

The weather kicked up in other parts of Pennsylvania especially the western sections.

In St. Marys, a town of 10,000, it was rain and not snow that caused the trouble.

The Elk River overflowed its banks and gave the town its worst flood in history. Thirty-one persons were evacuated from their homes. No casualties developed.

Tyrone's business district also was flooded.

All power in the railroad center of Altoona went off as ice-coated trees buckled and tore down power lines. Much of the community of Clearfield also was without electric power due to heavy ice.

Roads were blocked everywhere Washington, Pa., had 27 inches of snow and state police said "we're absolutely snowbound."

A lot of trucks and autos stalled along Route 40 some 30 miles from Pittsburgh near the West Virginia border. State police reported "there could be dead persons in them for all we know."

Butler — 30 miles from Pittsburgh—had 19 inches of snow and was all snarled up. Meadville reported 23 inches and the port city of Erie 24.

There was no snow across the Alleghenies in eastern Pennsylvania but near-hurrican winds made up for it. Wind velocity reacehd 65 miles an hour in Philadelphia. Houses, billboards and telephone poles toppled in windswept rains.

The federal - state flood forecasting service said heavy rains in the Susquehanna River watershed will send flood waters into Huntingdon and Williamsport.

The snow blanket over Pittsburgh developed all kinds of problems for the 1,500,000 residents of the metropolitan area.

A night workman said it took him seven hours to go the 10 miles from East Pittsburh to the downtown section of the city. It was almost quitting time when he got there.

It took Associated Press photographer Wally Stein three hours to walk seven miles from his house to the office with pictures for wire - photo transmission. Said Stein:

"When you're wading through drifts that are sometimes waist deep seven miles are like 50 miles."

His hands got numb before he reached the office "and I thought my nose was frozen stiff."

Police reported no crime overnight due to the snow but they were plenty rushed getting expectant mothers to hospitals and keeping traffic unsnarled.

Housewives, with an eye on the Sunday dinner menu, found the going rough. Many didn't dare the drifts between them and neighborhood groceries.

Others plowed through deep snow to find their shopping places closed down tight.

In several shopping centers only one to two shops opened their doors. Women crowded in to buy household necessities. There were long lines of shoppers at stores in isolated area.

A bakery truck driver stalled his truck in a drift in one residential area then decided to sell his bread to snowbound housewives for 25 cents a loaf.

ROUGH WEATHER COOLS MARKET

After Climbing To 20-Year Peak, Stock Trading Levels Off

New York, Nov. 25—(AP)—Violent weather helped to cool off buying enthusiasm for stocks today.

After climbing to a 20-year peak for two days running, the market leveled off in a lack-luster trading. Demand for radio-television issues livened up dealings a bit but on the whole investors and speculators were inclined to go low and slow.

A slashing rain and wind storm that crippled transportation and communication facilities played a part in deadening the pulse of the market.

During the week the market seemed to be following the path of least resistance and on one day at least followed it with outright abandon. Traders had very few specific news developments to work on but they placed a good deal of faith in nothing more solid than hope.

On Monday and Tuesday prices churned around with no decisive movement one way or another. Coming on top of the market's snappy rise in the preceding week the pattern was faintly ominous. Based on the record, Monday and Tuesday could have been the prelude to a sharp reaction.

On Wednesday, though, the market broke out of its rut with a fast rise. Prices on average hit a 20-year peak and volume approached the 3,000,000 share mark.

On Friday, after the Thanksgiving Day recess, an opening gust of buying pushed prices still higher. Demand cooled off before the day was over but the market closed with a comfortable advance.

In Saturday's market gains and losses were almost exactly divided 315 up against 322 down out of a total 917 issues traded.

Sales amounted to only 790,000 shares compared with 1,050,000 a week ago.

During the week the market seemed to be following the path of least resistance and on one day at least followed it with outright abandon. Traders had very few specific news developments to work on but they placed a good deal of faith in nothing more solid than hope.

On Monday and Tuesday prices churned around with no decisive movement one way or another. Coming on top of the market's snappy rise in the preceding week the pattern was faintly ominous. Based on the record, Monday and Tuesday could have been the prelude to a sharp reaction.

On Wednesday, though, the market broke out of its rut with a fast rise. Prices on average hit a 20-year peak and volume approached the 3,000,000 share mark.

On Friday, after the Thanksgiving Day recess, an opening gust of buying pushed prices still higher. Demand cooled off before the day was over but the market closed with a comfortable advance.

In Saturday's market gains and losses were almost exactly divided 315 up against 322 down out of a total 917 issues traded.

Sales amounted to only 790,000 shares compared with 1,050,000 a week ago.

Crude Production

World crude oil production for June has been estimated at a record 10,430,000 barrels a day by the U. S. bureau of mines. Venezuela and the United States accounted for most of the 620,000 barrel increase over the previous month. Venezuela was up 319,000 barrels a day, the United States 235,000.

The nation's crude output can be expected to drop again December 1 when a 160,000 barrel cutback becomes effective in Texas.

National production for the week ending November 1 averaged 5,882,400 barrels a day, compared to a year earlier 5,211,050.

GASOLINE AND BUTANE INCREASE

Boost In Production Brought By Gas Conservation Programs

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Gas conservation programs have been a big factor in a postwar boom in natural gasoline production.

Final production figures for 1950 natural gasoline and such allied products as butane and propane probably will tripe 1940 output.

A bureau of mines report this week said production the first nine months this year was 5,527,282,000 gallons or 16.1 per cent over the same period last year.

The American Petroleum Institute places 1949 output at 6,561,000,000 gallons, compared to 2,300,000,000 and only 218,000,000 in 1917.

Numerous natural gasoline and gas cycling plants have been constructed since the end of World War II.

A recent survey made by petroleum refiner magazine lists 583 such plants in the United States, each with daily capacities of 500 gallons or more. The overall capacity is placed at 28,211,664 gallons a day, including propane and other liquefied petroleum gases.

Much oil was produced during World War II without operators giving heavy attention to conservation of oil well gas. The primary problem was maximum crude output. By the end of the war millions of cubic feet of gas were being flared or burned in the open field each day.

Many of the new plants are a result of conservation officials cracking down on gas flaring since the war. The Texas railroad commission threatened to shutdown many oil fields until flaring was stopped or reduced to an absolute minimum.

The industry's answer was plant construction or pipe facilities tieing a field wit a gas processing plant.

These plant take the gas produced with oil and strip it of such liquid as gasoline, butane and propane. The gas, after stripping, is sold to transmission and utility companies or returned to the underground oil reservoir. In many fields, gas returned underground maintains pressure in the reservoir and prolongs the natural flow of oil wells.

Petroleum refiner estimates $100,000,000 will be spent by the industry next year on natural gasoline plant construction. Another $30,000,000 will be spent on plant operations.

Industry Labor

A bureau of labor statistics report says the oil industry now is employing approximately 400,000 ploye for each of the nation's proing division.

The bureau predicts the industry can expect a gradual increase in employment the next ten years.

Weatherman Is Advertiser For Service Station

Although the mercury stood at 70 degrees on Friday, weather Forecaster W. Howard Ulsh drove in and got his supply.

Whereupon Parks posted this big sign:

"The weatherman just purchased anti-freeze — how about you?" His supply went like hot (oops) cakes.

And the mercury dropped to 16 degrees here last night, the lowest November reading on record for this old town.

Los Angeles, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Georgia Randall obtained a divorce because her husband, Charles Arthur, told her he was out "picking strawberries." This was his reply, she testified in superior court yesterday, when she asked where he'd been all night."

COTTON

New York

New York, Nov. 25.— (AP) — Cotton futures recovered part of Friday's sharp price break in active trading today. On and shortly after the opening the market was called upon to absorb a great deal of selling which was carried from Friday. Shortly thereafter the pressure subsided and with reappearance of trade buying and some reinstating of sold out positions, the market rallied briskly.

Futures closed $1.00 to $4.00 a bale higher than the previous close.

New Orleans

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures declined here early today but reacted sharply upward on a renewal of mill buying and weekend short covering.

Closing prices were steady, 95 cents to $2.75 a bale higher.

The early selling in the near months was stimulated by continued favorable Korean war news. Long liquidation in the October position was attributed to disappointment over Secretary of Agriculture Brannan's announcement of a 90 per cent of parity support program for the next crop and below freezing temperatures over most of the belt.

It was claimed that the cold weather would kill the boll weevil and lessen damage to the next crop from this source.

Middling 15-16th spot cotton advanced $2.75 a bale to 43.00 cents a pound. Local spot sales amounted to 2,162 bales.

WORLD'S LATEST MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

Other principal groups lolled in a narrow range with no decisive trend.

A damaging storm in the Metropolitan area crippled all principal mediums of transportations and held attendance in Wall street to a minimum. Communications also suffered from the weather and as a result business leaned to the skimpy side.

Turnover slowed to a rate of around 700,000 shares for the two-hour session.

In the TV division gains ran to around $1 a share. Elsewhere changes either way were limited to 50 cents a share or less for the most part.

Higher most of the time were Motorola, Zenith radio, Philco, American Bosch, U. S. Leather, Textron, Mack Trucks, Woolworth, Air Reduction, Santa Fe, and Gulf Oil.

Holding back were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Schenley, Kennecott Copper, Westinghouse Electric, N. Y. Central, Texas Co., and U. S. Gypsum.

In the curb plus signs appeared for barium steel, catalin, cities service, continental foundry, fansteel metallurgical, Kaiser-Frazer, N. J. zinc, Northrop aircraft, and Pancoastal oil.

Corporate bonds coasted along without getting very far one way or the other.

Crude Production

World crude oil production for June has been estimated at a record 10,430,000 barrels a day by the U. S. bureau of mines. Venezuela and the United States accounted for most of the 620,000 barrel increase over the previous month. Venezuela was up 319,000 barrels a day, the United States 235,000.

The nation's crude output can be expected to drop again December 1 when a 160,000 barrel cutback becomes effective in Texas.

National production for the week ending November 1 averaged 5,882,400 barrels a day, compared to a year earlier 5,211,050.

GASOLINE AND BUTANE INCREASE

Boost In Production Brought By Gas Conservation Programs

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Gas conservation programs have been a big factor in a postwar boom in natural gasoline production.

Final production figures for 1950 natural gasoline and such allied products as butane and propane probably will tripe 1940 output.

A bureau of mines report this week said production the first nine months this year was 5,527,282,000 gallons or 16.1 per cent over the same period last year.

The American Petroleum Institute places 1949 output at 6,561,000,000 gallons, compared to 2,300,000,000 and only 218,000,000 in 1917.

Numerous natural gasoline and gas cycling plants have been constructed since the end of World War II.

A recent survey made by petroleum refiner magazine lists 583 such plants in the United States, each with daily capacities of 500 gallons or more. The overall capacity is placed at 28,211,664 gallons a day, including propane and other liquefied petroleum gases.

Much oil was produced during World War II without operators giving heavy attention to conservation of oil well gas. The primary problem was maximum crude output. By the end of the war millions of cubic feet of gas were being flared or burned in the open field each day.

Many of the new plants are a result of conservation officials cracking down on gas flaring since the war. The Texas railroad commission threatened to shutdown many oil fields until flaring was stopped or reduced to an absolute minimum.

The industry's answer was plant construction or pipe facilities tieing a field wit a gas processing plant.

These plant take the gas produced with oil and strip it of such liquid as gasoline, butane and propane. The gas, after stripping, is sold to transmission and utility companies or returned to the underground oil reservoir. In many fields, gas returned underground maintains pressure in the reservoir and prolongs the natural flow of oil wells.

Petroleum refiner estimates $100,000,000 will be spent by the industry next year on natural gasoline plant construction. Another $30,000,000 will be spent on plant operations.

Industry Labor

A bureau of labor statistics report says the oil industry now is employing approximately 400,000 ploye for each of the nation's proing division.

The bureau predicts the industry can expect a gradual increase in employment the next ten years.

Weatherman Is Advertiser For Service Station

Although the mercury stood at 70 degrees on Friday, weather Forecaster W. Howard Ulsh drove in and got his supply.

Whereupon Parks posted this big sign:

"The weatherman just purchased anti-freeze — how about you?" His supply went like hot (oops) cakes.

And the mercury dropped to 16 degrees here last night, the lowest November reading on record for this old town.

COTTON

New York

New York, Nov. 25.— (AP) — Cotton futures recovered part of Friday's sharp price break in active trading today. On and shortly after the opening the market was called upon to absorb a great deal of selling which was carried from Friday. Shortly thereafter the pressure subsided and with reappearance of trade buying and some reinstating of sold out positions, the market rallied briskly.

Futures closed $1.00 to $4.00 a bale higher than the previous close.

New Orleans

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures declined here early today but reacted sharply upward on a renewal of mill buying and weekend short covering.

Closing prices were steady, 95 cents to $2.75 a bale higher.

The early selling in the near months was stimulated by continued favorable Korean war news. Long liquidation in the October position was attributed to disappointment over Secretary of Agriculture Brannan's announcement of a 90 per cent of parity support program for the next crop and below freezing temperatures over most of the belt.

It was claimed that the cold weather would kill the boll weevil and lessen damage to the next crop from this source.

Middling 15-16th spot cotton advanced $2.75 a bale to 43.00 cents a pound. Local spot sales amounted to 2,162 bales.

WORLD'S LATEST MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

Other principal groups lolled in a narrow range with no decisive trend.

A damaging storm in the Metropolitan area crippled all principal mediums of transportations and held attendance in Wall street to a minimum. Communications also suffered from the weather and as a result business leaned to the skimpy side.

Turnover slowed to a rate of around 700,000 shares for the two-hour session.

In the TV division gains ran to around $1 a share. Elsewhere changes either way were limited to 50 cents a share or less for the most part.

Higher most of the time were Motorola, Zenith radio, Philco, American Bosch, U. S. Leather, Textron, Mack Trucks, Woolworth, Air Reduction, Santa Fe, and Gulf Oil.

Holding back were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Schenley, Kennecott Copper, Westinghouse Electric, N. Y. Central, Texas Co., and U. S. Gypsum.

In the curb plus signs appeared for barium steel, catalin, cities service, continental foundry, fansteel metallurgical, Kaiser-Frazer, N. J. zinc, Northrop aircraft, and Pancoastal oil.

Corporate bonds coasted along without getting very far one way or the other.

NEW APPROACH EUROPEAN UNITY

National Sovereignty Would Apparently Surrender Little By Little

Strasbourg, France, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The European consultative assembly set out today on a new road toward federation, with a stopover scheduled at "special authorities."

"Special authorities" is the disarming title for a gradual and progressive delegation of power which assemblymen propo to lead to an eventual genuine ···thority over western Europe's defense, foreign policy, finances and commerce.

It is a new name for federal government.

National sovereignty, it seems, is to be surrendered piece by piece, instead of in a single package, but it will be surrendered just the same if the assembly has its way

The assembly doesen't always have its way. A discussion group made up of delegates from 15 European nations, it forms the lower house of the council of Europe—a sort of embryo parliament. Assembly decisions are supject to veto by any member of the committee of foreign ministers, the upper house.

The assembly has begun work on a new statute intended to bring member nations into closer union. For the immediate present, the assembly has:

1. Called for West German troops to take an equal role in a unified European army, linked to the north Atlantic alliance, under a permanent defense organization. Acceding to British reserve, the assembly omitted the word "supernational" from this decision, but refused to rule it out for future consideration.

2. Encouraged member governments to set up a joint special authorities for economic, agricultural and industrial matters and eventually for defense. The XIX nations now negotiating a treaty based on the Schuman coal - steel plan—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — were expected to complete their talks as soon as possible.

Tito Vows Fight To The Last Against Russian Absorption

(Editor's Note: Premier Marshal Tito, symbol of the break in the chain of Communist solidarity, stands at a crossroads today. With Yugoslavia suffering from the worst drought in her history, the big question today is: Can Tito hold out against his economic troubles and the heavy pressure of Soviet Russia? President Truman has told congressional leaders it is of vital importance that Yugoslavia, with her powerful armed force, be kept from falling into the Moscow fold.

How does Tito himself assess his chances? In this exclusive question and answer interview, veteran AP correspondent Alex H. Singleton probes into Tito's views of his own position and his prospects for the future.)

By Alex H. Singleton

Belgrade, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Premier Marshal Josip Broz Tito contends Yugoslavia never will be conquered "except over the dead bodies of its people." He asserted that "if our independence is threatened even more" by the Russian-led cominform countries "we shall buy arms from the west."

In a Thanksgiving day interview with the Associated Press, Tito expressed his appreciation for prospective American aid, but said he hoped it would come soon to relieve the hunger here resulting from one of the worst droughts in the country's history.

Dapper in a light gray flannel suit, Tito showed no signs of worry over the possibility that Russia or the cominform countries under satellite control will invade this nation soon in their expansionist campaign.

At no point did he show any sign of retreat from his position that Yugoslavia must be regarded as an 'e'qual partner" in any relations either with the east or west on political or economic questions.

While he talked, Tito chain smoked from a small pipe holding a home grown cigarette which one day Yugoslavia hopes to export in large quantities. He discussed frankly Yugoslavia's current situation without advance notice of the questions put to him.

He dealt clearly with the question of what Yugoslavia will do if Russia decides upon an invasion in an effort to break Tito's regime and bring Yugoslavia under its rule after a split which already has lasted more than two years.

Tito, himself, showed no personal sign of disturbance over such a prospect. He took a deep puff on his cigarette and remarked: "We have an old saying in Yugoslavia — only over our dead bodies."

A member of his staff brought in glasses of slivovica, rakia, brandy and coffee. The marshal drank but little. He listened to questions intently and he came up with quick answers.

Many of these questions will come up again soon when congress takes up a bill proposed by President Truman to provide Yugoslavia with something between $80,000,000 and $105,000,000 to tide the country over until the next harvest.

Some of the questions and answers follow:

1. How much does the country need in addition to the $105,000,000 worth of foodstuffs requested from the United States?

A. Of course, the $105,000,000 cannot make up for everything we lost in this year's harvest, but the application of measures we have undertaken, like economy drives and reducing supplies, will make it possible for us to get through this period until the next harvest, although not easily.

Q. Does Yugoslavia anticipate any aid from other countries such as the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia?

A. According to information received so far, England would come into consideration. I have also heard, although unofficially, that the French government has expressed the will to help us, but, I repeat this is unofficial.

Q. In order to be effective how soon should this aid begin to arrive?

A. In order to be effective it would have to come now, in December and January, especially as regards certain categories of articles such as fat, flour and other high caloric foods.

In response to a question about whether American observers would be permitted to oversee the distribution, Tito replied:

"Provision has been made for the arrival of some people to work administratively. They will have a chance to see the distribution. That means that everyone will get what he has coming to him in the shops selling articles on cards. Those who are not able to work will get the food free. We could not accept some kind of control because that would mean distrust in the Yugoslav government."

Q. With many of the grain bins already nearly empty, when do you believe the crucial period will arrive? February?

A. In certain sections even before that, but mostly in February and March.

Q. With an investment in agricultural machinery, do you think that farm production could be increased—barring another drought—to the point where Yugoslavia would have no need for future foodstuffs from abroad and once again become an export food country?

A. Of course, the improvement of agriculture, along with reclamation, drainage, increased fertility and better fertilizer will raise production tremendously and we will go from extensive to intensive cultivation of the land. This will, of course, increase yield. It requires many machines and other means. Two to three years will be needed for this and then, of course with favorable meteorological conditions, we should have enough not only to feed our own population but also to export agricultural produce. In the first place come the industrial plans, then corn. Wheat we would rather keep for our own needs.

Q. There has been considerable speculation in the United States congress over what would happen in the event of a Russian attack upon Yugoslavia. I would appreciate your views as an expert in dealing with a somewhat comparable situation during the second world war.

A. When talking about an attack no country, of course, would allow itself to be attacked willingly. It is a well-known fact that the Yugoslav people have, in the past, put a high value on their independence and that they have endured the greatest sacrifices in order to preserve it. This also holds true for the present situation. If attack comes our people would know how to defend themselves. I believe, and it is easy to be convinced of this, that our peoples would give up their independence only at a dear price, only at the sacrifice of their own blood and the blood of the aggressors. Figuratively speaking, only over their dead bodies.

Q. In the event of a cominform attack, what steps would Yugoslavia take? Would the government invite the United Nations intervention?

A. That is understood.

Q. I realize the basic principe of your relations with both the east and west has been on terms of 'equal rights.' If Russia would now approach you and offer this country 'equal rights,' would you consider a reapproachment? Do you feel that the present Soviet government of Russia could be counted upon to live up to the terms of any such agreement?

A. We could not reject it if the Russians were to offer at least bearable relations such as they have with other countries.

Q. Could Yugoslavia trust Russia in any agreement?

A. I don't know. That would be only guesswork. Experience is the test. I cannot say no, because I do not know what they are thinking and what conslusions they have drawn from their unsuccessful attempts toward Yugoslavia.

Q. Does Yugoslavia contemplate joining the European economic aid program?

A. Why should we? Some countries are even now leaving the Marshall plan because they no longer need it.

He said this problem amounted not only to an economic but also a political question. He added: "It would only create superflous difficulties. We cannot only think about the opinions of people abroad but must also think about the opinions of our own people."

U. S. Eighth Army Advanced Headquarters, Korea, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Released American prisoners of war said today they believed their Chinese Communist captors tried to make a "fifth column" out of them.

The prisoners first were given Red indoctrination lectures which assailed American political and military leaders.

Of the first 27 wounded Americans to be freed, 19 said the Chinese told them:

"If you are forced to fight again, tell your friends to fire into the air. Then give up."

A summary of the statements of the liberated men was released by the eighth army. The prisoners were freed near American lines Tuesday.

Chinese Communist interrogators who questioned the prisoners before setting them free told the Americans that Chinese troops in Korea were "volunteers."

That has been a major point in Chinese Red propaganda broadcasts, but has not been borne out by prisoners captured by United Nations forces. Chinese Red prisoners have shown surprise when asked if they volunteered.

The interrogator also said the Chinese Communists did not like war but felt it was necessary to form a united Korea.

The Americans said all of their group had been questioned at least once. Some were questioned as many as five times.

Among the questions asked were these:

Do you own property? how many brothers and sisters do you have? what work do you do? do you vote? what percentage of your officers are college graduates? what percentage of your officers are West Pointers?

Only two liberated soldiers reported being questioned on the unit.

The men said they were fed rice, barley, corn, meat, fish and greens and the same food Chinese troops were given.

All the soldiers said they were well treated. Medical supplies, however were limited to bandages, iodine and morphine.

A book on China (title not given) was turned over to the soldiers. One of the prisoners was assigned to read it to his fellow captives.

Shortly before their release, the Americans were given lectures denouncing American leaders. The eighth army release did not name them but correspondents learned the leaders assailed were President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson and General MacArthur.

The prisoners were told that millions of Chinese had signed the Stockholm appeal, a document issued at a Communist "peace" conference in Sweden.

One Red lecturer held up a package of American cigarettes and said "here is why you are fighting this war."

This was not explained but an eighth army officer said he assumed it was a jibe at capitalism.

The Americans said the Chinese who addressed them "ran down Nationalist China" but made no mention of the Russians or the Soviet Union. They saw no Russians while they were held.

The Chinese were dressed in winter uniforms, including padded trousers, jackets and fur caps. They carried extra shoes and blankets in their packs.

The Americans noted that some Red officers wore uniforms of a finer grade of cloth than ordinary troops.

The Americans said they were not required to work. They ate, slept and rested when not being questioned.

They said at first they were led to believe mail could be sent out, but later were told that postal facilities would not permit it.

When one American said he needed shoes he was given a pair of straw woven sandals.

Some of the American soldiers observed that Chinese troops did not seem to care how the war went. The Reds felt, however, they were winning.

A second group of 30 American prisoners of war who were recovered Friday are being questioned by eighth army officers.

Stork Delivers Bundle In Snow

Elyria, O., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The store came to Frank and Cordelia Walko today—in a snowdrift.

The couple left their farm home seven miles south of here in their car this morning and headed for nearby Elyria. Soon after Mrs. Walko learned the stork was due to arrive. The car bogged down in the snow a mile from their home.

Then along came a neighbor, James Phelan, who put the couple in his car. But it bogged down too, this time four miles away from the Walko home.

Walko and Phelan then carried the expectant mother to the nearby farmhouse of Norman Youngeberg. The men stumbled when they were nearly at the doorstep of the house and Mrs. Walko fell into a snowdrift.

It was there that a seven-pound baby girl was born to the Walkos.

Both mother and daughter were reported doing nicely, thank you.

FOR HIGH COMPRESSION... IT'S THE "ROCKET"!

Ever since Oldsmobile introduced the "Rocket" Engine two years ago, seems like everybody claims "high-compression"—but nobody explains it. The phrase simply means squeezing the gasoline into a smaller space before exploding it. This gets more power out of the same amount of fuel. But the engine must be designed for high-compression all the way through to assure smooth, quiet, gas-saving performance. The "Rocket" is 100% high-compression—from the crankshaft out. And the lowest-priced "Rocket" Engine car is Oldsmobile's "88." Makes good sense to try it soon—doesn't it?

NEW APPROACH EUROPEAN UNITY

National Sovereignty Would Apparently Surrender Little By Little

Strasbourg, France, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The European consultative assembly set out today on a new road toward federation, with a stopover scheduled at "special authorities."

"Special authorities" is the disarming title for a gradual and progressive delegation of power which assemblymen propo to lead to an eventual genuine thority over western Europe's defense foreign policy, finances and commerce.

It is a new name for federal government.

National sovereignty, it seems, is to be surrendered piece by piece, instead of in a single package, but it will be surrendered just the same if the assembly has its way

The assembly doesen't always have its way. A discussion group made up of delegates from 15 European nations, it forms the lower house of the council of Europe—a sort of embryo parliament. Assembly decisions are supject to veto by any member of the committee of foreign ministers, the upper house.

The assembly has begun work on a new statute intended to bring member nations into closer union. For the immediate present, the assembly has:

1. Called for West German troops to take an equal role in a unified European army, linked to the north Atlantic alliance, under a permanent defense organization. Acceding to British reserve, the assembly omitted the word "supernational" from this decision, but refused to rule it out for future consideration.

2. Encouraged member governments to set up a joint special authorities for economic, agricultural and industrial matters and eventually for defense. The XIX nations now negotiating a treaty based on the Schuman coal - steel plan—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — were expected to complete their talks as soon as possible.

Tito Vows Fight To The Last Against Russian Absorption

(Editor's Note: Premier Marshal Tito, symbol of the break in the chain of Communist solidarity, stands at a crossroads today. With Yugoslavia suffering from the worst drought in her history, the big question today is: Can Tito hold out against his economic troubles and the heavy pressure of Soviet Russia? President Truman has told congressional leaders it is of vital importance that Yugoslavia, with her powerful armed force, be kept from falling into the Moscow fold.

How does Tito himself assess his chances? In this exclusive question and answer interview, veteran AP correspondent Alex H. Singleton probes into Tito's views of his own position and his prospects for the future.)

By Alex H. Singleton

Belgrade, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Premier Marshal Josip Broz Tito contends Yugoslavia never will be conquered "except over the dead bodies of its people." He asserted that "if our independence is threatened even more" by the Russian-led cominform countries "we shall buy arms from the west."

In a Thanksgiving day interview with the Associated Press, Tito expressed his appreciation for prospective American aid, but said he hoped it would come soon to relieve the hunger here resulting from one of the worst droughts in the country's history.

Dapper in a light gray flannel suit, Tito showed no signs of worry over the possibility that Russia or the cominform countries under satellite control will invade this nation soon in their expansionist campaign.

At no point did he show any sign of retreat from his position that Yugoslavia must be regarded as an 'e'qual partner" in any relations either with the east or west on political or economic questions.

While he talked, Tito chain smoked from a small pipe holding a home grown cigarette which one day Yugoslavia hopes to export in large quantities. He discussed frankly Yugoslavia's current situation without advance notice of the questions put to him.

He dealt clearly with the question of what Yugoslavia will do if Russia decides upon an invasion in an effort to break Tito's regime and bring Yugoslavia under its rule after a split which already has lasted more than two years.

Tito, himself, showed no personal sign of disturbance over such a prospect. He took a deep puff on his cigarette and remarked: "We have an old saying in Yugoslavia — only over our dead bodies."

A member of his staff brought in glasses of slivovica, rakia, brandy and coffee. The marshal drank but little. He listened to questions intently and he came up with quick answers.

Many of these questions will come up again soon when congress takes up a bill proposed by President Truman to provide Yugoslavia with something between $80,000,000 and $105,000,000 to tide the country over until the next harvest.

Some of the questions and answers follow:

1. How much does the country need in addition to the $105,000,000 worth of foodstuffs requested from the United States?

A. Of course, the $105.000,000 cannot make up for everything we lost in this year's harvest, but the application of measures we have undertaken, like economy drives and reducing supplies, will make it possible for us to get through this period until the next harvest, although not easily.

Q. Does Yugoslavia anticipate any aid from other countries such as the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia?

A. According to information received so far, England would come into consideration. I have also heard, although unofficially, that the French government has expressed the will to help us, but, I repeat this is unofficial.

Q. In order to be effective how soon should this aid begin to arrive?

A. In order to be effective it would have to come now, in December and January, especially as regards certain categories of articles such as fat, flour and other high caloric foods.

In response to a question about whether American observers would be permitted to oversee the distribution, Tito replied:

"Provision has been made for the arrival of some people to work administratively. They will have a chance to see the distribution. That means that everyone will get what he has coming to him in the shops selling articles on cards. Those who are not able to work will get the food free. We could not accept some kind of control because that would mean distrust in the Yugoslav government."

Q. With many of the grain bins already nearly empty, when do you believe the crucial period will arrive? February?

A. In certain sections even before that, but mostly in February and March.

Q. With an investment in agricultural machinery, do you think that farm production could be increased—barring another drought—to the point where Yugoslavia would have no need for future foodstuffs from abroad and once again become an export food country?

A. Of course, the improvement of agriculture, along with reclamation, drainage, increased fertility and better fertilizer will raise production tremendously and we will go from extensive to intensive cultivation of the land. This will, of course, increase yield. It requires many machines and other means. Two to three years will be needed for this and then, of course with favorable meteorological conditions, we should have enough not only to feed our own population but also to export agricultural produce. In the first place come the industrial plans, then corn. Wheat we would rather keep for our own needs.

Q. There has been considerable speculation in the United States congress over what would happen in the event of a Russian attack upon Yugoslavia. I would appreciate your views as an expert in dealing with a somewhat comparable situation during the second world war.

A. When talking about an attack no country, of course, would allow itself to be attacked willingly. It is a well-known fact that the Yugoslav people have, in the past, put a high value on their independence and that they have endured the greatest sacrifices in order to preserve it. This also holds true for the present situation. If attack comes our people would know how to defend themselves. I believe, and it is easy to be convinced of this, that our peoples would give up their independence only at a dear price, only at the sacrifice of their own blood and the blood of the aggressors. Figuratively speaking, only over their dead bodies.

Q. In the event of a cominform attack, what steps would Yugoslavia take? Would the government invite the United Nations intervention?

A. That is understood.

Q. I realize the basic principe of your relations with both the east and west has been on terms of 'equal rights.' If Russia would now approach you and offer this country 'equal rights,' would you consider a reapproachment? Do you feel that the present Soviet government of Russia could be counted upon to live up to the terms of any such agreement?

A. We could not reject it if the Russians were to offer at least bearable relations such as they have with other countries.

Q. Could Yugoslavia trust Russia in any agreement?

A. I don't know. That would be only guesswork. Experience is the test. I cannot say no, because I do not know what they are thinking and what conslusions they have drawn from their unsuccessful attempts toward Yugoslavia.

Q. Does Yugoslavia contemplate joining the European economic aid program?

A. Why should we? Some countries are even now leaving the Marshall plan because they no longer need it.

He said this problem amounted not only to an economic but also a political question. He added: "It would only create superflous difficulties. We cannot only think about the opinions of people abroad but must also think about the opinions of our own people."

Freed Americans Think They Were Considered 'Fifth Column' Material

U. S. Eighth Army Advanced Headquarters, Korea, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Released American prisoners of war said today they believed their Chinese Communist captors tried to make a "fifth column" out of them.

The prisoners first were given Red indoctrination lectures which assailed American political and military leaders.

Red Feather campaign for $63,- being issued weekly during the Red Feather campaign for $3,- 000, the goal for the coming year, has the following to say in its latest issue. We quote the following from its issue: "It's easy to drive up and down the streets of Monroe and West Monroe and spot the busy folks who are out working on the Red Feather firing line. In West Monroe, we saw Bob Hines hard at it going from store to store; Carey Holmes had stopped a man in the middle of the street and at risk of life and limb was "making thepitch." General Chair mean Charlie Chisholm has just about let his laundry business go "along like Topsy" as he has given virtually full time to the drive; Mrs. Elsie Granberry and Mrs. Katherine Riggin of the West Monroe women's division are literally "busier than cranberry merchants;" Bruce Brooks and Vance Rhodes haven't reported in yet but they are expected to make a big showing; scores of other West Monroe volunteers are carrying on valiantly as they prepare to bring in their first report. Back in Monroe you see the Red Feather folks flitting in and out of stores, office buildings, factories and plants. H. M. James and Ivy Jordan of the manufacturers and processors division are familiar figures with their kits in their hands.George Guerrero stopped the editor on the street to tell a campaign experience, as did Dave Silverstein of the commercial division. . . . Clifford Strauss is back in town after a buiness trip and we hear he is going into action in the professional division. When chairman Walter Kellogg of the industrial division had to leave town the other day, Co-Chairman T. H. Scott fitted right into the groove and went hard at it, as did Shelby Cage. Jaycee President Jack Howard and Evans Ethridge were seen with their head together, no doub to plot Jaycee strategy when they take over the men's sales division. Mrs. Alan Sugar is one of the hard working women's division leaders; others working like proverbial beavers include Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Mrs. C. K. Crandall and many more, not to mention Miss Nona Martin, the vigilant chairman. Ruff Tidwell and Bill Rodriquez of the government and education division are reported to be burning midnight oil in their diligence to make their quota. Schoolman Mack Avants is another worker who always leaves a cloud of dust. We saw Tom Davenport, chairman of the speakers' bureau, talking to a group on the bank corner; he has a fine crowd of speakers ready to fill assignments before any type organization on short notice."

"The Gray Ladies" of the Red Cross will stage another interesting party for the women of the St. Joseph's Home Monday when they will be taken on a holidays shopping trip to Monroe stores.

The city of Monroe will furnish free bus transportation and in addition there will be provided needed cars. The party is to leave the home at 1:30 p.m. Monday buses are to be parked in convenient places down town, and the tour of the stores will occasion as much interest by these oldsters as does the appearance of a Santa Claus in a kiddiese party.

The Ladies in Gray deserve great credit for their interest in making inmates of the home happy.

The Junior Charity League is doing a fine work when giving their time unselfishly in the dressing of dolls to be given to less favored kiddies at Christmas time, distribution to be through the Salvation Army.

The young women state that while they have dressed many dolls, that there is need for more women to join their circle and aid in the job of sewing. They meet from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. daily Monday through Friday, in the Amman Building, DeSiard and North Second street.

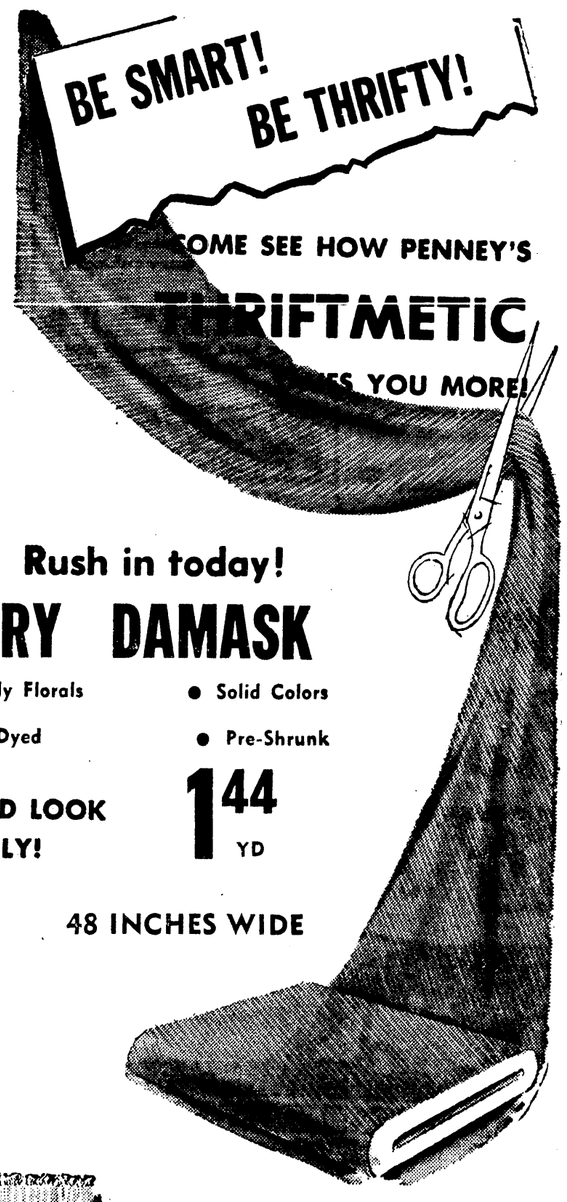

More recruits who enjoy doing things to make kiddies happy will be welcomed by this group of young women at the time and place designated.

She says it might get quite ferocious if not quickly captured. A generous reward for its return is offered. It is black, with white paws, and some white spots on its body. Anyone seeing it is asked to notify the Irbys.

STORM DELAYS U. N. MEETING

Chinese Get Chance To Blast 'American Aggression' Monday

Lake Success, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A sudden storm forced postponement today of a United Nations security council meeting in which a Chinese Communist delegation was expected to charge the United States with aggression.

The Chinese will get their chance to blast the United States Monday at 3 p.m. (EST), just a few hours after Russia's Jacob A. Malik is scheduled to press similar charges before the assebly's 60-nation political committee.

Yugoslavia's Ales Bebler, November president of the council, decided on the postponement after Secretary-General Trygve Lie told him police had warned that roads between suburban Lake Success and New York were rapidly becoming dangerous.

Lie immediately ordered all U. N. activities shut down and sent employes home before they could become isolated in the headquarters by the rain and wind.

The U. S., Britain and France had already decided to request putting off the meeting because of the weather, but were spared the necessity.

This was regarded, in western quarters, as good luck, because the request for a postponement would almost certainly have been hailed by Communist propaganda as evidence that the three powers were reluctant to face the Chinese Communists.

Moreover, it will noticeably weaken the propaganda value of the Chinese charges since on Monday afternoon they will seem merely to echo the complaint Malik is expected to make Monday morning.

Bebler had called today's meeting at 11 o'clock Friday night at Malik's request. The Russian evidently wanted to give the Peiping delegation the earliest possible opportunity to state its case, informed sources said. They had arrived in New York Friday morning in response to a security council invitation.

They base their right to be heard on the allegation that President Truman's June 27th order to the seventh fleet to "seal off" Formosa constitutes aggression against China. Formosa is the last-ditch stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists.

The Peiping Communist government had rejected a council request that it send a delegation here to answer Gen. MacArthur's charges that it had sent Chinese troops to intervene in Korea.

The Weather

By the Associated Press

This is how the hardest hit areas fared in Saturday's November storms:

Cleveland:the worst blizzard in 27 years dumped a 12 to 28 inch thick comforter of snow on Ohio. Business, industry, and transportation slowed to a virtual standstill in Cleveland, Akron, Canton, Youngstown and Warren. Ohio counted seven dead.

Pittsburgh: Pittsburgh and other western Pennsylvania cities were smothered by a snow fall that might reach 25 inches. Pittsburgh had 19 inches at noon. U. S. Steel began shutting down its plants employing 50,000 because of the storm. Stores remained closed. Pennsylvania had five dead.

New York: one of the worst storms since the 1938 hurricane hit the east coast. A gust of 94 miles an hour whipped across New York's Idlewild airport. The hurricane force winds, laden with rain, flooded shore areas, destroyed homes, crippled transportation and sent hundreds of families fleeing inland. The wind shoved a tide of water a mile inland on Staten Island.

Baltimore: a 68 mile an hour gale ripped harbor craft from their moorings and flattened trees. Sheets of rain started the Potomac river rising rapidly and some flood fears were expressed.

Charleston, W. Va.: near zero temperatures and more than two feet of snow in northern and eastern West Virginia gave the state one of its worst weather lashings in years.

Atlanta: freezing weather and driving snow brought misery deep to the south. Sub freezing weather was forecast for the resort city of Miami, Fla., Saturday night. Atlanta, gateway to the south, had a low reading of 3.4 the mercury nose-dived to 19 below at Mt. Mitchell, N. C. Owensboro had a reading of -7.

Chicago; three deaths in Chicago were attributed by police to zero weather.

One man was reported to have been suffocated by coal gas fumes. Two others died of apparent exposure.

south Koreans a mile and a half early Saturday. Then the south Koreans recoiled, advanced three miles, and were reported close to Taechon Sunday. Their patrols entered the city's outskirts last night.

On the right flank of the south Koreans, the U. S. 25th division sent a task force five miles east of Unsan. At 2:45 a.m. Sunday, the Reds opened a strong new counter-attack. The task force was reported still under assault but holding firm.

A field dispatch said a big battle soon may be joined in the northwest.

Air observers said they had spotted and estimated 5,000 Reds swarming over hills and fields toward allied forces advancing on the west 50 miles or less from the Manchurian frontier.

Yet another 8,000 were reported by air spotters to be on the move southward near the center of the 80-mile front.

Allied warplanes, from Superfort to fighters, seared and blasted away at supply bases or at anything that moved along the roads which snake through the hills from Manchuria.

On the northeast front, South Korean troops without opposition captured Chongjin, last major east coast port before the Siberian-Korean border, 55 miles away.

But the decisive struggle appeared to be shaping up in the northwest corner of Korea more than 200 miles southwest of Chongjin.

A U. S. first corps spokesman said the attackers, presumably Chinese, might be trying to roll up the eastern end of northwestern front.

He had no estimate of the size of the counterattacking force. Prisoners taken Friday said a full Chinese Red division was dug in about 10 miles north of Yongun.

The left side of the allied front moved ahead for gains up to six miles against opposition which was steadily increasing in intensty.

Air observers who saw the 5,000 Reds said they were converging five miles north of Kusong, before the U. S. 24th and second divisions.

Kusong is 20 miles due north of Chongju, which fell to the U. S. 24th division Friday without a fight. Chongju, on the west coast, is 51 miles from the Manchurian border. U. S. troops struck out both west and north of the city.

One pilot said the Reds were "swarming all over the countryside." He reported long columns winding along the roads and over the frozen fields.

Americans poured heavy artillery fire into the area.

Both the American 25th and second divisions moved cautiously forward on a 25-mile front into the teeth of the Red build-up.

A U. S. ninth corps spokesman said they met "sporadic" resistance, heavier than that of Friday, first day of the general assault to wind up the fighting by Christmas.

A field dispatch said a task force of the 25th division captured a heavily - defended hill position two miles southeast of Unsan and was battling counterattacking Reds. Unsan is 30 miles east of the Red build-up above Kusong.

Turkish artillery went into action in support of 25th division troops.

On the right of the 25th, a regiment of the U. S. second division crossed the Chongchon river 20 miles south of Huichon. There it was about 50 air miles from the border.

Forward elements of the regiment pumped Howitzer shells into a concentration of about 2,000 Reds 12 miles south of Huichon, rail town and road junction 60 miles south of the North Korean refugee capital of Kanggye.

It was 35 miles north of Huichon that air observers Saturday said they saw 8,000 Reds moving south.

This Red force was about 50 air miles northeast of the Communist concentration above Kusong.

It rolled into Chonju against no resistance and sent patrols ranging westand north. Chongju is 51 road miles from the Yalu river border city of Sinuiju, a major crossing point for Chinese Communist troops who entered the Korean war from Manchuria.

On the right of the 24th division, the South Korean first division regained a mile and one-half of ground it lost to counter-attacking Reds in the Taechon area, 22 miles northeast of Chongju.

The 32nd regiment of the U. S. seventh division drove northward for a link-up with the division's 17th regiment, which already is on the Yalu river boundary of northeast Korea.

About 30 miles inland from the east coast port of Hamhung, the U. S. third division routed elements of the Chinese 126th division, reported in action for the first time Friday. The Chinese, oddly, retreated south instead of north.

Boy's Death Is Accidental

Jena, La., Nov. 25.—(Special)—A coroner's jury today called the death of James Lee Clark, 16, accidental. The verdict exonerated 15-year-old Carl Cotton, who shot Clark with a .12-gauge shotgun.

Clark was shot by his young companion while the two boys and several other children were engaged in a mudfight Friday, and he died shortly after being taken to a local clinic.

A buckshot pellet which entered his temple and lodged high in the spine was the cause of death, according to Dr. O. P Mauterer, assistant coroner, who performed the autopsy.

The coroner's jury meeting was held Saturday at 5 p. m. to determine the nature of the death and a decision of accidental death was reached.

W. L. Ethridge, Sr., and Joe G. Durrett, drive leaders, also said they were pinning high hopes on large production from West Monroe the coming week, culminating in a heavy report at the Thursday deadline luncheon. Charles P. Chisholm, general chairman of the West Monroe drive, said that he was confident his co-workers would deliver a good account of themselves during the coming week and would be prepared to bring in a sizeable report Thursday.

The Honor Roll of firms and organizations whose employes have subscribed a day's pay on the payroll deduction plan continued to grow steadily as the week ended. Forty units are now on the Honor Roll and indications point to a possible 100 being posted by the Thursday deadline. Any group that has qualified for the Honor Roll and has not seen its name appear is being asked by Chest leaders to call 8218 at once so this oversight may be rectified, it was announced.

The women's division was extending its solicitation of the Monroe residential section in order to make sure that every possible donor is given a chance to contribute, Miss Nona Martin, chairman, said Saturday. The women have accounted for nearly $2,000 in their solicitation to date and they hope to bring in at least $5,000 before next Thursday, it was said.

Activities of the men's sales division, being handled this year by Monroe Jaycees, are being stepped up sharply, according to Jack Howard and Haynes Harkey, co-chairmen. Many Jaycees are expected to bring in reports at the regular weekly luncheon of the group to be held at noon Monday at the Virginia Hotel. The Jaycees have over 400 units to call on in all and are turning in one of the best records in the drive, Chest officials said.

Mr. Ethridge and Mr. Durrett said that they planned to work with a special committee and to spend Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in a ceaseless program of checking and re-checking accounts so that nothing wil be left undone to make the Thursday deadline meeting a complete victory.

Reservations for Thursday's "Dutch Treat" luncheon should be made by 5 p.m. Wednesday by calling 8218. Officials added. A record turnout of volunteers, majors, captains, division leaders and Chest officers and directors is expected for the event.

A parade of 400 prosecution witnesses, 50 of whom live in the Soviet zone, is scheduled. Some of the 400 are physicians. Others are maimed and twisted men who once shuffled across Buchenwalds "exercise yard" at the bark of a Nazi guard. Chief prosecutor Hans Ilkow plans to seek depositions from 140 persons now living in foreign countries.

The defense has indicated it will call about 76 witnesses.

The trial is expected to end Jan. 29, when the case will be handed to the judges and jury. Jurors are to be selected by drawing, the same as in the United States.

Mrs. Koch, who astonished American authorities by becoming pregnant during imprisonment at Dachau, has been called a model prisoner since.

But she is bitter about appearing before a German court.

At her release from Landsberg a year ago, she told the prison commandant it was the worst day of her life "because I am being turned over to German police."

Among them was testimony she wore tight-fitting clothing into the Buchenwald yard and then had inmated lashed if she caught them looking at her.

Buchenwald, in its Nazi heyday, was a place of horror for thousands who disagreed with Hitler's political beliefs. It is located in Thuringia, in the Soviet zone.

Men who have come west since the Russians erected the Iron Curtain say Buchenwald is flourishing again as concentration camp for those who oppose Russia and Communism.

Rudolph Halley, counsel for the committee, accused Cohen of ordering two of his lieutenants to bring Borden back from Las Vegas by chartered plane on Nov. 4. Cohen admitted he urged Borden to return before the banks closed and that he borrowed $1,400 from him.

Borden said today that he had not been kidnapped but that he had loaned money to Cohen because Cohen was in bad shape financially.

Borden returned to the United States from England in November, 1949. He had been overseas seven years, first with the Canadian army, then to work as a legal bookmaker in England.

Borden appeared more perturbed about printed stories that he was 51 years old than he did over any other material.

Earth shocks preceded the eruption last December and for a time the little village of Maletto was threatened, but the lava flow slowed down several miles from the village. The flow of lava continued slowly, for two days, but except for a few farms, the population suffered little from it.

to -11 and only the Georgia eleven kept warm. It drubbed Furman 40 to 0. Only 17,800 of the 52,000 ticket holders showed up at Philadelphia to see Cornell knock off Pennsylvania for the third straight year. This time the score was 13 to 6.

Oklahoma, Alabama, Clemson and Fordham all remained in the bowl spotlight.

The Sooners, who decided not to decide between Orange and Sugar Bowl bids until after next Saturday's game with Oklahoma A. & M. conquered Nebraska, 49 to 35. For a half Bob Reynolds, Nebraska's sparkling sophomore gave the Oklahomans fits. He scored three times to bring his team into a 21 to 21 tie at the intermission. Then Oklahoma spurted to win with its 30th straight game.

Alabama, an Orange Bowl possibility, added to its luster by drubbing Florida, 41 to 13. Clemson, also eyeing the same bowl, trounced Auburn, 41 to 0, while Fordham, who is hopeful it will get the Miami invitation, downed New York University, 13 to 9, in a young hurricane.

Tennessee, which conquered Kentucky in the snow at Knoxville previously had announced its betrothal with the Cotton Bowl. Texas, the Volunteers' foe on Jan. 1, was idle today in preparation for its Thursday game with Texas A&M.

Southern Methodist, with the famed Kyle Rote shackled all day, was booted out of the list of bowl probables by Baylor, 3 to 0, Henry Dickerson got the three-pointer with less than four minutes to play.

California met a tartar in Stanford, being held to a 7 to 7 deadlock. That made it necessary for the Pacific Coast Conference to vote to determine which team will play in the Rose Bowl.

Washington showed its power in drubbing Washington State, 52 to 21. U.C.L.A. zoomed to a 39-0 verdict over Southern California.

The weather helped Harvard hold down the Yale score in the "big" game. The Harvards, expected to lose by as much as four touchdowns, lost by only one, 14 to 6.

Red Feather campaign for $63,- being issued weekly during the Red Feather campaign for $3,- 000, the goal for the coming year, has the following to say in its latest issue. We quote the following from its issue: "It's easy to drive up and down the streets of Monroe and West Monroe and spot the busy folks who are out working on the Red Feather firing line. In West Monroe, we saw Bob Hines hard at it going from store to store; Carey Holmes had stopped a man in the middle of the street and at risk of life and limb was "making thepitch." General Chair mean Charlie Chisholm has just about let his laundry business go "along like Topsy" as he has given virtually full time to the drive; Mrs. Elsie Granberry and Mrs. Katherine Riggin of the West Monroe women's division are literally "busier than cranberry merchants;" Bruce Brooks and Vance Rhodes haven't reported in yet but they are expected to make a big showing; scores of other West Monroe volunteers are carrying on valiantly as they prepare to bring in their first report. Back in Monroe you see the Red Feather folks flitting in and out of stores, office buildings, factories and plants. H. M. James and Ivy Jordan of the manufacturers and processors division are familiar figures with their kits in their hands.George Guerrero stopped the editor on the street to tell a campaign experience, as did Dave Silverstein of the commercial division. . . . Clifford Strauss is back in town after a buiness trip and we hear he is going into action in the professional division. When chairman Walter Kellogg of the industrial division had to leave town the other day, Co-Chairman T. H. Scott fitted right into the groove and went hard at it, as did Shelby Cage. Jaycee President Jack Howard and Evans Ethridge were seen with their head together, no doub to plot Jaycee strategy when they take over the men's sales division. Mrs. Alan Sugar is one of the hard working women's division leaders; others working like proverbial beavers include Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Mrs. C. K. Crandall and many more, not to mention Miss Nona Martin, the vigilant chairman. Ruff Tidwell and Bill Rodriquez of the government and education division are reported to be burning midnight oil in their diligence to make their quota. Schoolman Mack Avants is another worker who always leaves a cloud of dust. We saw Tom Davenport, chairman of the speakers' bureau, talking to a group on the bank corner; he has a fine crowd of speakers ready to fill assignments before any type organization on short notice."

"The Gray Ladies" of the Red Cross will stage another interesting party for the women of the St. Joseph's Home Monday when they will be taken on a holidays shopping trip to Monroe stores.

The city of Monroe will furnish free bus transportation and in addition there will be provided needed cars. The party is to leave the home at 1:30 p.m. Monday buses are to be parked in convenient places down town, and the tour of the stores will occasion as much interest by these oldsters as does the appearance of a Santa Claus in a kiddiese party.

The Ladies in Gray deserve great credit for their interest in making inmates of the home happy.

A U. S. ninth corps spokesman said they met "sporadic" resistance, heavier than that of Friday, first day of the general assault to wind up the fighting by Christmas.

A field dispatch said a task force of the 25th division captured a heavily - defended hill position two miles southeast of Unsan and was battling counterattacking Reds. Unsan is 30 miles east of the Red build-up above Kusong.

Turkish artillery went into action in support of 25th division troops.

On the right of the 25th, a regiment of the U. S. second division crossed the Chongchon river 20 miles south of Huichon. There it was about 50 air miles from the border.

Forward elements of the regiment pumped Howitzer shells into a concentration of about 2,000 Reds 12 miles south of Huichon, rail town and road junction 60 miles south of the North Korean refugee capital of Kanggye.

It was 35 miles north of Huichon that air observers Saturday said they saw 8,000 Reds moving south.

This Red force was about 50 air miles northeast of the Communist concentration above Kusong.

It rolled into Chonju against no resistance and sent patrols ranging westand north. Chongju is 51 road miles from the Yalu river border city of Sinuiju, a major crossing point for Chinese Communist troops who entered the Korean war from Manchuria.

On the right of the 24th division, the South Korean first division regained a mile and one-half of ground it lost to counter-attacking Reds in the Taechon area, 22 miles northeast of Chongju.

The 32nd regiment of the U. S. seventh division drove northward for a link-up with the division's 17th regiment, which already is on the Yalu river boundary of northeast Korea.

About 30 miles inland from the east coast port of Hamhung, the U. S. third division routed elements of the Chinese 126th division, reported in action for the first time Friday. The Chinese, oddly, retreated south instead of north.

Boy's Death Is Accidental

Jena, La., Nov. 25.—(Special)—A coroner's jury today called the death of James Lee Clark, 16, accidental. The verdict exonerated 15-year-old Carl Cotton, who shot Clark with a .12-gauge shotgun.

Clark was shot by his young companion while the two boys and several other children were engaged in a mudfight Friday, and he died shortly after being taken to a local clinic.

A buckshot pellet which entered his temple and lodged high in the spine was the cause of death, according to Dr. O. P Mauterer, assistant coroner, who performed the autopsy.

The coroner's jury meeting was held Saturday at 5 p. m. to determine the nature of the death and a decision of accidental death was reached.

W. L. Ethridge, Sr., and Joe G. Durrett, drive leaders, also said they were pinning high hopes on large production from West Monroe the coming week, culminating in a heavy report at the Thursday deadline luncheon. Charles P. Chisholm, general chairman of the West Monroe drive, said that he was confident his co-workers would deliver a good account of themselves during the coming week and would be prepared to bring in a sizeable report Thursday.

The Honor Roll of firms and organizations whose employes have subscribed a day's pay on the payroll deduction plan continued to grow steadily as the week ended. Forty units are now on the Honor Roll and indications point to a possible 100 being posted by the Thursday deadline. Any group that has qualified for the Honor Roll and has not seen its name appear is being asked by Chest leaders to call 8218 at once so this oversight may be rectified, it was announced.

The women's division was extending its solicitation of the Monroe residential section in order to make sure that every possible donor is given a chance to contribute, Miss Nona Martin, chairman, said Saturday. The women have accounted for nearly $2,000 in their solicitation to date and they hope to bring in at least $5,000 before next Thursday, it was said.

Activities of the men's sales division, being handled this year by Monroe Jaycees, are being stepped up sharply, according to Jack Howard and Haynes Harkey, co-chairmen. Many Jaycees are expected to bring in reports at the regular weekly luncheon of the group to be held at noon Monday at the Virginia Hotel. The Jaycees have over 400 units to call on in all and are turning in one of the best records in the drive, Chest officials said.

Mr. Ethridge and Mr. Durrett said that they planned to work with a special committee and to spend Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in a ceaseless program of checking and re-checking accounts so that nothing wil be left undone to make the Thursday deadline meeting a complete victory.

Reservations for Thursday's "Dutch Treat" luncheon should be made by 5 p.m. Wednesday by calling 8218. Officials added. A record turnout of volunteers, majors, captains, division leaders and Chest officers and directors is expected for the event.

A parade of 400 prosecution witnesses, 50 of whom live in the Soviet zone, is scheduled. Some of the 400 are physicians. Others are maimed and twisted men who once shuffled across Buchenwalds "exercise yard" at the bark of a Nazi guard. Chief prosecutor Hans Ilkow plans to seek depositions from 140 persons now living in foreign countries.

The defense has indicated it will call about 76 witnesses.

The trial is expected to end Jan. 29, when the case will be handed to the judges and jury. Jurors are to be selected by drawing, the same as in the United States.

Mrs. Koch, who astonished American authorities by becoming pregnant during imprisonment at Dachau, has been called a model prisoner since.

But she is bitter about appearing before a German court.

At her release from Landsberg a year ago, she told the prison commandant it was the worst day of her life "because I am being turned over to German police."

Among them was testimony she wore tight-fitting clothing into the Buchenwald yard and then had inmated lashed if she caught them looking at her.

Buchenwald, in its Nazi heyday, was a place of horror for thousands who disagreed with Hitler's political beliefs. It is located in Thuringia, in the Soviet zone.

Men who have come west since the Russians erected the Iron Curtain say Buchenwald is flourishing again as concentration camp for those who oppose Russia and Communism.

Borden said today that he had not been kidnapped but that he had loaned money to Cohen because Cohen was in bad shape financially.

Borden returned to the United States from England in November, 1949. He had been overseas seven years, first with the Canadian army, then to work as a legal bookmaker in England.

Earth shocks preceded the eruption last December and for a time the little village of Maletto was threatened, but the lava flow slowed down several miles from the village. The flow of lava continued slowly, for two days, but except for a few farms, the population suffered little from it.

Oklahoma, Alabama, Clemson and Fordham all remained in the bowl spotlight.

The Sooners, who decided not to decide between Orange and Sugar Bowl bids until after next Saturday's game with Oklahoma A. & M. conquered Nebraska, 49 to 35. For a half Bob Reynolds, Nebraska's sparkling sophomore gave the Oklahomans fits. He scored three times to bring his team into a 21 to 21 tie at the intermission. Then Oklahoma spurted to win with its 30th straight game.

Alabama, an Orange Bowl possibility, added to its luster by drubbing Florida, 41 to 13. Clemson, also eyeing the same bowl, trounced Auburn, 41 to 0, while Fordham, who is hopeful it will get the Miami invitation, downed New York University, 13 to 9, in a young hurricane.

Tennessee, which conquered Kentucky in the snow at Knoxville previously had announced its betrothal with the Cotton Bowl. Texas, the Volunteers' foe on Jan. 1, was idle today in preparation for its Thursday game with Texas A&M.

Southern Methodist, with the famed Kyle Rote shackled all day, was booted out of the list of bowl probables by Baylor, 3 to 0. Henry Dickerson got the three-pointer with less than four minutes to play.

California met a tartar in Stanford, being held to a 7 to 7 deadlock. That made it necessary for the Pacific Coast Conference to vote to determine which team will play in the Rose Bowl.

Washington showed its power in drubbing Washington State, 52 to 21. U.C.L.A. zoomed to a 39-0 verdict over Southern California.

The weather helped Harvard hold down the Yale score in the "big" game. The Harvards, expected to lose by as much as four touchdowns, lost by only one, 14 to 6.

KENTUCKY ACCEPTS SUGAR BOWL INVITATION

EXPECT SOONERS TO BE LINED UP FOR OPPOSITION

Wildcats Taken Despite Loss To Cotton Bowl-Bound Tennessee

By Roy Steinfort

New Orleans, Nov 25—(AP)—Kentucky will play in the 1951 Sugar Bowl football game against an opponent to be announced later, probably Oklahoma.

Kentucky lost to Cotton Bowl-bound Tennessee 7 to 0 today, their first loss in an 11-game season. It was Kentucky's final game of the year.

Oklahoma, their most likely Sugar Bowl opponents, swept past Nebraska today 49 to 35.

Kentucky's selection was announced by the Sugar Bowl at 5:35 p.m.

It will be Kentucky's first Sugar Bowl football appearance, although the Wildcats have appeared in two other bowls. They lost to Santa Clara 21-13 in the 1950 Orange Bowl and beat Villanova 24-14 in the 1947 Great Lakes Bowl game.

Parilli's passing record before the Tennessee game was 100 passes completed for 1,477-yards and 23 touchdowns.

Kentucky's selection for the Sugar Bowl football game makes the third time a school has been represented by both its football and basketball teams in the mid-Winter Sports Carvival. The other double entries were Tennessee in 1941 and Oklahoma A. and M. in 1946. Kentucky's cagers won the Sugar Bowl basketball title in the last Sugar Bowl.

Sam Corenswet of the Sugar Bowl committee made the announcement for Charles Zatarain, president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, sponsors of the Sugar Bowl. Zatarain was in Knoxville for the Kentucky Tennessee game.

Corenswet said, "Kentucky has been invited and has accepted."

Then he added, "there will be no other announcement at this time."

When Corenswet was asked when an announcement could be expected on Kentucky's opponent he replied:

"Don't believe any other announcement tonight because there will be none officially."

He did not indicate when such an announcement would be made.

Speculation for an opponent for the Kentucky Wildcats centered around Oklahoma but also included Nebraska at least until today's defeat by Oklahoma and unbeaten but once tied Clemson, and unbeaten Kyoming. Clemson looked the strongest possibility behind Oklahoma.

Clemson finished its season today with a 41-0 victory over Auburn. Oklahoma still has to face Oklahoma A. and M. Oklahoma's winning streak now stands at 30 straight.

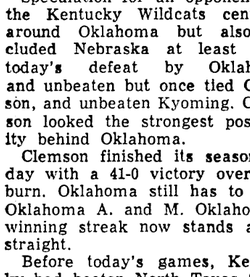

Before today's games, Kentucky had beaten North Texas State 25-0, Louisiana State University 14-0, Mississippi 27-0, Dayton 40-0, Cincinnati 4-17, Villanova 34-7 Georgia Tech 28-14, Florida 40-6, Mississippi State 48-21 and North Dakota 83-0.

Oklahoma has rolled over Boston College 28-0, Texas A. and M. 34-28, Texas 14-13, Kansas State 5-80, Iowa State 20-7, Colorado 27-18, Kansas 33-13 and Missouri 41-7.

Fullback Leon Heath is the big gun in Oklahoma's Attack. He was out much of the season, but he returned to duty against Kansas and made 140 yards. The next week he averaged more than 10 yards every time he carried the ball against Missouri.

G. W. EDGES HOYAS

Stanford Gains Tie With Bears

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 25—(AP)—California's Bear's, righting for their third successive bid to the Rose Bowl, were held to a 7-7 tie today by Stanford's Indians in a thrilling climax to their regular season games.

A group of 81,000 saw the spine-tingling encounter, 53rd in the annual series.

The finish marred the record of the Golden Bears but they remain undefeated and appear most likely to receive the invitation to represent the Pacific Coast Conference in the Pasadena classic, New Year's Day.

Faculty representatives of the lea e were voting tonight on the nominee.

California, 13½ point favorites to whip their oldest rivals, astually was luckly to come out of the fierce struggle with a draw. The Bears scored first, in the third period, then were deadlocked when Stanford tallied with a touchdown pass early in the final quarter.

OKLAHOMA SPIKES NEBRASKA, 49 - 35

Unbeaten Sooners Won't Make Bowl Decision Until After Aggie Tilt

Norman, Okla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Oklahoma's mighty Sooners extended the longest winning streak in modern football to 30 games today by outscoring Nebraska, 49-35. The winners immediately began wrestling with the temptation to take a third straight trip to the Sugar Bowl.

Rated as the nation's classiest outfit in the Associated Press poll, Oklahoma found itself held to a 21-21 deadlock in the first half as the result of a brilliant three-touchdown splurge by Bobby Reynolds, Nebraska's sophomore, flash.

But the rugged Oklahoma line solved Reynolds' magic in the second half. In the end it was the Sooners sophomore ace, Billy Vessels, who stole the show by scoring three touchdowns and passing for a fourth.

The triumph brought the Sooners their third straight Big Seven conference title and made them the No. 1 prospect for a bowl bid.

It was anybody's guess as to whether they would return to the Sugar Bowl, where they have triumphed the past two years.

However, Oklahoma will not consider a post-season bid until after it finishes its season on Dec. 2 against Oklahoma A. and M., it was announced by Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Wilkinson said no meeting had been held by the Oklahoma players and no vote was taken. He had said previously that Oklahoma's decision on a bowl appearance would be entirely up to the players.

A crowd of 54,000, largest ever to see a Big Seven contest, sat in on the high-scoring tussle and really got their money's worth.

The sooners started off as if they intended to run the Cornhuskers right out of the park. Claude Arnold sped 16 yards for one touchdown and passed 23 yards to Leon Heath for another as Oklahoma scored the first two times it got its hands on the ball. The amazing Reynolds went to work. A funble gave Nebraska the ball at the Sooner 20 and on the next play Reynolds squirted into the end zone.

Reynolds scored again on a 14-yard gallop in the second period at the end of a 64-yard drive. Another Oklahoma fumble put Nebraska only 16 yards from the goal and it was Reynolds again who sprinted to the end zone. Rambling Robert's third straight conversion gave Nebraska its only lead, 21-14.

The Sooners tied it up before halftime on a seven-yard dash by Vessels, set up by a 59-yard pass and run from Arnold to Heath. The third of Big Jim Weatherall's seven conversions sent the teams to rest in tight deadlock.

But that was the end for Reynolds and his mates. The Nebraska star, who gained 88 net yards in 15 carries in the first half, was held to exactly one yard in the second. It was the first time this season he had been held under 100 yards.

KENTUCKY FALLS BEFORE VOLS, 7-0

Lauricella Passes To Rechichar For Winning Touchdown

By Will Grimsley

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A wee Tennessee halfback named Hank Lauricella stole the aerial magic of Kentucky's famed Babe Parilli and smashed the Wildcats from the unbeaten and untied ranks, 7-0, today in a hard-socking, fumbling football game played in sub-freezing temperatures.

Lauricella, magnificent as runner, punter and passer, shattered Kentucky's hopes with a perfect, 27-yard scoring heave to Halfback Bert Rechichar four and a half minutes before the end of the half.

Halfback Pat Shires of Alderson, W. Va., kicked his 32nd extra point of the season and that was all the point making in this savage fray between two bowl-bound Southeastern Conference powers.

The defeat left Kentucky's bowl status in doubt. Charles Zatarain president of New Orleans' Sugar Bowl, watched the game from the press box and said a Sugar Bowl announcement would be made some time tonight.

Once-beaten Tennessee is already signed to play Texas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas Jan. 1.

Tennessee's upset triumph over the nation's third-ranked team, achieved before a 45,000 crowd suffering in 15-degree weather, maintained a long time mastery over the northern neighbor. The Volunteers last lost to Kentucky in 1935. The Wildcats have never beaten a team coached by Gen. Bob Neyland.

The Volunteers' fierce line harassed Parilli, one of modern football's great passing masters, all afternoon. The Wildcats never got closer than the 30-yard line to the Tennessee goal.

Tennessee smashed deep into Kentucky provinces on several occasions and drove to the Wildcats' one-yard line midway of the last half only to fail.

This 40-yard excursion followed one of the 16 fumbles that occurred during the wild game. With the ball on the one - yard line Tennessee's top line whacker, Andy Kozar of St. Michael, Pa., took two stabs at the Kentucky line, only to be stopped in his tracks.

The ball squirted out of frozen fingers nine times and eight of these times Tennessee recovered. Tennessee fumbled seven times and lost the ball on four of these occasions.

Parilli, who through Kentucky's 10 previous victories had pitched 23 touchdown passes and gained 1,477 yards through the air, completed only 14 of his 31 throwing efforts today for 150 yards.

The 169-pound Lauricella, who is called "Francis" in his home town of New Orleans, completed four of 10 passes for 71 yards. But he gained 60 yards rushing—high for the Vols—and his tremendous punting duel with Kentucky's Dominic Fucci kept the Wildcats from getting too many ideas.

Score by quarters:

Tennessee scoring: touchdowns —Rechichar. Conversions—Shires.

Rochester Royals Knock Celts Out Of Loop Lead

Rochester N Y., Nov. 25.(AP)—The Rochester Royals beat the Boston Celtics, 90 to 82, in a bitterly contested National Basketball Association struggle here tonight. The game ended a six-game losing streak for the Royals, and knocked the Celts out of the eastern division lead.

Laye, George Curtis In Two-Hour Time Limit Main Event Tuesday

Semi-Final At Kallio's Brings Together Harrell, 'Phantom'

Charlie Laye and George Curtis will provide the main feature for the wrestling fans Tuesday night at Gus Kallio's Arena, and Henry Harrell will battle the "Black Phantom" in the semi-final event.

Laye, who was battered unmercifully by Light Heavyweight Champion Jack Curtis here last Tuesday, requested a return match but was told that Jack had already signed to appear somewhere else.

Learning of Laye's request, George Curtis, younger brother of the wrestling kingpin, agreed to substitute for Jack Curtis if the bout would be set for two hours instead of the customary 90 minutes.

George is several years younger than Laye, who has held the championship himself during his rugged past, and may have counted upon the longer time-limit to put his youth to the best advantage.

The two grapplers met here recently and George won the match, a semi-final event, by the referees decision when Laye refused to follow orders of the official.

On the semi-final card, a sure-fire action match has been scheduled between the ruthless Black Phantom who was forced to unmask at his last appearance here, and smiling but tricky Henry Harrell from Memphis and Vicksburg.

Since the main event was scheduled to exceed the usual time limit, the semi-final event was shortened to a 45-minute scrap, with the first bell to ring at 8 p.m. in accordance with Kallio's new opening time for the winter season.

Wisconsin Closes Season With Win Over Minnesota

Madison, Wis., Nov. 25 —(AP)—Senior Bob Petruska who lost his quarterback job in midseason, came back as a halfback today to lead Wisconsin to a 14 to 0 victory over Minnesota.

The triumph, Wisconsin's first in five years over Minnesota, closed out the Badgers' most successful season in eight years, with a record of five Big Ten successes against two defeats.

Petruska started the season as Wisconsin's regular quarterback He didn't click and the job was turned over to Johnny Coatta. Today, Petruska was the big wheel in both of the Badger touchdowns in a battle staged before 45,000 fans in below freezing weather

Petruska ran for 33 yards in Wisconsin's second period touchdown drive which covered 70 yards, and rammed over from the one for the score. In the final period he pased from Wisconsin's 32 to End Tilden Meyers who was hauled down on the Minnesota 14. Two plays later Jim Hammond cracked over from the 12 for the touchdown.

Ohio's Miami Redskins Dim Sun Bowl Selection

Cincinnati, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Miami of Ohia's Redskins cast a cloud over the sun of the Sun Bowl today as they drubbed the University of Cincinnati, 28 to 0, in a driving snowstorm to win the Mid-America conference football championship.

Wolverines Score Upset To Win Possible Rose Bowl Date

Columbus, O., Nov. 25 —(AP)—Michigan's Wolverines wrapped up the Western Conference championship and a probably Rose Bowl bid today by blocking two attempted punts to defeat Ohio's favored Buckeyes, 9 to 3, on a snow-covered gridiron.

Michigan failed to make a first down in fighting its way into the king row, but turned a pair of breaks into the nine points needed to give it the title.

Michigan was able to gain only 27 yards by rushing. Ohio's vaunted offense was held to 16 yards on the ground and a total of 41 as the Bucks picked up 25 yards on three successful passes in 18 attempts.

A 28-mile wind swept across the Buckeye stadium and the athletes played like they were wearing boxing gloves as Michigan took advantage of a weird set of circumstances.

Michigan had to couple a victory over Ohio State with a Northwestern win over Illinois today, and both came to pass.

Chuck Ortman, Michigan's brilliant halfback, was the difference in today's climatic contest. Known mostly for his fine passing, Ortmann's nine aerial attempts today failed to find a mark, but his unerring kicking kept the Buckeyes deep in their own territory.

Eleven times in 24 attempts, Ortmann punted out of bounds inside the Ohio 15-yard line. The Buckeyes failed to fight their way out of the hole at any time.

Ohio drew first blood in the opening five minutes, when Vic Janowicz booted a field goal through the swirling snow flakes from 22 yards out.

The break on that one came the first time Michigan had the ball. Joe Campanella, Ohio tackle, blocked Ortmann's attempted quick kick from the six-yard line, and Bob Momsen fell on it there.

Late in the same period, Ortmann booted out of bounds on Ohio's three. Michigan's captain, Allen Wahl, broke through to block Janowicz' kick, the ball rolling out of the end zone for an automatic safety.

A bit of quick thinking and another blocked kick gave Michigan its winning touchdown in the second period. Ortmann had punted out on Ohio's eight, with less than a minute to go, and Ohio attempted to run line plays to use up the time rather than kick from its own end zone.

After each play, however, Michigan called time out. Ohio was forced to kick with 20 seconds to play. Tony Momsen, brother of Ohio's Bob, blocked Janowicz' kick and fell on the ball in the end zone for the score.

Junior Sugar Bowl Selections Due To Be Announced Within Few Days

By this time next week, possibly sooner, the contending teams for the fourth annual Junior Sugar Bowl football game here are expected to be known.

The team selection committee is due to meet again tomorrow night, at which time the list of favored teams and their records will be studied once more. Even though the committee may reach an agreement on desired teams, no announcment is expected to be made until invitations are accepted.

Foremost on the list of desired teams at the last meeting of the committee headed by Nathan "Buddy" Blair, chairman, were three Texas teams, Wharton, Panola, and Del Mar of Corpus Christi; Garden City, Kans.; Boise, Ida., and South Georgia of Douglas, Ga.

Wharton, winner in the Junior Sugar last year, is known to be seeking a trip to the Junior Rose Bowl this year at Pasadena, Calif., and in the event another team is selected to go to the coast, Wharton is likely to be available here once more.

Garden City has challenged Tyler, Tex., host team in the Texas Rose Bowl, to accept them as an opponent, but so far no announcement has been made as to who will visit the Apaches.

Boise, with a string of 39 undefeated conquests, is also trying to drum its way onto the Pasadena scrap. If not selected for the Little Rose, the Idaho team may figure the trip to Louisiana to far from home to accept a bid here.

South Georgia, the team that upset a cocky Little Rock Junior College team in the 1948 Junior Sugar, would like to come back. The Georgians have lost two games, one to a four-year school, this year, but they had two defeats on their record their last trip here and proved that didn't mean a thing.

The Panola Ponies, beaten by one point by Wharton, and Del Mar, which took a one touchdown defeat from Wharton, also are expected to rule favorably if invited here.

The Junior Sugar Bowl game, sponsored by the Monroe Lions Club, is a non-profit promotion with most of the proceeds going to the contending teams, and the gain after expenses has been pledged to children's activities of Monroe.

Gordon Gibson, sparking publicity for the game, pointed out that the Lions Club has already equipped playgrounds of the city with the aid of funds derived from the annual game, and that the children of the city will continue to reap the benefits.

"Supporters of our game are actually not spending a cent that won't be returned to them," Gibson said. "The money spent for a Junior Sugar Bowl ticket will come back to the fan as a more attractive recreation program for his own children to enjoy the year around. They have only to visit the playgrounds of our city right now and see the children enjoying their facilities to realize that help in making this possible has been the fruits of our past junior college classics."

Uclans Humble U. S. C. Trojans

Los Angeles, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Sophomore Ted Narleski and the belligerent Bruins of U. C. L. A. ground Southern California into submission today, burying the once-proud Trojans under a 39 to 0 score for their fifth and most humiliating defeat of the season.

The Pacific Coast Conference encounter drew 51,906 fans, who saw U. C. L. A. roll up 422 yards and throttle U. S. C. with only 79.

For the long underdog Uclans, it was only the third triumph in 20 meetings with their cross-town foe.

Midway in the first quarter, Narleski scored from the three to end a 54-yard thrust. Again in the second, the sophomore sparkplug skipped the final five yards, climaxing a 46-yard punch.

Just before the half ended, S. C. Quarterback Wilbur Robertson tried to pass on his own goal line. Bruin End Darrell Riggs knocked the ball out of his hand and Guard Fran Mandula recovered for the third U. C. L. A. touchdown.

Whatever hopes the Troys had of getting back in the second half vanished when the Bruins traveled 63 yards, 48 of them on seven runs by Narleski, and Ted's final five - yard slice for six points.

PRINCETON SACKS IVY LEAGUE TITLE

Tigers Top Dartmouth For First Unbeaten Season In 15 Years

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A raging storm turned the Princeton-Dartmouth football game into a nightmare today but Dick Kazmaier rallied his Tiger team to defeat Dartmouth, 13 to 7, and give Princeton its first undefeated season since 1935, as well as the Ivy League championship.

A wind that reacehd 60 miles an hour sent punts straight into the air and made the handling of the ball a precarious gamble.

With the wind at its back, Dartmouth scored first in the opening period when Bob Tyler went 25 yards on a tricky lateral. In the second period, with the gale now favoring Princeton, Kazmaier scored on a 37-yard run and a moment later went 2 yards to the Dartmouth five from where Jack Davison punched it over for the second and last of Princeton's touchdowns.

The victory for Princeton, seventh ranking team of the country in the A. P. poll, was its 13th in a row and gave it a clear claim to the Ivy League's championship.

In winning nine straight games this year Princeton has scored 39 points against 9. This was the lowest score to which Princeton has been held all season.

The wind was so violent the officials had to hold the ball between downs to keep it from slithering away. A half dozen trees were blown down around the stadium and all wires out of the swaying press box on top of the big stadium were severed.

Although 31,000 tickets had been sold, less than 5,000 spectators showed up.

Princeton	0	13	0	0	—13

KENTUCKY ACCEPTS SUGAR BOWL INVITATION

EXPECT SOONERS TO BE LINED UP FOR OPPOSITION

Wildcats Taken Despite Loss To Cotton Bowl-Bound Tennessee

By Roy Steinfort

New Orleans, Nov 25—(AP)—Kentucky will play in the 1951 Sugar Bowl football game against an opponent to be announced later, probably Oklahoma.

Kentucky lost to Cotton Bowl-bound Tennessee 7 to 0 today, their first loss in an 11-game season. It was Kentucky's final game of the year.

Oklahoma, their most likely Sugar Bowl opponents, swept past Nebraska today 49 to 35.

Kentucky's selection was announced by the Sugar Bowl at 5:35 p.m.

It will be Kentucky's first Sugar Bowl football appearance, although the Wildcats have appeared in two other bowls. They lost to Santa Clara 21-13 in the 1950 Orange Bowl and beat Villanova 24-14 in the 1947 Great Lakes Bowl game.

Parilli's passing record before the Tennessee game was 100 passes completed for 1,477-yards and 23 touchdowns.

Kentucky's selection for the Sugar Bowl football game makes the third time a school has been represented by both its football and basketball teams in the mid-Winter Sports Carvival. The other double entries were Tennessee in 1941 and Oklahoma A. and M. in 1946. Kentucky's cagers won the Sugar Bowl basketball title in the last Sugar Bowl.

Sam Corenswet of the Sugar Bowl committee made the announcement for Charles Zatarain, president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, sponsors of the Sugar Bowl. Zatarain was in Knoxville for the Kentucky Tennessee game.

Corenswet said, "Kentucky has been invited and has accepted."

Then he added, "there will be no other announcement at this time."

When Corenswet was asked when an announcement could be expected on Kentucky's opponent he replied:

"Don't believe any other announcement tonight because there will be none officially."

He did not indicate when such an announcement would be made.

Speculation for an opponent for the Kentucky Wildcats centered around Oklahoma but also included Nebraska at least until today's defeat by Oklahoma and unbeaten but once tied Clemson, and unbeaten Kyoming. Clemson looked the strongest possibility behind Oklahoma.

Clemson finished its season today with a 41-0 victory over Auburn. Oklahoma still has to face Oklahoma A. and M. Oklahoma's winning streak now stands at 30 straight.

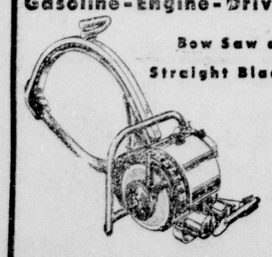

Before today's games, Kentucky had beaten North Texas State 25-0, Louisiana State University 14-0, Mississippi 27-0, Dayton 40-0, Cincinnati 4-17, Villanova 34-7 Georgia Tech 28-14, Florida 40-6, Mississippi State 48-21 and North Dakota 83-0.

Oklahoma has rolled over Boston College 28-0, Texas A. and M. 34-28, Texas 14-13, Kansas State 5-80, Iowa State 20-7, Colorado 27-18, Kansas 33-13 and Missouri 41-7.

Fullback Leon Heath is the big gun in Oklahoma's Attack. He was out much of the season, but he returned to duty against Kansas and made 140 yards. The next week he averaged more than 10 yards every time he carried the ball against Missouri.

Washington, Nov. 25.— (AP) — John Shullenbarger's fancy kicking gave George Washington a 7-6 football victory over Georgetown today in a game that began in deep mud and wound up in a driving snowstorm. Shullenbarger kicked the game-winning extra point.

Stanford Gains Tie With Bears

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 25—(AP)—California's Bear's, righting for their third successive bid to the Rose Bowl, were held to a 7-7 tie today by Stanford's Indians in a thrilling climax to their regular season games.

A group of 81,000 saw the spine-tingling encounter, 53rd in the annual series.

The finish marred the record of the Golden Bears but they remain undefeated and appear most likely to receive the invitation to represent the Pacific Coast Conference in the Pasadena classic, New Year's Day.

Faculty representatives of the lea e were voting tonight on the nominee.

California, 13½ point favorites to whip their oldest rivals, astually was luckly to come out of the fierce struggle with a draw. The Bears scored first, in the third period, then were deadlocked when Stanford tallied with a touchdown pass early in the final quarter.

OKLAHOMA SPIKES NEBRASKA, 49 - 35

Unbeaten Sooners Won't Make Bowl Decision Until After Aggie Tilt

Norman, Okla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Oklahoma's mighty Sooners extended the longest winning streak in modern football to 30 games today by outscoring Nebraska, 49-35. The winners immediately began wrestling with the temptation to take a third straight trip to the Sugar Bowl.

Rated as the nation's classiest outfit in the Associated Press poll, Oklahoma found itself held to a 21-21 deadlock in the first half as the result of a brilliant three-touchdown splurge by Bobby Reynolds, Nebraska's sophomore, flash.

But the rugged Oklahoma line solved Reynolds' magic in the second half. In the end it was the Sooners sophomore ace, Billy Vessels, who stole the show by scoring three touchdowns and passing for a fourth.

The triumph brought the Sooners their third straight Big Seven conference title and made them the No. 1 prospect for a bowl bid.

It was anybody's guess as to whether they would return to the Sugar Bowl, where they have triumphed the past two years.

However, Oklahoma will not consider a post-season bid until after it finishes its season on Dec. 2 against Oklahoma A. and M., it was announced by Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Wilkinson said no meeting had been held by the Oklahoma players and no vote was taken. He had said previously that Oklahoma's decision on a bowl appearance would be entirely up to the players.

A crowd of 54,000, largest ever to see a Big Seven contest, sat in on the high-scoring tussle and really got their money's worth.

The sooners started off as if they intended to run the Cornhuskers right out of the park. Claude Arnold sped 16 yards for one touchdown and passed 23 yards to Leon Heath for another as Oklahoma scored the first two times it got its hands on the ball. Then the amazing Reynolds went to work. A funble gave Nebraska the ball at the Sooner 20 and on the next play Reynolds squirted into the end zone.

Reynolds scored again on a 14-yard gallop in the second period at the end of a 64-yard drive. Another Oklahoma fumble put Nebraska only 16 yards from the goal and it was Reynolds again who sprinted to the end zone. Rambling Robert's third straight conversion gave Nebraska its only lead, 21-14.

The Sooners tied it up before halftime on a seven-yard dash by Vessels, set up by a 59-yard pass and run from Arnold to Heath. The third of Big Jim Weatherall's seven conversions sent the teams to rest in tight deadlock.

But that was the end for Reynolds and his mates. The Nebraska star, who gained 88 net yards in 15 carries in the first half, was held to exactly one yard in the second. It was the first time this season he had been held under 100 yards.

KENTUCKY FALLS BEFORE VOLS, 7-0

Lauricella Passes To Rechichar For Winning Touchdown

By Will Grimsley

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A wee Tennessee halfback named Hank Lauricella stole the aerial magic of Kentucky's famed Babe Parilli and smashed the Wildcats from the unbeaten and untied ranks, 7-0, today in a hard-socking, fumbling football game played in sub-freezing temperatures.

Lauricella, magnificent as runner, punter and passer, shattered Kentucky's hopes with a perfect, 27-yard scoring heave to Halfback Bert Rechichar four and a half minutes before the end of the half.

Halfback Pat Shires of Alderson, W. Va., kicked his 32nd extra point of the season and that was all the point making in this savage fray between two bowl-bound Southeastern Conference powers.

The defeat left Kentucky's bowl status in doubt. Charles Zatarain president of New Orleans' Sugar Bowl, watched the game from the press box and said a Sugar Bowl announcement would be made some time tonight.

Once-beaten Tennessee is already signed to play Texas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas Jan. 1.

Tennessee's upset triumph over the nation's third-ranked team, achieved before a 45,000 crowd suffering in 15-degree weather, maintained a long time mastery over the northern neighbor. The Volunteers last lost to Kentucky in 1935. The Wildcats have never beaten a team coached by Gen. Bob Neyland.

The Volunteers' fierce line harassed Parilli, one of modern football's great passing masters, all afternoon. The Wildcats never got closer than the 30-yard line to the Tennessee goal.

Tennessee smashed deep into Kentucky provinces on several occasions and drove to the Wildcats' one-yard line midway of the last half only to fail.

This 40-yard excursion followed one of the 16 fumbles that occurred during the wild game. With the ball on the one - yard line Tennessee's top line whacker, Andy Kozar of St. Michael, Pa., took two stabs at the Kentucky line, only to be stopped in his tracks.

The ball squirted out of frozen fingers nine times and eight of these times Tennessee recovered. Tennessee fumbled seven times and lost the ball on four of these occasions.

Parilli, who through Kentucky's 10 previous victories had pitched 23 touchdown passes and gained 1,477 yards through the air, completed only 14 of his 31 throwing efforts today for 150 yards.

The 169-pound Lauricella, who is called "Francis" in his home town of New Orleans, completed four of 10 passes for 71 yards. But he gained 60 yards rushing—high for the Vols—and his tremendous punting duel with Kentucky's Dominic Fucci kept the Wildcats from getting too many ideas.

Tennessee	0	7	0	0	—7

Wisconsin Closes Season With Win Over Minnesota

Madison, Wis., Nov. 25 —(AP)—Senior Bob Petruska who lost his quarterback job in midseason, came back as a halfback today to lead Wisconsin to a 14 to 0 victory over Minnesota.

The triumph, Wisconsin's first in five years over Minnesota, closed out the Badgers' most successful season in eight years, with a record of five Big Ten successes against two defeats.

Petruska started the season as Wisconsin's regular quarterback He didn't click and the job was turned over to Johnny Coatta. Today, Petruska was the big wheel in both of the Badger touchdowns in a battle staged before 45,000 fans in below freezing weather

Charlie Laye and George Curtis will provide the main feature for the wrestling fans Tuesday night at Gus Kallio's Arena, and Henry Harrell will battle the "Black Phantom" in the semi-final event.

Laye, who was battered unmercifully by Light Heavyweight Champion Jack Curtis here last Tuesday, requested a return match but was told that Jack had already signed to appear somewhere else.

Learning of Laye's request, George Curtis, younger brother of the wrestling kingpin, agreed to substitute for Jack Curtis if the bout would be set for two hours instead of the customary 90 minutes.

George is several years younger than Laye, who has held the championship himself during his rugged past, and may have counted upon the longer time-limit to put his youth to the best advantage.

The two grapplers met here recently and George won the match, a semi-final event, by the referees decision when Laye refused to follow orders of the official.

On the semi-final card, a sure-fire action match has been scheduled between the ruthless Black Phantom who was forced to unmask at his last appearance here, and smiling but tricky Henry Harrell from Memphis and Vicksburg.

Since the main event was scheduled to exceed the usual time limit, the semi-final event was shortened to a 45-minute scrap, with the first bell to ring at 8 p.m. in accordance with Kallio's new opening time for the winter season.

Midway in the first quarter, Narleski scored from the three to end a 54-yard thrust. Again in the second, the sophomore sparkplug skipped the final five yards, climaxing a 46-yard punch.

Just before the half ended, S. C. Quarterback Wilbur Robertson tried to pass on his own goal line. Bruin End Darrell Riggs knocked the ball out of his hand and Guard Fran Mandula recovered for the third U. C. L. A. touchdown.

Whatever hopes the Troys had of getting back in the second half vanished when the Bruins traveled 63 yards, 48 of them on seven runs by Narleski, and Ted's final five - yard slice for six points.

PRINCETON SACKS IVY LEAGUE TITLE

Tigers Top Dartmouth For First Unbeaten Season In 15 Years

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A raging storm turned the Princeton-Dartmouth football game into a nightmare today but Dick Kazmaier rallied his Tiger team to defeat Dartmouth, 13 to 7, and give Princeton its first undefeated season since 1935, as well as the Ivy League championship.

A wind that reacehd 60 miles an hour sent punts straight into the air and made the handling of the ball a precarious gamble.

With the wind at its back, Dartmouth scored first in the opening period when Bob Tyler went 2 yards on a tricky lateral. In the second period, with the gale now favoring Princeton, Kazmaier scored on a 37-yard run and a moment later went 2 yards to the Dartmouth five from where Jack Davison punched it over for the second and last of Princeton's touchdowns.

The victory for Princeton, seventh ranking team of the country in the A. P. poll, was its 13th in a row and gave it a clear claim to the Ivy League's championship.

In winning nine straight games this year Princeton has scored 38 points against 9. This was the lowest score to which Princeton has been held all season.

The wind was so violent the officials had to hold the ball between downs to keep it from slithering away. A half dozen trees were blown down around the stadium and all wires out of the swaying press box on top of the big stadium were severed.

Although 31,000 tickets had been sold, less than 5,000 spectators showed up.

Malone Promises Indians Will Be In Best Condition Of Year

The Northeast Louisiana State Indians snapped through brisk workouts in dry but chilly weather yesterday as they got their final hard scrimmage in preparation for their last game of the season here Tuesday night at 8 o'clock against Northwest Mississippi at Brown Field.

The Tribe, which hadn't got in a good workout since taking off for the Thanksgiving holidays, turned in one of its most bruising scrimmage sessions of the year, but when it was all over Coach James L. Malone declared his Redskins will go into the Northwest battle in their best physical shape of the season.

Tackle Pat Marnell and Back "Buster" King were jarred up in yesterday's work, but Malone said they would be ready enough for the Mississippi invaders.

The Indian war chief was working two sets of offensive backs again yesterday, his power combination of Lloyd Ray, George Tarasovic, "Dub" Rush, and Bob Gunter, and his deceptive combine of Billy Milstead, Louis Phelps, Ed Plonsky, and Vince Zappone.

The Ray-Tarasovic-Rush-Gunter quarter is due to get starting assignments Tuesday, and Malone declared the Indians will "open all stops" for the season's final.

It will be the fifth meeting with Northwest Mississippi and the visitors have yet to defeat the Redskins, although they twice came close in losing 12-6 and 19-13 decisions to the Tribe. In other games Northeast won by scores of 49-0 and 25-6.

Northeast is due to go into the battle as the favored team for one of the very few times this year with a chance to break even for the season with a possible record of five defeats and five wins, provided they take this one.

Wildcats Ruin Illini Bowl Dreams With 14 To 7 Victory

Evanston, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Illinois, the nation's sixth-ranked team, had its Rose Bowl hopes chilled to cold ashes by a rallying Northwestern team which stunned the Illini 14 to 7 on Dyche Stadium's frozen turf today.

The dramatic Big Ten finale before 50,000 shivering fans produced an upset by inspired Northwestern which scored twice in the final half to erase a 7-0 Illinois lead which the Illini fashioned in the first two minutes and 27 seconds of the game.

The loss killed Illinois Rose Bowl chances, leaving the Illini with a 4-2 league record.

The Rose Bowl assignment unofficially went to Michigan and also, the Big Ten title, with the Wolverines' 9 to 3 triumph over Ohio State at Columbus, Ohio. That gave Michigan a final record of four wins, one loss and one tie, and a percentage of .750.

The game started as though Illinois would carve the Wildcats into small bits. On Northwestern's first play of the game Dick Flowers' pass was intercepted by Al Brosky on Northwestern's 42.

But after Illinois twice faltered following a pair of 35 yard drives to Northwestern's 30 in the second period, Northwestern completely stole the play from the Illini.

While the Wildcats were churning to their two touchdowns and 166 yards in the final half, Illinos never got past its own 30 in the third period and its 35 in the last period.

Northwestern, which never has been beaten by Illinois in four seasons under Wildcat Boss Bob Voigts, had its first scoring threat repulsed on the Illinois 9 early in the last period.

Northwestern, which never has been beaten by Illinois in four seasons under wildcat boss Bob Voigts, had its first scoring threat repulsed on the Illinois 9 early in the third period.

But an interception of a Flowers pass in the end zone by Herb Neathery ended that threat.

Illinois' Don Laz, fumbled on a fourth down punt try and Northwestern took over on the Illini 8, but a holding penalty erased that scoring threat.

Still battling, the Wildcats put over the clincher in the last quarter, starting on their own 46. At the Illini 14, Gene Miller sneaked through his own right tackle. He was momentarily slowed, but kept driving, and suddenly broke into the clear for a touchdown.

The Illini, who didn't throw a pass until the fourth quarter, tried desperately to get back in the game. But their four hasty aerials then produced only one completion. That was good for only eight yards, two others being intercepted.

Score by quarters:

Illinois	7	0	0	0	— 7
Northwestern	0	0	7	7	—14

Illinois scoring: touchdowns-Karras. Conversion - Rebecca placement.

Northwestern scoring: touchdowns-Athen and G. Miller. Conversions - Kragseth (2) (placements).

Baylor Field Goal Blasts S. M. U. Hopes Of Bowl Bid

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A long, lazy field goal by Henry Dickerson with only three minutes and thirty-seven seconds left gave Baylor a 3-0 victory over Southern Methodist today and probably knocked the Methodists out of a bowl invitation.

It had been heraled as a scoring duel between two great passing teams but each bungled all sorts of chances for touchdowns and it remained for Dickerson to do the job the great Larry Isbell of the Bears and Kye Rote of the Methodists couldn't put across.

The field goal came from the S. M. U. 20-yard line as the crowd of 50,000 sat hushed for the only time of the day. With it went S. M. U.'s hopes of getting a bid to either the Orange or Sugar Bowl games.

The Methodists had the consolation only of setting a new intercollegiate record for pass completions. S. M. U. ran its completions to 148 for the season and that was one more than Mississippi made in 1947 in hanging up the record.

LAYNE PUSHES TALK OF TITLE

Moves Into Contention For Charles' Crown With Win Over Walcott

New York, Nov. 25—(AP)—Rex Layne, boxing's newest sensation, and Manager Marv Jenson, mentioned the name of Heavyweight Champion Ezzard Charles today and not a person in the International Boxing Club blinked an eye.

If Jenson had spoken of a possible Layne-Charles match before last night's Walcott-Layne scrap, they would have called for a strait-jacket. But Layne, Jenson, and I.B.C. Matchmaker Al Weill were vindicated last night when the 22-year old ex-GI thoroughly whipped the high-ranking Walcott in a ten-round Madison Square Garden upset.

A 5 to 1 underdog, the Lewiston larruper scored the boxing upset of the year.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello tied up the gash with ten stitches and told Jenson to lay off his gladiator for about two months to give the wound time to heal cleanly.

Jenson, a mink ranch owner, had expressed confidence right along that Rex could beat Walcott. He now feels just as confident that the former paratrooper can take the crown from Charles.

"I think Rex can do it," said Jenson, "but right now we're not going to do anything for a couple of months. We're going back to Salt Lake City tomorrow morning and then Rex and I will fly to Chicago to see the Joe Louis - Cesar Brion fight Wednesday."

Florida Dumped By 'Bama, 41-13

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Alabama smelled a blooming Orange Bowl bid and proved its worth with an impressive 41-13 victory over Florida today.

Ed Salem, one of the most versatile backs ever seen here, planted his suitcase-like shoes all over the Gator Bowl turf as he ran to three touchdowns. His long-throwing right arm did what his feet didn't.

An alert, aggressive Crimson Tide line made it all possible and made Alabama's season record eight victories against two losses with Auburn left to go. It was the sixth straight win and strong reports circulated through the press box that Alabama would be one of the Orange Bowl teams come New Year's Day.

About 18,000 fans sat through freezing weather. But all they had to cheer about was the entry of Florida's sensational sophomore quarterback into the select list of 1,000-yard performers for a season of Southeastern Conference football.

Haywood Sullivan threw to End Dan Howell for 70 yards and one Florida touchdown. He tossed to Howell 46 yards to set up the other. Bubba McGowan scored it and Hubert Brooks converted once.

Crowville Rolls Over Wisner Bulldogs, 32-0

Wisner, La., Nov. 25.—(Special)—Halfback J. D. French, 180-pound captain of the Crowville High School Bulldogs, paced his team to a 32-0 triumph over the Wisner Bulldogs here Wednesday night, scoring three touchdowns, three extra points and hurling a pass for another touchdown.

Quarterback Floyd Mixon scored the first time from the Wisner two-yard line, and French made the next three. On the fifth, which came in the third quarter, French passed to End Billy Joe Laird.

The Crowville eleven finished their regular season play with a record of nine wins, a loss and a tie. To climax the season, the tough Class B team clashes with Winnsboro's Class A Wildcats November 30.

CLEMSON ROUTS AUBURN ELEVEN

Ends Undefeated Season With 41-To-0 Defeat Of Plainsmen

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 25. —(AP)— Clemson, fired with post-season bowl ambitions, lambasted unlucky Auburn, 41-0, before a cold-numbed homecoming crowd of 11,000 here today.

The victory, highlighted by a brief flurry of fisticuffs which brought almost the entire squads of both schools rushing onto the field in the fourth period, left Clemson undefeated for the season.

And it virtually cinched an invitation for Coach Frank Howard's crew to either the Orange or Gator Bowl games on New Year's Day.

For the Auburn Tigers it was the ninth loss in as many starts this year and the sixth game in which they were held scoreless. The shivering fans had the unhappy distinction of being the first homecoming day crowd ever to see Auburn lose.

Miscues were costly for Coach Earl Brown's Bengals. Fumbles opened the way for two of Clemson's six touchdowns and a pass interference penalty led to another.

It was shortly after the start of the fourth quarter that the players tangled over what appeared to be a tiff between Auburn Tackle Ted Varano and a Clemson man, but it was quickly put down and neither team was penalized.

Clemson gained 319 yards rushing to 88 for the Tigers, and accounted for 142 yards more through the air, compared with Auburn's OP.

Score by periods:

Clemson	7	14	13	7	—41

T. C. U. UPSETS OWLS, 62 TO 14

Huston, Texas, Nov. 25—(AP)—Jumping Jack Floyd made hurdles out of would be tacklers today as Texas Christian defeated favored Rice, 26 to 14.

Floyd teamed with quarterback Gilbert Bartosh, both sophomores, to give lightning thrusts to a T. C. U. attack that otherwise was hampered by Rice recoveries of six out eight frog fumbles.

After Rice twice had taken first half leads, Floyd kept the Fort worth team even with touch down runs of 34 and 63 yards. In the second half he plunged over from the three to climax a 73-yard drive and then took an 18 yard pas from Bartosh.

The T. C.U. defence kept Rice deep in its own territory throughout the third period and permitted the Owls to cross midfield only twice in the final quarter, each time to the Frog 27.

End Bill Howton put Rice into a first quarter lead, scoring on an end around play from the 12 yard line. Safety Rex Procter gave the Owls their brief 14-7 lead by intercepting a Bartosh pass and returning it 84 yards.

However Ludiker kicked the first two T. C. U. extra points but missed both second half attempts. Billy Wright converted twice for Rice.

MOST INTERESTING TEAM

Williamsburg, Va.—Barney Wilson, William and Mary basketball coach, calls his 1950-51 team "The most interesting I've ever coached". He'll have at least two newcomers, Bill Chambers and Willie Clark, in the starting lineup. Chambers is a 6'3" sharpshooter from Lynchburg, Va., and Clark is a 6'6" ballhawk from Portsmouth, Va. The Indians open their season on December 2 in Madison Square Garden against St. John's.

COACHES Of the Bloomer Bowl opponents, two all-girl teams that will play a touch football game at Louisiana Tech on Saturday night, Dec. 9, are Jerry Alexander (left) of Rodessa, and Tony Cefalu (right) of Shreveport. Alexander, a Tech halfback, is tutoring the Bulls and Cefalu, who plays end, is mentor of the Dogs. Proceeds from the contest will be used to buy uniforms for the Tech Blue Jackets, marching coed pep organization.

Ernst's Passes Waylay Vanderbilt As Greenies Roll To 35-6 Triumph

By James Saggus

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Quarterback Joe Ernst uncorked a lethal passing attack to lead Tulane to a 35-6 victory over hopelessly outclassed Vanderbilt in a Southeastern Conference football game today.

Ernst flipped his passes with cool precision. He set up all but one Tulane touchdown to outshine by far Vandy's celebrated passing Quarterback Bill Wade. Ernst connected with 16 of 28 attempts.

Tulane scored in the first three periods and coasted in with subs playing much of the last half.

Tulane scored midway of the opening period when Halfback Harold Waggoner exploded through the line for 48 yards. From there out, Ernst's passes, mixed with an effective ground game, kept the Vandy defense baffled.

Halfback George Kinek intercepted three of Wade's passes and all three led to Tulane touchdowns. His first two came in the second quarter.

After the first interception, Ernst whipped three straight passes, the last a 39-yard touchdown toss to Kinek. The drive carried 65 yards. The second was followed by four good Ernst passes and Ronnie Kent's 15-yard run that brought the ball to the three. Waggoner went over for the score.

The second half scores were added by Fullback Kent, and a 27-yard pass from Ernst to End Ferdie Kibodeaux. Vandy scored in the last minute of play on a 13-yard pass from Wade to Halfback Nelson Burton.

Tulane's underrated but overpowering line began to pay off as early as the first quarter. It kept the Vandy attack in check and allowed Tulane to get its plays underway without complication.

Vanderbilt's line was unable to provide consistent protection. The big Tulane forward rushed into the Vandy backfield before the backs could get started.

Kinek got his third pass interception in the third quarter. He took the Wade pass on the Vanderbilt 28 and ran it back to the 12. Kent scored on the first play from scrimmage.

Tulane's second third quarter score came shortly afterward. It was an Ernst pass to Kibodeaux that covered the last 27 yards. Tommy Comeaux converted after all five Tulane touchdowns.

The fourth quarter degenerated into a ragged affair with little known Tulane players getting into the game. The Vanderbilt defense perked up some but it could not keep up a steady pace until the final minutes. Several penalties for unnecessary roughness against both teams marred the second half.

Vanderbilt showed several fleet backs in Fullback Jim Tabor and Halfback Mac Robinson. But neither could get into the open to show much of their broken field ability.

Score by quarters:

Vanderbilt	0	0	0	6	—6
Tulane	7	14	14	0	—35

Vanderbilt scoring: Touchdown Burton.

Tulane scoring: Touchdowns, Waggoner 2. Kinek. Kent. Kibodeaux, conversions, Comeaux 5.

Ouachita Hunters To Register Dogs

Outdoor sportsmen from the entire parish gathered at the second regular meeting of the Ouachita Parish Hunters Association at the Parish Courthouse Nov. 16, to discuss by laws and provisions for the proposed constitution of the group.

The purpose of the organization, as stated in resoultion form, is to create good will and fellowship between all hunters and sportsmen of this and neighboring parishes.

The organization takes in all hunters, regardless of their favorite game, whether it be birds, foxes, coons or rabbits.

An outline plan for identification of hunting dogs throughout the parish was presented for members ship approval at the meeting. Under the suggested system, code numbers and letters would be assigned to each member who wished to register his dogs with the O. P. H. A. The code identification would be tattooed on the inner surface of each dog's ear, providing immediate and loss-proof identification of lost or strayed hounds.

The next regular meeting of the group will be Jan. 11, to be followed with regular meetings the second Thursday night of each month.

CLEMSON ROUTS AUBURN ELEVEN

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 25. —(AP)— Clemson, fired with post-season bowl ambitions, lambasted unlucky Auburn, 41-0, before a cold-numbed homecoming crowd of 11,000 here today.

The victory, highlighted by a brief flurry of fisticuffs which brought almost the entire squads of both schools rushing onto the field in the fourth period, left Clemson undefeated for the season.

And it virtually cinched an invitation for Coach Frank Howard's crew to either the Orange or Gator Bowl games on New Year's Day.

For the Auburn Tigers it was the ninth loss in as many starts this year and the sixth game in which they were held scoreless. The shivering fans had the unhappy distinction of being the first homecoming day crowd ever to see Auburn lose.

Miscues were costly for Coach Earl Brown's Bengals. Fumbles opened the way for two of Clemson's six touchdowns and a pass interference penalty led to another.

It was shortly after the start of the fourth quarter that the players tangled over what appeared to be a tiff between Auburn Tackle Ted Varano and a Clemson man, but it was quickly put down and neither team was penalized.

Clemson gained 319 yards rushing to 88 for the Tigers, and accounted for 142 yards more through the air, compared with Auburn's OP.

Score by periods:

Clemson	7	14	13	7	—41

T. C. U. UPSETS OWLS, 62 TO 14

Huston, Texas, Nov. 25—(AP)—Jumping Jack Floyd made hurdles out of would be tacklers today as Texas Christian defeated favored Rice, 26 to 14.

Floyd teamed with quarterback Gilbert Bartosh, both sophomores, to give lightning thrusts to a T. C. U. attack that otherwise was hampered by Rice recoveries of six out eight frog fumbles.

After Rice twice had taken first half leads, Floyd kept the Fort worth team even with touch down runs of 34 and 63 yards. In the second half he plunged over from the three to climax a 73-yard drive and then took an 18 yard pas from Bartosh.

The T. C.U. defence kept Rice deep in its own territory throughout the third period and permitted the Owls to cross midfield only twice in the final quarter, each time to the Frog 27.

End Bill Howton put Rice into a first quarter lead, scoring on an end around play from the 12 yard line. Safety Rex Procter gave the Owls their brief 14-7 lead by intercepting a Bartosh pass and returning it 84 yards.

However Ludiker kicked the first two T. C. U. extra points but missed both second half attempts. Billy Wright converted twice for Rice.

MOST INTERESTING TEAM

Williamsburg, Va.—Barney Wilson, William and Mary basketball coach, calls his 1950-51 team "The most interesting I've ever coached". He'll have at least two newcomers, Bill Chambers and Willie Clark, in the starting lineup. Chambers is a 6'3" sharpshooter from Lynchburg, Va., and Clark is a 6'6" ballhawk from Portsmouth, Va. The Indians open their season on December 2 in Madison Square Garden against St. John's.

COACHES Of the Bloomer Bowl opponents, two all-girl teams that will play a touch football game at Louisiana Tech on Saturday night, Dec. 9, are Jerry Alexander (left) of Rodessa, and Tony Cefalu (right) of Shreveport. Alexander, a Tech halfback, is tutoring the Bulls and Cefalu, who plays end, is mentor of the Dogs. Proceeds from the contest will be used to buy uniforms for the Tech Blue Jackets, marching coed pep organization.

Ernst's Passes Waylay Vanderbilt As Greenies Roll To 35-6 Triumph

By James Saggus

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Quarterback Joe Ernst uncorked a lethal passing attack to lead Tulane to a 35-6 victory over hopelessly outclassed Vanderbilt in a Southeastern Conference football game today.

Ernst flipped his passes with cool precision. He set up all but one Tulane touchdown to outshine by far Vandy's celebrated passing Quarterback Bill Wade. Ernst connected with 16 of 28 attempts.

Tulane scored in the first three periods and coasted in with subs playing much of the last half.

Tulane scored midway of the opening period when Halfback Harold Waggoner exploded through the line for 48 yards. From there out, Ernst's passes, mixed with an effective ground game, kept the Vandy defense baffled.

Halfback George Kinek intercepted three of Wade's passes and all three led to Tulane touchdowns. His first two came in the second quarter.

After the first interception, Ernst whipped three straight passes, the last a 39-yard touchdown toss to Kinek. The drive carried 65 yards. The second was followed by four good Ernst passes and Ronnie Kent's 15-yard run that brought the ball to the three. Waggoner went over for the score.

The second half scores were added by Fullback Kent, and a 27-yard pass from Ernst to End Ferdie Kibodeaux. Vandy scored in the last minute of play on a 13-yard pass from Wade to Halfback Nelson Burton.

Tulane's underrated but overpowering line began to pay off as early as the first quarter. It kept the Vandy attack in check and allowed Tulane to get its plays underway without complication.

Vanderbilt's line was unable to provide consistent protection. The big Tulane forward rushed into the Vandy backfield before the backs could get started.

Kinek got his third pass interception in the third quarter. He took the Wade pass on the Vanderbilt 28 and ran it back to the 12. Kent scored on the first play from scrimmage.

Tulane's second third quarter score came shortly afterward. It was an Ernst pass to Kibodeaux that covered the last 27 yards. Tommy Comeaux converted after all five Tulane touchdowns.

The fourth quarter degenerated into a ragged affair with little known Tulane players getting into the game. The Vanderbilt defense perked up some but it could not keep up a steady pace until the final minutes. Several penalties for unnecessary roughness against both teams marred the second half.

Vanderbilt showed several fleet backs in Fullback Jim Tabor and Halfback Mac Robinson. But neither could get into the open to show much of their broken field ability.

Score by quarters:

Vanderbilt	0	0	0	6	— 6
Tulane	7	14	14	0	—35

Vanderbilt scoring: Touchdown Burton.

Tulane scoring: Touchdowns, Waggoner 2, Kinek, Kent, Kibodeaux, conversions, Comeaux 5.

Ouachita Hunters To Register Dogs

Outdoor sportsmen from the entire parish gathered at the second regular meeting of the Ouachita Parish Hunters Association at the Parish Courthouse Nov. 16, to discuss by laws and provisions for the proposed constitution of the group.

The purpose of the organization, as stated in resoultion form, is to create good will and fellowship between all hunters and sportsmen of this and neighboring parishes.

The organization takes in all hunters, regardless of their favorite game, whether it be birds, foxes, coons or rabbits.

An outline plan for identification of hunting dogs throughout the parish was presented for members ship approval at the meeting. Under the suggested system, code numbers and letters would be assigned to each member who wished to register his dogs with the O. P. H. A. The code identification would be tattooed on the inner surface of each dog's ear, providing immediate and loss-proof identification of lost or strayed hounds.

The next regular meeting of the group will be Jan. 11, to be followed with regular meetings the second Thursday night of each month.

Duke Collects On Fourth Down Pass

Chapel Hill, N.C., Nov. 25—(AP)—Billy Cox, the nation's No. 3 forward passer, tossed a fourth down pass to Halfback Tom Powers for a 34-yard touchdown today to give Duke a 7-0 Southern Conference football victory over North Carolina.

The play in the third period enabled Duke to register its first victory in five years over the Tar Heels and wind up with a 7-3 record — Duke's best in seven years.

A shivering crowd of 40,000 watched in sub-freezing weather as Duke repeatedly staved off North Carolina threats.

Four times North Carolina was halted within the Duke 20. Twice the Tar Heels were unable to come up with a scoring punch when within the Duke 10.

An attempted quick kick which backfield set up the game's only score. The break came after North Carolina was unable to advance the second half kickoff. Quarterback Bud Wallace tried a quick kick from his 27 on third down. It was blocked by Tackle Carl Holben and Duke took over on the Tar Heel 37.

Three plays netted three yards. On fourth down Cox found Powers on the three. The Duke halfback was hit as he cauht the ball by Halfback Dick Bunting but went the rest of the way. End Mike Souchak converted and the scoring was over.

INDUSTRY SUFFERS

smashed beach homes a mile inland on New York's Staten Island. More than 1,000 families were evacuated from flooded east coast shore areas.

The worst blizzard in 37 years dumped a paralyzing blanket of snow over the important Ohio industrial centers of Cleveland, Youngstown, Akron and Canton.

Pittsburgh was smothered under the heaviest continued snowfall in its history. Snow piled up a depth of 22 inches and more was in prospect. The U. S. Steel Corp. began closing its big plants employing more than 50,000. A spokesman said the situation was "very serious" and might cause heavy damage. Because of the snow, workers and materials couldn't be moved to and from the plants.

The same storm dumped as much as 30 inches of snow on parts of West Virginia.

It was the same story in all cities buried under the mountainous snow drifts: trolley, taxi, bus auto and airline transportation came to a virtual halt. Trains were several hours late. Some big department stores didn't try to open. Hundreds of workers tramped to work on foot, but thousands of others stayed home. Many newspapers couldn't distribute their Saturday afternoon editions.

For the first time since the war, a New York mayor alerted civilian defense forces. Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri urged them to aid police and firemen in rescue and emergency repair work. He asked all other civilians to stay off the streets.

Floods and fallen wires left a half million homes in the greater New York-northern New Jersey area without electricity. Power failure forced at least seven radio stations in New York and New Jersey off the air. A five story building collapsed near the polo grounds in upper Manhattan.

The New York weather bureau said gusts of 70 to 80 miles an hour would continue until last Saturday.

Some 3,000 telephones were knocked out of service by the high winds in New Jersey.

The heaviest snowfall recorded was at Lumberport, a small town about 12 miles north of Clarksburg, W. Va. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad said the town had a 42-inch fall.

All of Michigan was storm bound. The snow ranged from three inches in Detroit to more than a foot in the upper peninsula.

The snow tapered off late Saturday in Pennsylvania, but forecasters said snow flurries might follow. The storm halted crime and finance. For the first time in 14 years there was no trading at the Pittsburgh stock exchanges. Police had no reports of crimes for a 14 hour period.

The storm crippled all forms of transportation, business and industry. The coast guarrd reported the tugboat Whitney sunk outside the harbor at Toledo with 10 persons aboard.

Cleveland called for help, after a losing battle with the storm. Gov. Frank J. Lausche ordered the 112th engineers of the Ohio National guard and their equipment to augment Cleveland workers.

It was the same story in Canton, Akron, Youngstown and Warren, O. Normal life ceased as workers huddled at home, unable to get to their jobs.

Many newspapers in the area abandoned any plans to publish afternoon editions. Many churches said they probably would be unable to hold Sunday services. Even taxis quit operating.

Steady 83 mile an hour winds, with at least one gust of 96, churned up abnormally high tides along the eastern seaboard. The sea raced a mile inland over five Staten Island beaches flattening three seaside cottages. Ten persons were rescued.

The winds ranked the seaboard from Virginia to New England. High seas washed out railroad tracks between Matawan and Perth Amboy, N.J. Airport control tower workers in New York and New Jersey were ordered to leave their posts when the ripping winds threatened to topple the towers.

Some 250 families were evacuated by emergency trucks and boats from the Morgan beach area near Perth Amboy, N.J. and taken to disaster headquarters. Veterans in the Raritan Bay area said conditions were worse than the 1944 hurricane and the water level was the highest in 22 years.

Record breaking temperatures and driving snow brought misery to the south.

Mt. Mitchell, N.C., highest point east of the Mississippi River, had a reading of 19 degrees below zero. Sub freezing weather was predicted for the resort city of Miami, Fla., Saturday night.

Earmuffs and gloves were smart attire in Atlanta, which had a low of 3.4 degrees. Knoxville, Tenn. had one below. Owensboro, Ky., had seven below.

Snow swirled across North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama Friday.

By the Vote of the Manufacturers Whose Products You Sell—

FLASH—

NEW YORK—NATIONAL ADVERTISERS INVESTED $445,015,000 IN NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IN 1949. IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY, MAKING DAILY NEWSPAPERS THE BIGGEST NATIONAL ADVERTISING MEDIUM ON THE BASIS OF HOW U.S. MANUFACTURERS DIVIDE THEIR ADVERTISING DOLLARS.

NOW MANUFACTURERS ARE BACKING YOU WITH MORE LOCAL SALESPOWER THAN EVER

You've seen how, more and more, the manufacturers whose products you sell have chosen newspaper advertising to help you ring up still bigger sales.

All over America, the same thing has been happening. And naturally, national advertising in newspapers has been growing—from $270,000,000 in 1946 to $357,000,000 in 1947 — to $389,261,000 in 1948 — to the fourth all-time high of $445,015,000 in 1949.

All over America, it's been happening because manufacturers have been discovering what most retailers have always known:

There's nothing like newspaper advertising to make merchandise move. For the simple reason that no other kind of advertising reaches so many people — is so sure to reach all your customers and prospects, or so sure to hit them when they're ready to buy.

That's why it's good news for everybody who sells that newspapers now top all other media in dollar expenditures by national advertisers.

Actually, in 1949, national advertisers invested in newspapers —

More than 15 times as much as in farm magazines

More than twice as much as on all four of the great national radio networks combined.

$32,000,000 more than in all general magazines combined.

Over $4,000,000 more than in all general and all farm magazines put together.

For you who sell at retail, that's local salespower plus — salespower right here in town and nearby, where you need it.

When your manufacturers back you up with newspaper advertising, may we suggest that it's smart business to make the most of this extra local salespower—with such things as good shelf position, better display, extra push in your own advertising.

When your manufacturers don't give you this kind of support — ask them why.

An attempted quick kick which backfield set up the game's only score. The break came after North Carolina was unable to advance the second half kickoff. Quarterback Bud Wallace tried a quick kick from his 27 on third down. It was blocked by Tackle Carl Holben and Duke took over on the Tar Heel 37.

Three plays netted three yards. On fourth down Cox found Powers on the three. The Duke halfback was hit as he cauht the ball by Halfback Dick Bunting but went the rest of the way. End Mike Souchak converted and the scoring was over.

Basketball Loops Meet Tomorrow

A meeting or representatives for teams entering the Midget, Junior Girls; and City Basketball Leagues will be held Monday night at the recreation center, Director Jack Hesketh announced last night.

The Midget and Junior League meeting will be held at 7 p.m.; the Girls League at 7:30 and the City League at 8 o'clock.

"Team managers or representatives planning to enter teams in any of the league competition should be present," Hesketh added, since rules playing dates and other arrangements will be discussed.

Holmes, East Mississippi Foes In Lions Bowl Tilt

Laurel, Miss., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Holmes Bulldogs of Goodman, 1950 state junior college football champions, and the East Mississippi Lions of Scooba, the runner-up, will play in the sixth annual Lions Bowl football game here on the night of Dec. 2. The Laurel Lions Club announced its selection today.

The two clubs did not meet in regular season competition.

More than 1,000 families were evacuated from flooded east coast shore areas.

The worst blizzard in 37 years dumped a paralyzing blanket of snow over the important Ohio industrial centers of Cleveland, Youngstown, Akron and Canton.

Pittsburgh was smothered under the heaviest continued snowfall in its history. Snow piled up a depth of 22 inches and more was in prospect. The U. S. Steel Corp. began closing its big plants employing more than 50,000. A spokesman said the situation was "very serious" and might cause heavy damage. Because of the snow, workers and materials couldn't be moved to and from the plants.

The same storm dumped as much as 30 inches of snow on parts of West Virginia.

It was the same story in all cities buried under the mountainous snow drifts: trolley, taxi, bus auto and airline transportation came to a virtual halt. Trains were several hours late. Some big department stores didn't try to open. Hundreds of workers tramped to work on foot, but thousands of others stayed home. Many newspapers couldn't distribute their Saturday afternoon editions.

For the first time since the war, a New York mayor alerted civilian defense forces. Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri urged them to aid police and firemen in rescue and emergency repair work. He asked all other civilians to stay off the streets.

Floods and fallen wires left a half million homes in the greater New York-northern New Jersey area without electricity. Power failure forced at least seven radio stations in New York and New Jersey off the air. A five story building collapsed near the polo grounds in upper Manhattan.

The New York weather bureau said gusts of 70 to 80 miles an hour would continue until last Saturday.

Some 3,000 telephones were knocked out of service by the high winds in New Jersey.

The heaviest snowfall recorded was at Lumberport, a small town about 12 miles north of Clarksburg, W. Va. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad said the town had a 42-inch fall.

All of Michigan was storm bound. The snow ranged from three inches in Detroit to more than a foot in the upper peninsula.

The snow tapered off late Saturday in Pennsylvania, but forecasters said snow flurries might follow. The storm halted crime and finance. For the first time in 14 years there was no trading at the Pittsburgh stock exchanges. Police had no reports of crimes for a 14 hour period.

The storm crippled all forms of transportation, business and industry. The coast guarrd reported the tugboat Whitney sunk outside the harbor at Toledo with 10 persons aboard.

Cleveland called for help, after a losing battle with the storm. Gov. Frank J. Lausche ordered the 112th engineers of the Ohio National guard and their equipment to augment Cleveland workers.

It was the same story in Canton, Akron, Youngstown and Warren, O. Normal life ceased as workers huddled at home, unable to get to their jobs.

Many newspapers in the area abandoned any plans to publish afternoon editions. Many churches said they probably would be unable to hold Sunday services. Even taxis quit operating.

Steady 83 mile an hour winds, with at least one gust of 96, churned up abnormally high tides along the eastern seaboard. The sea raced a mile inland over five Staten Island beaches flattening three seaside cottages. Ten persons were rescued.

The winds ranked the seaboard from Virginia to New England. High seas washed out railroad tracks between Matawan and Perth Amboy, N.J. Airport control tower workers in New York and New Jersey were ordered to leave their posts when the ripping winds threatened to topple the towers.

Some 250 families were evacuated by emergency trucks and boats from the Morgan beach area near Perth Amboy, N.J. and taken to disaster headquarters. Veterans in the Raritan Bay area said conditions were worse than the 1944 hurricane and the water level was the highest in 22 years.

Record breaking temperatures and driving snow brought misery to the south.

Mt. Mitchell, N.C., highest point east of the Mississippi River, had a reading of 19 degrees below zero. Sub freezing weather was predicted for the resort city of Miami, Fla., Saturday night.

Earmuffs and gloves were smart attire in Atlanta, which had a low of 3.4 degrees. Knoxville, Tenn. had one below. Owensboro, Ky., had seven below.

FLASH—

NEW YORK—NATIONAL ADVERTISERS INVESTED $445,015,000 IN NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IN 1949. IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY, MAKING DAILY NEWSPAPERS THE BIGGEST NATIONAL ADVERTISING MEDIUM ON THE BASIS OF HOW U.S. MANUFACTURERS DIVIDE THEIR ADVERTISING DOLLARS.

NOW MANUFACTURERS ARE BACKING YOU WITH MORE LOCAL SALESPOWER THAN EVER

You've seen how, more and more, the manufacturers whose products you sell have chosen newspaper advertising to help you ring up still bigger sales.

All over America, the same thing has been happening. And naturally, national advertising in newspapers has been growing—from $270,000,000 in 1946 to $357,000,000 in 1947 — to $389,261,000 in 1948 — to the fourth all-time high of $445,015,000 in 1949.

All over America, it's been happening because manufacturers have been discovering what most retailers have always known:

There's nothing like newspaper advertising to make merchandise move. For the simple reason that no other kind of advertising reaches so many people — is so sure to reach all your customers and prospects, or so sure to hit them when they're ready to buy.

That's why it's good news for everybody who sells that newspapers now top all other media in dollar expenditures by national advertisers.

Actually, in 1949, national advertisers invested in newspapers —

More than 15 times as much as in farm magazines

More than twice as much as on all four of the great national radio networks combined.

$32,000,000 more than in all general magazines combined.

Over $4,000,000 more than in all general and all farm magazines put together.

For you who sell at retail, that's local salespower plus — salespower right here in town and nearby, where you need it.

When your manufacturers back you up with newspaper advertising, may we suggest that it's smart business to make the most of this extra local salespower—with such things as good shelf position, better display, extra push in your own advertising.

When your manufacturers don't give you this kind of support — ask them why.

Miss Vettye Bernhardt Is Bride Of Mr. James Walter Morton

Couple Exchange Vows In Impressive Double-Ring Ceremony At The First Methodist Church

One of the loveliest weddings of the season was that of Miss Vettye Bernhardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bernhardt, to Jerry Walter Morton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Walter Morton of Shreveport performed by the Rev A. N. Serex. pastor. First Methodist Church, November 25 at seven o'clock in the evening. The altar was decorated with baskets of large white Chattanooga chrysanthemums against a background of greenery in smilax, illuminated by the glow of white cathedral tapers which burned in floor candelabra. Large white chrysanthemums and white satin ribbons marked the ribbon pews.

Preceding the ceremony Mr. Leon Hammonds rendered a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Robert Wood, who sang, "I Love You Truly" and "I Love Thee." To the traditional wedding march the bride entered on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. The bride was lovley in a gown of imported ivory chantilly lace over ivory satin. The yoke was sheer with designs of appliqued lace around the neckline, splashed with iridescent sequins and seed pearls The sleeves were long and came to a point over the wrist closing with tiny covered satin buttons. The waist was basque with tiny satin covered buttons extending down the back below the waist line. Her fingertip veil was of imported French illusion enhanced by a quaint Dutch bonnet of matching satin with designs of matchin lace appliqued on with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Also finishing the edge of the bonnet were tiny seed pearls matching the ones on the dress. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with two white cattleya orchids and streamers knotted with valley lilies.

Mrs. J. L. Bates, Jr., of New Orleans, sister of the bride, was her matron of honor, and was dressed in off-the-shoulder bronze colored velveteen gown with matching bronze Dutch hat, and bronze gloves. Her bouquet was a cascade of gold lode chrysanthemums, and shaded gold and green streamers.Her bridesmaids were: Mrs. C. S. Rockefeller, Mrs. W. Theron Roberts and Mrs. Charles Cone, Miss Ernestine Reed of Shreveport, Mrs. Clayton Ing of Texarkana, Ark., and Miss Betty Roddey. They wore emerald green velveteen dresses off-the-shoulder with matching gloves and bronze velvet Dutch hats and flowered muffs in bronze velvet decorated with gold lode chrysanthemums and shaded ribbon streamers of gold and green.

Doris Solomon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Seymour Solomon was flower girl and her dress was an exact replica of the bridesmaids in style but in yellow. She scattered rose petals in front of the bride.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was his father, Mr. James Walter Morton of Shreveport. His groomsmen were: Jewel Lane Bates, Jr., of New Orleans, Louis Edmon Braun of Layfayette, Henry Clayton Mullin, Andrew Quuerbes, Jr., Lewin Nelson Semon, Jr., and Allen Ardis Shaffer of Shreveport.

The bride's mother was wearing an imported gray lace dress with deep scalloped bertha over gray taffeta with gracefully draped skirt, and her hat was of matching lace with silver lace trimmed flower. Her gloves were long lace in matching color. She wore a corsage of white cattleya orchid. The groom's mother wore an original model of imported chantilly lace in champagne with gracious lines of simple elegance. The bodice of her dress softly shirred, and the very full graceful skirt was caught into a tierred bustle effect in the back. The matching fitted bolero jacket was softly tied at the neckline with full length sleeves tapering into points at her wrists. She wore a tiny pink frost hat of flowers studded in rhinestones and pale pink gloves completed her ensemble. Her corsage was small brown odontglossum grandi orchids.

The bride's table was overlaid with a handsome heirloom lace cloth and was centered with the wedding cake, a three-tiered confection that was embossed in roses and lilies of the valley and surmounted with a spray of blossoms and a spray between each set of columns. White satin nosegays of valley lilies were at each corner of the table with satin streamers falling loosely over the sides. After the bride and groom cut the wedding cake it was served by Mrs. W. READING CERTIFICATES AWARDED AT SOCIAL HOUR GIVEN BY OUACHITA PARISH PUBLIC LIBRARY RECENTLY

One of the most rewarding projects sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library is the development of interest in earning adult reading certificates awarded by the Louisiana State Library in Baton Rouge. Each fall the Louisiana State Library sends out a suggested reading list from which patrons may choose books to read. Twelve books are required to earn a certificate and they must be books from different groups. This year Ouachita Parish Public Library had 112 people who earned such certificates.

The board of control of the Ouachita Parish Public Library entertained these people at a party at the Monroe library on the night of November 17. Miss Essae Martha Culver, state librarian and Mrs. Lois Lester, a member of the board of the Louisiana State Library were the honor guests on this occasion. Mrs. Lester gave a fascinating talk about the birds of Louisiana and showed her lovely pictures which she has copied from the works of John James Audubon. Miss Culver complimented the guests on earning reading certificates in the state of Louisiana. Miss Culver discussed the spread of the library movement all over the state of Louisiana and expressed the hope that in a few years Ouachita parish would have a new and imposing library building. Miss Culver then awarded the certificates with a great deal of charm.

READING CERTIFICATES AWARDED AT SOCIAL HOUR GIVEN BY OUACHITA PARISH PUBLIC LIBRARY RECENTLY

One of the most rewarding projects sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library is the development of interest in earning adult reading certificates awarded by the Louisiana State Library in Baton Rouge. Each fall the Louisiana State Library sends out a suggested reading list from which patrons may choose books to read. Twelve books are required to earn a certificate and they must be books from different groups. This year Ouachita Parish Public Library had 112 people who earned such certificates.

The board of control of the Ouachita Parish Public Library entertained these people at a party at the Monroe library on the night of November 17. Miss Essae Martha Culver, state librarian and Mrs. Lois Lester, a member of the board of the Louisiana State Library were the honor guests on this occasion. Mrs. Lester gave a fascinating talk about the birds of Louisiana and showed her lovely pictures which she has copied from the works of John James Audubon. Miss Culver complimented the guests on earning reading certificates in the state of Louisiana. Miss Culver discussed the spread of the library movement all over the state of Louisiana and expressed the hope that in a few years Ouachita parish would have a new and imposing library building. Miss Culver then awarded the certificates with a great deal of charm.

A delightful social hour was enjoyed at which delicious refreshments were served by the members of the library staff and the members of the board of control. Everyone present expressed delight with Mrs. Lester and Miss Culver and hoped that they would return again next year. HOTELS LOSE

New York — (AP)—Taking towels from hotels may be a joke to the taker but not to the hostelry owner. No matter what you pay for the room, if you take a towel, the hotel loses money on the transaction, report owners. Most hotels pay $2.50 per towel.

The Hotel Edison here recently took an informal survey to discover if towel-taking was predominant among residents of any one section of the U. S. Owner Irwin Kramer reports that it can't be traced to any one part, but that "people from all over do it mostly for a gag. These same people wouldn't ever dream of sticking their hand in my pocket when I wasn't looking and taking out $2.50," he moans.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

With the cooperation of bright sunshine interested leaders and parents, the American Legion, and the Boy Scouts, more than 200 Girl Scouts enjoyed the two playdays on Monday and Tuesday while schools were closed. The Brownies, meeting on the lawn of the American Legion home, began the day with a flag ceremony by Troop 20, and followed with games and singing. It was the first city-wide get-together for Brownies in several years, we are told, and we know we'll have to have one at least once a year from now on.

Since there was a little rain early Monday morning, Troop 13 with their leaders Mrs. Netherland and Mrs. Mosley, went to Sateland, expecting to find the other Brownie Scouts. When no others showed up, Troop 13 had a skating party all its own and had lots of fun The Brownies will have to have a skating party soon.

Intermediate Scouts, gathered around the flag pole at Camp Kiroli for a flag raising in charge of Troop 9. Dividing into groups, the girls followed the nearby trials, had a weiner roast at noon, and gathered at the council ring for singing before going home. Not all troops too part in either playday, but those who did represented a number of troops from all parts of the Twin Cities, and proved that the play days were a worth while project.

Christmas is just around the corner, they tell us, and the store windows and street decorations bear out the statement. Christmas means a lot of opportunities for community service, chances to make other people happy. Girl Scouts in intermediate troops will again have an opportunity to make a Christmas carol record to be played over the air and at several civic affairs. Mr. Joe Craig, principal of Ouachita parish Grammar School, has consented to train this chorus, and we know a great many girls will want to tae advantage of this training—Tuesdays and Thursdays at Ouachita Parish School at 4:00.

Another Christmas activity that the girls look torward to is helping with the Salvation Army kettles. This year the chairman of the drive, Mr. Fran Brennan, has asked the Girl Scouts to have charge of two booths on Saturday, Dec. 16. Troops may volunteer for any hour of that day by calling the office. First call, first choice.

TRIBESMAN MAKES CLAIM

Khartoum, Sudan.—(AP)—A Dongola tribesman made a novel claim for government compensation in the death of his father in 1924.

DISCUSSION OVER TEACHERS

Types Of Instructors Given Consideration By P.-T. A. Members

What kind of teachers do parents like? This was the main question for discussion when Sherrouse P.-T. A. members met in various study groups recently.

In her article in the National Parent-Teacher, Margaret Meigs says, "We parents depend upon our children's teachers for professional competence. We need to feel confidence in them just as we do in our doctors. It is particularly important that our children's teacher be able to give us a sense of security—of confidence in her ability."

"There is no simple formula we can offer for inspiring parents with a feeling of confidence in teachers," states Mrs. Meigs. Parents have individual differences, too. attitude and background, we parents have in common the fact that we are parents and we are adults. We like a teacher who meets us as a fellow-grownup. Then we can come together as two people with a deep, but a very different, interest in a child's education. Neither of us can replace, nor wishes to do without, the other. Mutual respect is basic to good parent-teacher relations."

The pre-school age groups discussed the article entitled "Not To Young To Share" by Ernest G. Osborne.

Dr. Osborne says, "When most of us think of sharing we think of it chiefly in terms of giving. "Billy," we say, with the best intentions, "Give up your dump truck to your little friend. You must learn to share your playthings, you know." Yet the true joy of sharing lies both in giving and getting.

"Most important of all, and the base on which unselfishness is built is affection, love," asserts Dr. Osborne.

"Talking is a social thing", says Dr. Spencer F. Brown in his article in the current issue of the National Parent - Teachers, which will be the topic for discussion when the pre-school study group of Sherrouse P.-T. A. meets Wed., Nov. 29, at 3:15 p. m. at the school

All groups, both pre-school and elementary, will meet together in the sixth grade room, and then will seperate into three groups for study and discussion.

The elementary group will discuss the article entitled "When is a Child a Real Problem?" by Peter Blos.

All P.-T. A. members and interested persons are urged to attend this important meeting. A nursery will be maintained for small children, according to Mrs. Henry Long, chairman of study groups.

SECONDS TO SPARE

With The 1st Marine Air Wing In Korea.—(AP)—Seconds before the plane burst into a mass of flames, Navy Hospital Man Third Class, Charles B. Stalcup, rushed in despite the cries of warning and dragged out the marine pilot who had collapsed by his fighter. The pilot had just taken off from Kimpo Air Field with a full load of bombs and ammunition for a combat strike when he noticed his plane was leading oil. He crash landed and jumped out of the burning plane, managing to get several feet away before he collapsed. HM-3 Stalcup pulled the pilot up on his back and carried him out of danger. They made it just in time. A couple of seconds later the bombs exploded along with a number of rockets.

DISCUSSION OVER TEACHERS

What kind of teachers do parents like? This was the main question for discussion when Sherrouse P.-T. A. members met in various study groups recently.

In her article in the National Parent-Teacher, Margaret Meigs says, "We parents depend upon our children's teachers for professional competence. We need to feel confidence in them just as we do in our doctors. It is particularly important that our children's teacher be able to give us a sense of security—of confidence in her ability."

"There is no simple formula we can offer for inspiring parents with a feeling of confidence in teachers," states Mrs. Meigs. Parents have individual differences, too, attitude and background, we parents have in common the fact that we are parents and we are adults. We like a teacher who meets us as a fellow-grownup. Then we can come together as two people with a deep, but a very different, interest in a child's education. Neither of us can replace, nor wishes to do without, the other. Mutual respect is basic to good parent-teacher relations."

The pre-school age groups discussed the article entitled "Not To Young To Share" by Ernest G. Osborne.

Dr. Osborne says, "When most of us think of sharing we think of it chiefly in terms of giving. "Billy," we say, with the best intentions, "Give up your dump truck to your little friend. You must learn to share your playthings, you know." Yet the true joy of sharing lies both in giving and getting.

"Most important of all, and the base on which unselfishness is built is affection, love," asserts Dr. Osborne.

"Talking is a social thing", says Dr. Spencer F. Brown in his article in the current issue of the National Parent - Teachers, which will be the topic for discussion when the pre-school study group of Sherrouse P.-T. A. meets Wed., Nov. 29, at 3:15 p. m. at the school

All groups, both pre-school and elementary, will meet together in the sixth grade room, and then will seperate into three groups for study and discussion.

The elementary group will discuss the article entitled "When is a Child a Real Problem?" by Peter Blos.

All P.-T. A. members and interested persons are urged to attend this important meeting. A nursery will be maintained for small children, according to Mrs. Henry Long, chairman of study groups.

SECONDS TO SPARE

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO 1

1. Yes, decidedly. Thyra Samter Winslow suggests some ways to improve your IQ: (1) Overcome fear of the opposite sex. (2) Don't be cold or indifferent. Cold people never let themselves go. (3) Be warm, friendly and show it. (4) Be frank and honest. Cheating in love will out eventually if not now. Following these simple rules will raise your Love Quotient.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 2

2. Yes. We have to feed several million people-including me-about 20 years longer than we did in 1900. We have to furnish doctors, soap, hair restorers, beautifiers, medicines, canes and crutches, (I haven't got the latter yet.) We also have to furnish the means of living, including old age pensions all these extra years. We produce vastly more goods, yet in many things supply can't meet demand. Ihope you youngsters under 60 think we're worth it!

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 3

3. Yes, says Prof.J.H.S. Bossard, University of Pennsylvania."What excellent company he can be! You can talk freely to him. He does not argue as to the propriety of your remarks. HOMES AND BUYING

New York.—(AP)—The effect of new home buying on various industries is shown by a survey of families in the vast Levittown community on Long Island.

Conducted by the "Magazine of Building," it indicate that the 15,000 families who will be living there by next February will spend $21,805,000 n their first year of occupancy for furnishings and home accessories an everage of $1,432 per family.

The survey was based on a sampling of 100 families who had been in their new $8,000 homes for eight months to a year. They had spent $39,268 for new furniture. Projected for 15,000 families this indicated an expenditure of $5,890,200 for furniture. Automobile prospects amounted to $5,709,750.

Chapman Rules Private Development Of Oyster Shell 'Not In Public Interest'

Washington, Nov. 25 —(AP)— Secretary of the Interior Chapman ruled today against commercial development of the oyster shell deposits of the East Cove unit of the Sabine National Wildlife refuge in Louisiana.

Chapman said proposed private developments on the largest and most important waterfowl wintering refuge in the south would be "not in the public interest."

Proposed exploitation of the shell deposits, he said, would seriously affect the Mississippi flyway, the migratory route followed by thouands of waterfowl.

"The Sabine refuge is an essential and highly strategic link in the refue system," Chapman said.

"It affords an irreplaceable wintering ground for the annual concentration of large numbers of ducks and geese of many species at the southern terminus of these migrations.

"It follows any reduction in the capacity of this refuge will correspondinly decrease the supply of birds throughout the entire Mississippi flyway.

"It has been determined that progressive excavations south of the present shore of Lake Calcasieu, as proposed, will result in disrupting the drainage affecting under ground waters to the death of the excavations essential to the utilization of the shell deposits on the refuge."

Albert M. Day, director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, said the ruling was a wise decision. He said that in a season up to 1,500,000 birds occupy the 142,749-acre refuge.

Day added that the 14,000 acres of East Cove Unit are particularly popular with the big Canada geese and were bought specifically for them.

Not Wise To Pass Wiith Biddable Hand

By Oswald Jacoby

Written for NEA Service

In one of my very first articles for this column I showed how a player who failed to open with a biddable hand might get shut out of the auction altogether. That's not the only danger of passing with a biddable hand. Another trouble is that you may never thereafter show the value of the hand.

This danger is shown in today's hand, taken from an international team match recently played in Amsterdam.

South had no trouble making his contract. He took the opening lead with dummy's ace of hearts, drew trumps in three rounds, and ran the spades to discard dummy's heart losers. It was then safe to knock out the ace of clubs.

Six spades could not have been made against a heart lead. Declarer could win and draw trumps, but then the opponents would cash a heart trick when they were given the ace of clubs.

When this hand was played in the other room, the North player passed instead of opening the bid ding. South opened, of course, with one spade. Now North tried to show his values by a jump to three no-trump.

This jump was not enough. North had managed to show a good hand, but he had not managed to show the magnificent fit for diamonds that was needed to bid a slam in that suit—the only makable slam. South had no worries about three no-trump and thus missing thus slam.

Incidentally, North's opening bid in the first room was not his only fine bid. The jump from four clubs to five diamonds was a very good choice too. After opening the bidding, North had made minimum rebids in no-trump, indicating that he had a balanced hand and a weak opening bid.

When South still persisted, going to four clubs, North could safely show that he really had a very good fit for diamonds. He had already shown a weak hand (for a player who could open the bidding), so this jump could not be interpreted as a very strong bid.

As it happened, the jump to five diamonds was all the encouragement South needed. North had a weak opening bid, he knew, but it surely included four diamonds to the queen, an ace, and some strength in hearts.

With weaker diamonds, or without an ace, North would have bid only four diamonds. With nothing in hearts, North could not have repeatedly bid no-trump.

ACCUSED ELEVEN DENIES CONTEMPT

Arraigned, Released On Bail Charged With Refusing To Answer

Washington, Nov. 25—(AP)—Eleven persons accused of contempt of congress for refusing to answer questions of the house un-American activities committee pleaded innocent today.

They included a former atomic scientist, a west coast heiress and seven officials and active members of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

Ten were arraigned and released on bail this morning.

Dr. Clarence F. Hiskey entered his plea this afternoon before District Judge Burnita S. Matthews, who had received the pleas of the others earlier in the day.

Hiskey, a chemist, did research at the University of Chicago in connection with development of the atomic bomb. He was suspended this week from his job as a professor at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. After his arraignment Dr. Hiskey told reporters that he did not care to comment at this time.

But the left-wing United Electrical Workers commented at length. It called the indictment of its officers and active members a "union busting" drive.

One of the 12 persons indicted by a grand jury last Monday for failure to answer questions during the un-American activities committee's investigation of communism still is to be arraigned. He is Frank Hashmall of Cincinnati.

Charles B. Murray, an assistant U. S. district attorney told reporters that Hashmall has not been found although a warrant for his arrest was issued several days ago.

Bonds of $1,000 and $1,500 were posted. District Judge Burnita A. Matthews gave the defense until Dec. 19 to enter motions.

Arraigned persons included Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper published in New York, and Louise Bransten Berman, New York City, termed by committee members a financial "angel" for Communist causes. She inherited a west coast fortune.

Seven others arraigned were officials and members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. A statement issued by the "U. E. defense committee" after the court appearance, said the indictment is part of "the plan to silence the American people and destroy their fighting organizations."

The seven are:

Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer; James J. Matles, director of organization; Thomas Quinn, Pittsburgh; Talmadge Raley, Cincinnati Esther Tice, Cincinnati; Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Pittsburgh; Frank Panzino, Pittsburgh.

The other defendant arraigned was Pasquale L. J. Branca, former Washington school teacher.

The two not yet arraigned are Clarence Haskey, Brooklyn, a chemist who worked on the atom bomb project at the University of Chicago, and Frank Hashmall, Cincinnati.

The grand jury has before it complaints concerning other witnesses accused of failing to answer questions of congressional groups.

ACCUSED ELEVEN DENIES CONTEMPT

Arraigned, Released On Bail Charged With Refusing To Answer

Washington, Nov. 25—(AP)—Eleven persons accused of contempt of congress for refusing to answer questions of the house un-American activities committee pleaded innocent today.

They included a former atomic scientist, a west coast heiress and seven officials and active members of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

Ten were arraigned and released on bail this morning.

Dr. Clarence F. Hiskey entered his plea this afternoon before District Judge Burnita S. Matthews, who had received the pleas of the others earlier in the day.

Hiskey, a chemist, did research at the University of Chicago in conncetion with development of the atomic bomb. He was suspended this week from his job as a professor at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. After his arraignment Dr. Hiskey told reporters that he did not care to comment at this time.

But the left-wing United Electrical Workers commented at length. It called the indictment of its officers and active members a "union busting" drive.

One of the 12 persons indicted by a grand jury last Monday for failure to answer questions during the un-American activities committee's investigation of communism still is to be arraigned. He is Frank Hashmall of Cincinnati.

Charles B. Murray, an assistant U. S. district attorney told reporters that Hashmall has not been found although a warrant for his arrest was issued several days ago.

Bonds of $1,000 and $1,500 were posted. District Judge Burnita A. Matthews gave the defense until Dec. 19 to enter motions.

Arraigned persons included Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper published in New York, and Louise Bransten Berman, New York City, termed by committee members a financial "angel" for Communist causes. She inherited a west coast fortune.

Seven others arraigned were officials and members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. A statement issued by the "U. E. defense committee" after the court appearance, said the indictment is part of "the plan to silence the American people and destroy their fighting organizations."

The seven are:

Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer; James J. Matles, director of organization; Thomas Quinn, Pittsburgh; Talmadge Raley, Cincinnati Esther Tice, Cincinnati; Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Pittsburgh; Frank Panzino, Pittsburgh.

The other defendant arraigned was Pasquale L. J. Branca, former Washington school teacher.

The two not yet arraigned are Clarence Haskey, Brooklyn, a chemist who worked on the atom bomb project at the University of Chicago, and Frank Hashmall, Cincinnati.

The grand jury has before it complaints concerning other witnesses accused of failing to answer questions of congressional groups.

MacKenzie's Column

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

This is the day set for the convening of a constituent assembly in Tripoli to lay the groundwork for the creation of a Libian monarchy.

This new state, which will be sponsored by the United Nations, will comprise the former Italian colonies of Cyrenaica, Tripolitania and the Fezzan. Militarily it will represent one of the most important areas of the Mediterranean zone, and as such will rank high in the calculation of the great powers.

The shipping lane through the Mediterranean to the Suez Canal and the far east runs close to the Libian coast. And the port of Tobruk, which did Yeoman's service in the last war, forms a saddle across the shipping life-line with the great island of Crete to the north.

Over this new nation will preside Sayid Mohammedan Idris as Senussi, the princely personage who is spiritual head of the Mohammedan sect that bears his family name—Senussi. This is a religious order which subscribes to the simplicity of the early Mohammedan faith and has a large following.

So the grand Senussi, as the prince is known, will be a powerful figure. I have mentioned him before in our column but he is worth getting a bit more acquainted with, in view of developments. I had a long talk with him in Cairo in 42, during the fighting in Lbia, and found him a striking personality.

I was taken to see the grand Senussi in his closely guarded residence in an exclusive and secluded section of Cairo. Just in passing it may be mentioned that the prince has the good looks which romance assigns to desert sheiks. He is tall and slim and has the customary beard and mustache. And he has the reputation of being able to ride and shoot in storybook style.

This day he was wearing a Moslem turban and a full length coat over a silken robe. His only jewelry was a ring on his little finger, but it was a magnificent green jade affair. He is reputed to possess great wealth.

Because of the great strategic importance of Libia I immediately raised the question of its future. His observations take on special significance now because they showed his feelings of freindship to Britain, whose special claims in that Mediterranean area were then, as now, a matter of international importance. I asked him if he expected some sort of protectorate to be established over his country, and he replied:

"We feel that we should have our freedom first. The rest easily can be arranged. We certainly shall need uidance in our new state, and we shall need help in developing it. I recognize, too, the necessity of all countries cooperating in post-war rehabilitation of the world. (Note that the United Nations had not yet been created).

"Libian troops which have been fighting beside the British 8th army are a token of our good faith. We want to do our part for the allied cause. We are proud to be serving with our British friends and we are grateful to them for giving us this opportunity. We are grateful, too, for the kindly protection which they are affording our people.

Be that as may, the prince told me he hoped for the broad development of his country. Education for the masses occupied an important place in his ideas. He himself is a man of great culture.

Mrs. J. P. Macaure, 408 Radiance St., New Orleans, La., can't imagine a person not taking HADACOL who is sick and run-down due to deficiencies of Vitamns B1, B2, Niacin and Iron. She says she continually sings the praises of HADACOL to all her friends. Mrs. Macaure was suffering from deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Macure's own statement: "I have taken at least 5 bottles of HADACOL. Before I took HADACOL I was very nervous. My family was affected, too, because I was so irritable. Then my sister suggested I take HADACOL and I started taking it immediately. After the second bottle I felt like I had taken all the troubles of the world off my shoulders. My nerves are now as steady as ever. My family thinks HADACOL is wonderful because my disposition is 100 per cent better and I am not the least bit irritable. That's because I always have a bottle of HADACOL on the kitchen shelf. HADACOL is the most wonderful product on the market."

to help you. If your system lacks these essential elements, you, too, will be amazed at the wonderful results HADACOL can bring you, as it has to thousands of other fine folks who suffered a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron which HADACOL contains. HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body.

HADACOL is that wonderful new preparation—promising blessed relief for your indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), as well as that general run-down condition, and nagging aches and pains, if due to a lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin in your system.

HADACOL is so amazingly successful because if your system lacks Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin it acts directly to relieve this deficency—the real cause of your trouble. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

Only One Genuine HADACOL

Don't go through life suffering nagging aches and pains if caused by such deficiencies when relief may be as close at hand as the nearest drugstore for sufferers from these deficiencies. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL.

NOTEBOOK

With U. S. 8th Army Korea—(AP)—There are 110,000 puzzled United Nations soldiers in the grand offensive now underway to seize the northwest corner of the Korean icebox.

They are members of the eighth army making a drive to the Manchurian border which they hope will wind up the dreary, five-months-old Korean campaign.

But their puzzlement is as deep as their hopes are high. No soldier really knows what lies ahead. This is as true of commanding generals in the field as it is of the privates who carry out their plans.

Therefore there are 110,000 men marching forward strongly but cautiously on a journey into doubt. They are like a man moving at twilight through a strange and frozen forest who sees nothing in sight to harm him but uneasily feels the eyes of unseen foes upon him.

Intelligence officers believe that at present there are no more than 100,000 north Korean and Chinese "volunteers" in the 50 and 60 miles of rugged mountains that lie between the eighth army and the Yalu river frontier.

The doubt lies in whether that force will be steadily reinforced by scores of thousands of fresh troops brought secretly across the border at night as "volunteers". And on that critical point there is a new Chinese wall a wall of Chinese silence.

This uncertainty is peculiarly exasperating to the military mind. Commanders don't lke to commit their own troops to battle until they are pretty sure what the enemy is trying to do and what he is capable of doing. And there are those who believe that if Red China does cross the Manchurian border in power the current attack by 110,000 soldiers will turn out to be merely one of the largest patrol actions in history.

"Frankly I don't know what will happen," a general said. "We don't have enough here to deal with the troops the Chinese can send across the border if they want to."

Here are some other reactions by American officers and men:

A chief of staff in a forward command post "I have been looking at maps all my life, but the map on this operation doesn't tell me a damn thing of what I want to know."

A colonel "This is a problem now for diplomats, not soldiers. The striped pants boys are going to have to find a rabbit to pull out of this hat."

A major "The Chinese will try to tie us up here and bleed us to death. That's what the Russians want them to do."

A young lieutenant— "I have been wounded twice in this campaign and I feel my luck won't last a third time. But I'm a professional soldier and that's the chance we take. If they want a real war it might as well start now."

A philosophic private— "Hell better to freeze going forward than to freeze sitting on your rump waiting for the Chinese to make up their minds."

One military analyst put the military situation this way:

"There are three possibliities—

"First, the enemy can pull its general staff back across the border and let its troops fight awhile and then take to the hills as guerrillas. That's what they did when we made the breakthrough last September and they may do it again.

"Second the Chinese can send across enough men to knock our heads off.

"Third, they now have 100,000 men in good defensive terrain against our 110,000 men. If they are well led and supplied they can keep us pushing and tugging all winter. And that's what I think they will at least try to do."

But most of the troops are more optimistic. They feel that diplomatic decisions are in the making at high levels. Despite the cold weather their morale is high. They are glad the lull is over and that they are on the march again toward a real goal.

And they have a great faith in General Douglas MacArthur. They feel he is the Santa Claus in uniform who will lead them to final victory by Christmas.

Truman Plans To Feed Tito's Army

Washington, Nov. 25 —(AP)—President Truman notified Congress today he is setting aside $16,000,000 to provide food for the armed forces of Yugoslavia.

The president sent letters to key Congressional figures asserting this amount is needed to meet "the immediate emergency pending further action by the Congress." Yugoslavia has been hard hit by drought.

The president said Yugoslavia's strategic location "makes it of direct importance to the defense of the North Atlantic area."

The drought, crop failure and the imminence of famine "dangerously weaken the ability of Yugoslavia to defend itself against aggression, for, among other consequences, it imperils the combat effectiveness of the Yugoslav armed forces," the president said.

The $16,000,000 from the mutual defense assistance program is in addition to aid from these other sources:

1. The ECA is making arrangements for delivery of $11,500,000 of wheat flour to Yugoslavia from stocks in Italy and Germany.

2. The export - import bank is making available credits of approximately $6,000,000 for the purchase of lard, beans, dried eggs and canned meat—surplus food commodities that are being acquired from the Department of Agriculture.

BANTAM BOTTLENECK

Des Moines.—(AP)—The soybean combining schedule on the William Hageman farm northeast of Esterville was delayed for several days by a bantam hen.

She picked for her home the middle of the cover of a combine. Hageman found the bird sitting on a clutch of 16 eggs inside the combine. For several days Hageman left her alone, and then finally moved her so he could get on with his combining.

There are about 75 bantams on the place, and Hageman says the hens are likely to hide a nest and raise a family any time, any place.

BANTAM BOTTLENECK

Des Moines.—(AP)—The soybean combining schedule on the William Hageman farm northeast of Estherville was delayed for several days by a bantam hen.

She picked for her home the middle of the cover of a combine. Hageman found the bird sitting on a clutch of 16 eggs inside the combine. For several days Hageman left her alone, and then finally moved her so he could get on with his combining.

There are about 75 bantams on the place, and Hageman says the hens are likely to hide a nest and raise a family any time, any place.

James Marlow:

THE NATION TODAY

By Max Hall

(For James Marlow)

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—"Human failure" is being blamed for Wednesday's horrible collision on the Long Island railroad.

The fact is, "human failure" has caused more than three-fourths of America's major train wrecks.

Broken rails and flood waters caused some of them, but more commonly the disaster could be traced directly to the failure of some human being to see a signal, or to read an order carefully, or to obey a rule.

Sometimes there were indirect or contributing causes, such as the failure of a railroad to have an adequate block signal system.

The bureau of safety, at the interstate commerce commission, was created in 1911 and has investigated every major railroad accident since that year.

Yesterday I asked the bureau to dig out the reports on all the accidents in which 25 or more persons were killed. They handed me 29 reports. A study of these reports shows that:

Nine of the accidents were caused primarily by an engineer's failure to operate in accordance with signals.

Four were caused primarily by failure to obey train orders; three by failure to put out proper protective signals after a train stopped unexpectedly; three by excessive speed on curves; three by flood damage to the track; two by broken rails; two by the driving of motor vehicles across the tracks; one by a broken part; one by a train crew's taking their train out on the main track in the mistaken belief that an oncoming train had already gone by; and one by failure of railroad officials to enforce essential safety rules.

In several of the 29 reports the ICC recommended that the railroad install better equipment in order to make human and mechanical failures less likely.

Though it is often possible to discover that a train wreck was due to human failing, it is a much harder job to discover what caused the human failing.

I. C. C. officials admit they have not had much success with that.

In the first place, the men involved are frequently killed in the wreck. For example, the engineer of the second train in this week's Long Island disaster was killed. It was his train that collided with the rear of another train stalled on the track.

And if the men who are involved survive the wreck, they are often under criminal charges and are reluctant to talk freely.

Between 1911 and this week's disaster, the four greatest train wrecks—in number of deaths—all took place in either 1918 or 1943.

The most disastrous of all occurred at Nashville, Tenn., on July 9, 1918. Two passenger trains on the Nashville, Chattanooga, and St. Louis, each traveling about 50 miles an hour, collided head-on. I. C. C. officials say 101 persons were killed. They add that an almanac figure of 115 deaths if incorrect.

The Nashville wreck is believed to have had the greatest death toll in U. S. history, though not the greatest in the western hemisphere. In 1927 a train plunged off a high trestle in Costa Rica, killing about 300 excursionists.

The I. C. C. reported that in the Nashville wreck one of the trains had no business entering the main track until its crew was positive that the other had passed—another case of "human failure."

Only 17 days before the Nashville collision, 68 persons on a Hagenbach-Wallace circus train had been killed at Ivanhoe, Ind. The circus train stopped for a blazing hot box and another train, whose engineer was dozing, plowed into its rear. The wooden cars were set afire, probably by oil lamps, and many were burned to death.

Here are the two great disasters of 1943:

On September 6, the Congressional Limited of the Pennsylvania Railroad was going 56 miles an hour at Frankford junction, just north of Philadelphia, when it was derailed by a broken journal (end of an axle). 79 dead.

On December 16, the last three cars of an Atlantic Coast line train were derailed near Rennert, N. C., because of a broken rail. This was not disastrous, but two of the cars protruded slightly onto an adjacent track, and 40 minutes later another train going 80 miles an hour struck the two cars and rocketed off the track. 72 dead.

SEARCH CREW FINDS WRECK

No Report On Fate Of 21 Aboard Crashed Plane, All Presumed Dead

Moran, Wyo., Nov. 25 —(AP)— Searchers reached the wreckage of a twin-engine transport plane on the rocky slopes of Mount Moran today but gave no hint of the fate of the craft's 21 occupants. The assumption was that all were dead.

Watchers at a base camp some 2,000 feet below the spot where the wreckage was sighted saw two experienced climbers ascend the precipitous peak, clamber around the wreckage and start down.

Officials at headquarters of Grand Teton National Park said men at the base camp reported the climbers gave no signal that might indicate what they found.

There was only visual contact between the climbers and the base camp.

Paul Judge, the park's acting superintendent, said fate of the plane's occupants might not be discussed until Paul Petzoldt, experienced mountain guide who headed the searchers, was able to report to him personally.

That might not be until tomorrow.

Twenty-one persons — including eight children and four women —were aboard when the plane left Chico, Calif., en route to Billings, Mont. That was the first hop of a flight intended to extend to South America where some of the party expected to work as missionaries. A religious organization, the new tribes mission, operated the plane.

YIELDS EXPLOSIVES

Tripoli, Tripolitania —(AP)— Frog men and divers of a British Royal Navy mine and bomb disposal team have cleared two tons of ammunition, some in a very dangerous state, from the bed of Tripoli harbor.

The specialist team is the only one of its kind operating in the Mediterranean. It has been in the area for about a year, chiefly around Malta, Tobruk and Gibralta. The haul here varied from rusted cases of anti-aircraft shells to bombs and grenades. Non-magnetic instruments were used. When possible the ammunition was dug out from the sea-bed and brought to the surface to be stored on the deck of a salvage vessel.

Miss. Farm Price Drop Is Reported

State College, Miss., Nov. 25 —(AP)—October prices for Mississippi form products droped from their all-time September high but still are 314 per cent above the 1909-14 parity average.

D. W. Parvin, W. Ebm Christian and T. E. Tramel, agricultural economists at the state experiment station here, reported today that prices declined 11 points from the record 325 to 314.

It amounts to a three per cent decrease in actual cash received they added. The October, 1949, level was 248 per cent of the base period.

At the same time the trio predicted farmers will have a 1951 net income 15 per cent higher than this year as marketing receipts go up an estimated 10 per cent. However, higher production costs probably will keep net income below 1947 and 1948 levels, they added.

Prices paid by the farmer were six per cent hibher than in October, 1949, but were the same as those paid in September of this year, the report said.

Cottonseed prices increased 77 per cent over 1949 levels, cotton 27 per cent while other price boosts ranged from four per cent for milk and butterfat to 26 per cent for beef cattle.

WORLD CRUISE

Penang.—(AP)—An assorted crew of eight adventurous seamen, on a world jaunt on a small 74-ton yacht, arrived here.

Skippered by a 62-year-old British skipper, A. W. Filton, the "caraiad I" set sail from Cap Town in 1948. During its wanderings the crew of four Britons, two South Africans, an Australan and an old Zulu cook visited West Indies, Panama, some of the Pacific Islands, Australia, Indonesia and Singapore.

Dairymen Are In Need Of Relief

Federal market agreement discussed by board of directors of Northeast Louisiana Association.

E. W. Neasham of the Louisiana State University agricultural extension service will discuss the federal market agreement by request of the board of directors of mens' Association Tuesday, Nov. 28 at 8:00 p.m. at the Agriculture Building, West Monroe according to P. G. Avant, president of the Northeast Louisiana Dairymens' Association.

This meeting is being called to explain the federal market agreement similar to the one in New Orleans, already functioning and has functioned for a number of years.

The diarymen throughout this area stated that unless some relief is given to the dairymen, some will be forced out of production. Several small diarymen has already been forced out producing milk because of the increased price of feed, equipment, price of cows and labor.

COSMETICS TO MINING

Sydney—(AP)—A 50-year-old Sydney widow gave up a cosmetics factory to become a prospector—and struck it rich. She is Mrs. Mildred Makinson, who has found a big wolfram deposit on the Tennant Creek goldfield in the Northern Territory.

Wolfram, used in making steel, is worth 1200 Australian pounds a ton. Mrs. Makinson is the only woman prospector on the Tennant Creek field. She knows how to handle a pneumatic drill, and does many other jobs on her lease. She employs some miners who help with the heavy work.

During its wanderings the crew of four Britons, two South Africans, an Australan and an old Zulu cook visited West Indies, Panama, some of the Pacific Islands, Australia, Indonesia and Singapore.

Dairymen Are In Need Of Relief

Federal market agreement discussed by board of directors of Northeast Louisiana Association.

E. W. Neasham of the Louisiana State University agricultural extension service will discuss the federal market agreement by request of the board of directors of mens' Association Tuesday, Nov. 28 at 8:00 p.m. at the Agriculture Building, West Monroe according to P. G. Avant, president of the Northeast Louisiana Dairymens' Association.

This meeting is being called to explain the federal market agreement similar to the one in New Orleans, already functioning and has functioned for a number of years.

The diarymen throughout this area stated that unless some relief is given to the dairymen, some will be forced out of production. Several small diarymen has already been forced out producing milk because of the increased price of feed, equipment, price of cows and labor.

COSMETICS TO MINING

Sydney—(AP)—A 50-year-old Sydney widow gave up a cosmetics factory to become a prospector—and struck it rich. She is Mrs. Mildred Makinson, who has found a big wolfram deposit on the Tennant Creek goldfield in the Northern Territory.

Wolfram, used in making steel, is worth 1200 Australian pounds a ton. Mrs. Makinson is the only woman prospector on the Tennant Creek field. She knows how to handle a pneumatic drill, and does many other jobs on her lease. She employs some miners who help with the heavy work.

Big Gifts Committee Opens Campaign For Sanitarium

St. Francis Fund-Raising Group To Start Drive In Twin Cities Tuesday; Will Ask Business And Industrial Leaders For Donations

By Jim Reynolds

With a total of $600,000 as the Twin Cities goal for the expansion program of St. Francis Sanitarium, the fund drive's big gifts committee is getting up steam for the opening of its campaign Tuesday.

When that committee soys "big" it really means it . . . as a matter of fact, their work concerns itself solely with donations of $100,000 down to $2,500. Below that, the special gifts and general solicitation committees take over.

When we heard some of the figures mentioned in a discussion of gifts from business and industry, we got more than a bit of a jolt. "Why," we wondered, "does the fund drive have to have such huge contributions? Do the workers really expect to get that much money?"

After a moment's discussion with a member of the drive's executive council, we discovered that they definitely did expect to get gifts that could be called huge. And then the chairman explained why.

"In the first place," he said, "business and industrial leaders face facts when they consider their donation. There's no doubt at all that the Twin Cities desperately need the expanded facilities that St. Francis plans. Anyone who has been hospitalized recently will tell you a hundred reasons why he was dissatisfied. Practically all these reasons are directly traceable to the fact that the community hospital is an old, dilapidated, costly and overcrowded building.

"Industrial leaders know this, and know that their employees will need the best hospitalization possible. They know their workers are watching them to see how the company supports the hospital they need. They know that it's up to them to set a contribution standard which will insure generous cooperation.

"Above and beyond these reasons, they know it really will cost much less than the face value of the gift." That statement alone sounded mighty intriguing, and called, we thought, for an explanation.

One of the major points of comparative saving for big gift donors, we found out, is the fact that the gift can be paid over a period of three years, and that it's tax-deductable. What with taxes on corporations going up to 50 per cent in some cases, the government actually pays a good sized portion of the gift.

The call for funds is a one-time appeal, too, not one which will be repeated next year or in 1952. Just one appeal for a drive for the future of the Twin Cities.

The committee member added another word: "One more point for the business and industrial leaders to remember is the availability of memorials, a wonderful way to commemorate the name of a firm or an individual. By endowing a certain room or facility in the building, the donor can provide a living memorial to a loved one . . . a memorial that means life, comfort and health to thousands in the community. That's a pretty fine way, if you ask me, to remember someone."

Several business leaders on the committee of the drive have already expressed a new view on their reasons for contributing substantial sums. "If the community is to grow, we need the best in hospitals," they say. "No big manufacturer is going to overlook a dangerous and serious shortage of hospital space when he considers opening a plant or industrial center here. My business will grow with the community . . . and I want the Twin Cities to continue the growth evidenced in the last few years."

The question of why the drive needed so many large contributions was next on the agenda . . . and promptly answered. "We've checked every available record of similar drives in this area," said the spokesman, "and we've found that we must try to get 75 per cent of our quota, or a total of $50,000 from the big gift donors. The smaller contributions, from people like you and me, are not only welcome but quite necessary . . . but they alone would never total enough to put us over the top."

One of the big questions yet to be answered was: "How much might a given industry be expected to contribute to the fund drive?' The answer wasn't long in coming, once we checked the right sources.

First we went to a report of the Southwest Louisiana Hospital Association, which raised $600,000 for a new hospital for Lake Charles during the early part of this year. Their findings indicate an average contribution by industry of $126 per employee. As published in their report dated Jan 30, 1950, the association recommended the $12 figure as a general indication of the overall per capita cost on the $1,800,000 hospital built.

For all the countless benefits of new hospital facilities, this still seemed a pretty stiff figure, so we headed back to the committee room for verification.

"Because Monroe has more diversified and bigger single industries," we were told, "the committee feels that a contribution of about $100 per employee would see us through this part of the campaign successfully."

Even that sum of $100 doesn't seem too formidable, when the businessman considers that it represents less than $35 per employee per year over a period of three years . . . all tax-deductable, too.

The official kickoff of the campaign is set for 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, when the big gifts committee meets at the Rendezvous.

Men Favor Women Staying At Home

By William Anderson

Brussels—The weaker sex should stay the weaker sex if the home fires are to be kept burning, seems to be the opinion of 74.9 per cent of Belgian men.

During a recent national public opinion poll this per centage of Belgian masculinity voted that even childless women should not go out to work.

They backed up their vote by some pertinent comments, such as —"I want to be looked after," "Women at work are tempted to be unfaithful," "Childless women at work are a menace to other households," "Women are sinful enough without further exposure at work."

The women evidently couldn't agree more about staying away from work. They voted 64.4 per cent to stay home.

There reasons, were somewhat mellower . . . "There is nothing finer for a woman than to look after her home, husband and children." "A well looked after home serves to hold a husband."

However, it was recognized that necessity caused most women to leave homes for the factories and offices. In these circumstances the women plumped 77.9 per cent for equal-work pay. The men voted a tardy 59.3 per cent.

Some feminine whoops for this vote were . . . "Women are equal to men," "The idea of feminine inferiority is centuries out of date." Some of the men voted yes with reservations. One reservation was "Only unmarried women. A married woman has her pots and pans.'

Caustic comments from men were: "An inferior being does not deserve the same treatment.""The slightest illness and a woman takes the day off," "Men must keep their superiorty and prestige."

Legion's Leader Is Youngest In History

By Charles Barrett
AP Newsfeatures

Atlanta—Riddled and left for dead by Nazi machine gunners a few months before, the big, brawny guy with the broad grin was coming home.

He was helped off a plane from France to join his dad and mother.

Their "How are you son?" brought the reply, "I'll be well enough to go to the Legion convention this year."

That was Erle Cocke, Jr., back in 1946.

A lot of hospital operations and four years later, still only 29 years old, Cocke is the youngest national commander of the American Legion in history.

His election in Los Angeles last Oct. 12 was by the biggest margin in years, one of the biggest ever.

Cocke says his goal is to sell not only veterans but all America on the Legion program of "peace through strength," including universal military training.

If his next year is like the others, the U. S. A. is in for a lot of legionizing.

Started as a Cripple

Cocke has been a whiz at everything he tries. His young life includes a crippled boyhood, zooming business and civic success, and a hair-raising, almost incredible World War II adventure.

He's a six-foot-two, 210 pounder with a rugged countenance, bright brown eyes, wavy brown hair, hearty handshake and plenty of smooth talk. Despite his glamor and good looks he's a bachelor.

Even when he was 27, political dopesters had tagged him as a good prospect for governor of Georgia. Now some friends are really booming him. But Erle is sticking to business and the Legion, so far.

Versatile in School

Young Cocke became president of the literary society at the University of Georgia in Athens. At the same time he was manager of the football team. Coach Wally Butts called him the nation's "All-America manager."

Then came the war. Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, who said "nuts" to the Nazis at Bastogne, told an Atlanta friend Cocke was "the best individual soldier I saw during the war."

Captain Cocke set out with a corporal, a jeep and a carbine to contact a cut-off U. S. battalion near Bueren, Germany. First he ran into a column of 80 German soldiers, opened fire and "put the entire enemy column to flight," capturing three Nazis and liberating five French prisoners.

At Balzholz, he was pinned by machine-gun and small-arms fire and both he and the corporal wounded and captured.

Cocke was lined up with 17 other U. S. prisoners and marched to Oberwilzinghen. Left with two guards, Cocke clubbed one guard while other GI's jumped the other. They escaped.

The little band marched up to the Burgomaster (mayor) and Cocke persuaded him the town was surrounded by the Allies and resistance was futile. Oberwilzinghen and two little nearby towns were surrendered to the ex-prisoners.

But Nazis Came Back

A Nazi artillery battalion, two rifle platoons and other German soldiers gave up their arms. Finally Cocke sent all but four of his men back to allied lines—taking 592 prisoners with them by official French count.

Then a Nazi panzer division rolled into Oberwilzinghen, and the odds were a little too great. Cocke and his tiny group opened fire but were captured again. Cocke was questioned by the same Nazis who had questioned him two days before, after his first capture.

"He didn't like my looks and I didn't like his," says Cocke. He swatted the Nazi in the jaw and German guards opened up on him at 20 feet with tommy guns.

The captain fell and was left on the spot, believed dead. Finally two old women hauled him to a hospital in a hand-pulled, wooden-wheeled cart.

A German doctor gave him the first of 17 operations that took him to 27 hospitals over 14 months. He was decorated with the French Croix de Guerre, the U. S. Silver Star, Purple Heart with three clusters and the bronze star with clusters.

After his recovery, Cocke received a master's degree in business administration from Harvard and became assistant general manager of the largest peanut butter manufacturing plant in the world, at the age of 25.

In 1948 he became general industrial agent for the Central of Georgia railway and recently became assistant to the president of Delta Airlines. He is a past commander of the Legion in Georgia.

Tells How To Fight Reds

New York—Angela Calomiris spent seven years as an FBI plant inside the Communist party—but she doesn't have any foolproof method of spotting a Red.

"When something walks like a duck, quacks like a duck and looks like a duck," she said, "chances are it's a duck. But if you've never seen a duck before, it's hard to identify the first one you do see."

The tiny, dark - haired photographer was approached by federal bureau agents in 192 and asked if she would be "converted" to communism, join the party, work hard in it—and report its activities to the bureau. She accepted the assignment—without pay and without protection. The seven years of gruelling, hectic and frequently boring and unsatisfying work are recounted in her new book, "Red Masquerade."

ANGELA CALOMRIS
. . . Fooled the Reds . . .

Angela made a good Communist—rising from the lowest rank to financial secretary of an important Manhattan unit of the party completely unsuspected. In fact, she was held in high party esteem the very day when she appeared as a government witness in the New York trial of the Communist party's 11 top leaders—and identified each man as having actively taught and advocated overthrow of the goverment. Her appearance and calm statement she had always been a goverment agent was a bombshell in the courtroom.

"I think control of communism is the most important problem we face today," she said. "I think the answer lies in legislation, but I don't think the new Communist registration act is the complete answer.

"There is one big advantage in outlawing the party, however It means that anyone willing to support communism is violating the membership from growing.

bership from growing."

The party, Miss Calomiris said, is prepared to disappear completely into the underground to function efficiently.

"That means that the FBI will hae to go underground with it," he said. "Their will have to be more government plants in the party and danger to them will increase. Any plant's life is in danger."

AN ARTIST AT WORK

Local Free Lance Artist Achieves National Fame

By Yvonne Brett

In the never, never land of fantasy the trend these days is toward a new cycle in the American-born institution of comic strips. A leader in this field is one of our native sons, M. D. Swayze.

The comic strip like every major factor in our life has been predicted on the whims and fancy of the public. Each decade has seen its cycle of slapstick, blood and thunder, criminal detection, adventure, illusion, romance, boots and saddles, war, reflections of invention, magic, politics and the age old story of love. They have covered the scene according to the dictates of an escape hungry public, who unconsciously appreciate the comedy era that runs like a thread through our existance.

Midway of the century of 1950 saw the rebirth of romance. Maybe it is an indication of how the American heart and mind are at work. That would be a logical guess but the facts remain that Time magazine gave a recent report on the publishers of comic strips and featured as outstanding Fawcett publication's "Sweethearts", selling more than two million copies per month. Fawcetts are the chief advocates of the new trend to romance.

The lead story in "Sweethearts" is drawn by M. D., a gifted artist, who's forte has not always been the romantic outlook that he is soaring to fame with now. When he was staff artist for Fawcett Publications a few short years back, his career first came into prominence when he wrote and drew the feature "Captain Marvel". Later he became perhaps the busiest comic strip artist in America when he took over the art work and writing of "The Phantom Eagle" and at the same time drew "Flyin' Jenny" distributed by Bell Syndicate.

Lettering of the strips are done by M. D.'s sister, Daisy Swayze, who is recognized as being an outstanding professional. The team of brother and sister are at present the only known one in the free lance artist field.

Artist Marcus D. Swayze was born in Monroe and except for brief periods has lived here all of his life. He attended O. P. H. S. and is a graduate of Neville High School and attended Northeastern when it was still Northeast Center of L. S. U. He began as an art major and prolonged his stay at Junior College to three years by changing his curriculum to music. His life's work seemed cut out for him when he went on to Louisiana Tech to win his B. A. degree in art

He has this to say about his school years, "I'm grateful for the encouragement I received from every teacher I had. For technical training I am indebted to Miss Louise Moore of Monroe and to Miss Elizabeth Bethea and Miss Mary Moffett of the Louisiana Tech art department."

One thing he failed to say was that he can be credited with designing the first Neville High senior class ring, the design that Neville still uses today.

The layman often wonders how a youngster with comparatively no practical experience breaks into the big time. Marc describes his entrance into the national field as "nothing spectacular." By the time of his graduation from Louisiana Tech he had determined that he favored commercial art over the fine arts. He sent samples of his work to all the major syndicates and magazine publishing houses. His first offer came from Fawcett Publications of New York City and was followed closely by another from NEA Syndicate of Cleveland. The NEA offer had to be forwarded to New York, however, for by that time young M. D. was on his way. It was some time later that he learned he was the only applicant Fawcett Publications had accepted without a personal interview in their thirty year of existence.

During this time he came back to Monroe and met the romance of his life, the attractive June Bloomer, a Little Rock, Ark., girl who had moved to Monroe during his absence. They were married and are now representative of the ideal family since the addition of pretty little daughter Judy and baby son Marcus D. Swayze, Jr.

Although the Swayze family might live anywhere in the United States that suits their fancy, they choose to live modestly in a cozy little home on Dick Taylor street. Artist Marc's days are happily filled with an avalanche of work at the drawing board and with the close association of a family that probably inspires some of his best illustrations.

The two million readers of his "Sweetheart" stories often will find scenes from his beloved hometown. Although he is constantly using local scenes in his drawings, Marc is rarely seen out sketching on the streets of the Twin Cities. The reason for this is the fear of appearing "arty." He usually remains in his car, slumps down furtively behind the steering wheel and goes to work with a stub of pencil and a scrap of card board. The sketches, ranging from the busiest corners of DeSiard street to the old City Hall of West Monroe, have eventually found their way to all parts of the United States and with the printed matter transated to many foreign countries. The action in one of his stories took place in "LaFooshe' swamp. "I spelled it that way," he said, "so the readers wouldn't have to worry about pronouncing it."

There has been no mention yet about how Swayze is also an accomplished musician. . . . He has played with Bing Crosby, Ezio Pinza, Spike Jones, Sinatra, Como ect. . . . He also arranges music or possibly more dignified scores it.

Marc's fondness for Monroe and the people in it apparently works both ways for recently he was clected to the Ouachita Parish school board by a large majority.

Bit Of A Bittern Outflashes Flash

What's quicker than a flash? It could be a little bird called a bittern, smallest member of the heron family. Here is one held by Mrs. Peter H. Snyder, amateur ornithologist and member of the Audubon Society, who rescued it from a San Diego, Calif., lawyer's office. It was terrorizing the lawyer and his staff. They were afraid of its knitting-needle beak lunging quicker than a flash. A stenographer called Mrs. Snyder, who now feeds it small frogs and minnows. It snatches its food so fast that a camera set at 1/400 of a second can't quite catch the action without a blur. It lunges nine inches. Bitterns usually are so tricky about concealing themselves that they are seldom seen, says Mrs. Snydr.

Korean Vets May Get Extra Pay

Washington, Nov. 25—(AP)—A plan to give extra pay to thousands of men and officers with combat duty in Korea may reach congress soon, Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) said today.

The senator's office produced a letter from an army spokesman saying a premium pay plan was submitted to the department of defense by army officials. Extra pay for each month of combat duty in Korea was suggested.

The letter from Col. C. G. Blakeney, army legislative liaison officer, said the defense department expressed considerable interest. He added that army officials expect the plan will be sent soon to congress.

At present extra "hazard duty pay" goes to men and officers assigned to regular flying duty, on submarines, in bomb disposal work and to a few other jobs.

WHO'S A GOOSE AT CROSSING?

HONK! HONK! Take a gander at this sign! The geese warn the motorists near Palo, Iowa. "Cattle Crossing" and Deed Crossing" signs are familiar to mororists throughout the country. But according to Mrs. Ethel Gibney, who has a goose farm near Palo and raises 235 laying geese, selling another 250 every Thanksgiving time, hardly a car passes that doesn't slow or stop in hope of seeing a goose waddle across the road. The geese have to cross the road to feed in the cornfield. And Mrs. Gibney says they are pretty self-sufficient. They feed on the leaves and weeds after they are six weeks old. They get corn only in time to fatten them for holiday tables. A big advantage of the sign, Mrs. Gibney points out, is that the slower the cars go, the less dust they blow up from the gravel road.

McCain-Richards Open House Is Great Success

The McCain-Richards Anniversary Open House Friday and Saturday was attended by one of the largest crowds ever gathered in the Twin Cities for such occasions. Greeted by executive hosts, Bill McCain, J. W. Richards, Vagie Rivers and Charles Nelms, visitors and guests enjoyed individual baby Aloha orchids from Hawaii, as well as a premiere view of the new 1951 Ford which went on display throughout the nation Friday.

Comments throughout the demonstration of the new Ford ranged from excited ooh's and ah's to "revolutionary" and "unbelievable." Receiving greatest acclaim were the beautiful new dash, the balance-lift trunk, the anti-lock bumper drive and, unanimously, the Fordomatic Drive.

Among famous visitors to the McCain-Richards celebration were General Claire Chennault and family. And one of the show-stealers was the anniversary cake sent by the News-Star—World, designed by Irene Reid and produced in beautiful colors by Bond's Bakery.

During the two-day celebration, bonuses were awarded every member of the McCain-Richards firm, with additional bonuses presented to six employes who have served the firm ten years and 2 persons who have served it five years.

The new Ford is now on display at the concern, 1201 Louisville Avenue.

Youngster Has Natural Swing

By Darrel Wilson
(NEA Staff Writer)
Kansas City, Kans. Professional

Youngsters are never too young to start in golf.

Our little girl, age six, has been on a course all her life—even in a perambulator as an infant.

If you give kids a club and the opportunity to play, they have a tendency to fall into a natural swing.

Their muscles have not set to any particular type of swing. This makes it much easier for them to develop a golfing arc.

Kids at a young age will invariably grip a club in baseball fashion, for the simple reason that it is easier to keep a firm grip that way. This is all right for a while.

When they get old enough to remember things that make a good grip, then is the time to place their hands on the club in the proper position.

Make changes one at a time.

Patience is the prime requisite.

Don't try to force a desire to play.

Give them clubs and they'll want to learn.

Once a child has picked up the rudiments of the swing, polishing comes naturally and easily.

I spent quite some time at a driving range with my six-year-old daughter. There she would hit a bucket of balls.

On the course, she played only a few holes near the clubhouse, had as low as a five on a 155-yard, par three hole.

Give a club to any child, and the results will be amazing.

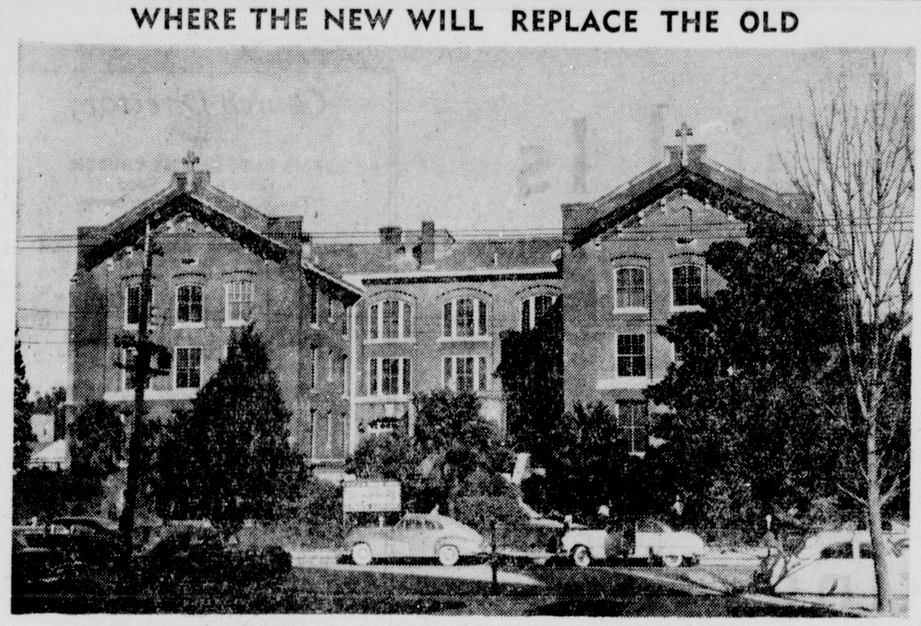

I also have a son, 12, who is playing in the 80s, has been in the lower 70s. He scored 161 for 36 holes in the state junior tournament.

Being on a course, having the opportunity to play, a chance to watch others and practice enables a child to do things which are very beneficial, if the child has the desire.

My youngest daughter, 3, ½ at this young age is getting a semblance of a swing. I have given her a light club and a putter and in the next year or so, I will begin to give her the fundamentals of golf.

As I stressed in Professional Golfer, more important than any instruction I can give for children is that whatever you do, let 'em swing.

"Industrial leaders know this, and know that their employees will need the best hospitalization possible. They know their workers are watching them to see how the company supports the hospital they need. They know that it's up to them to set a contribution standard which will insure generous cooperation.

"Above and beyond these reasons, they know it really will cost much less than the face value of the gift." That statement alone sounded mighty intriguing, and called, we thought, for an explanation.

One of the major points of comparative saving for big gift donors, we found out, is the fact that the gift can be paid over a period of three years, and that it's tax-deductable. What with taxes on corporations going up to 50 per cent in some cases, the government actually pays a good sized portion of the gift.

The call for funds is a one-time appeal, too, not one which will be repeated next year or in 1952. Just one appeal for a drive for the future of the Twin Cities.

The committee member added another word: "One more point for the business and industrial leaders to remember is the availability of memorials, a wonderful way to commemorate the name of a firm or an individual. By endowing a certain room or facility in the building, the donor can provide a living memorial to a loved one . . . a memorial that means life, comfort and health to thousands in the community. That's a pretty fine way, if you ask me, to remember someone."

Several business leaders on the committee of the drive have already expressed a new view on their reasons for contributing substantial sums. "If the community is to grow, we need the best in hospitals," they say. "No big manufacturer is going to overlook a dangerous and serious shortage of hospital space when he considers opening a plant or industrial center here. My business will grow with the community . . . and I want the Twin Cities to continue the growth evidenced in the last few years."

The question of why the drive needed so many large contributions was next on the agenda . . . and promptly answered. "We've checked every available record of similar drives in this area," said the spokesman, "and we've found that we must try to get 75 per cent of our quota, or a total of $50,000 from the big gift donors. The smaller contributions, from people like you and me, are not only welcome but quite necessary . . . but they alone would never total enough to put us over the top."

One of the big questions yet to be answered was: "How much might a given industry be expected to contribute to the fund drive?' The answer wasn't long in coming, once we checked the right sources.

First we went to a report of the Southwest Louisiana Hospital Association, which raised $600,000 for a new hospital for Lake Charles during the early part of this year. Their findings indicate an average contribution by industry of $126 per employee. As published in their report dated Jan 30, 1950, the association recommended the $12 figure as a general indication of the overall per capita cost on the $1,800,000 hospital built.

For all the countless benefits of new hospital facilities, this still seemed a pretty stiff figure, so we headed back to the committee room for verification.

"Because Monroe has more diversified and bigger single industries," we were told, "the committee feels that a contribution of about $100 per employee would see us through this part of the campaign successfully."

Even that sum of $100 doesn't seem too formidable, when the businessman considers that it represents less than $35 per employee per year over a period of three years . . . all tax-deductable, too.

The official kickoff of the campaign is set for 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, when the big gifts committee meets at the Rendezvous.

Men Favor Women Staying At Home

By William Anderson

Brussels—The weaker sex should stay the weaker sex if the home fires are to be kept burning, seems to be the opinion of 74.9 per cent of Belgian men.

During a recent national public opinion poll this per centage of Belgian masculinity voted that even childless women should not go out to work.

They backed up their vote by some pertinent comments, such as —"I want to be looked after," "Women at work are tempted to be unfaithful," "Childless women at work are a menace to other households," "Women are sinful enough without further exposure at work."

The women evidently couldn't agree more about staying away from work. They voted 64.4 per cent to stay home.

There reasons, were somewhat mellower . . . "There is nothing finer for a woman than to look after her home, husband and children." "A well looked after home serves to hold a husband."

However, it was recognized that necessity caused most women to leave homes for the factories and offices. In these circumstances the women plumped 77.9 per cent for equal-work pay. The men voted a tardy 59.3 per cent.

Some feminine whoops for this vote were . . . "Women are equal to men," "The idea of feminine inferiority is centuries out of date." Some of the men voted yes with reservations. One reservation was "Only unmarried women. A married woman has her pots and pans.'

Caustic comments from men were: "An inferior being does not deserve the same treatment."'"The slightest illness and a woman takes the day off," "Men must keep their superiorty and prestige."

Legion's Leader Is Youngest In History

By Charles Barrett
AP Newsfeatures

Atlanta—Riddled and left for dead by Nazi machine gunners a few months before, the big, brawny guy with the broad grin was coming home.

He was helped off a plane from France to join his dad and mother.

Their "How are you son?" brought the reply, "I'll be well enough to go to the Legion convention this year."

That was Erle Cocke, Jr., back in 1946.

A lot of hospital operations and four years later, still only 29 years old, Cocke is the youngest national commander of the American Legion in history.

His election in Los Angeles last Oct. 12 was by the biggest margin in years, one of the biggest ever

Cocke says his goal is to sell not only veterans but all America on the Legion program of "peace through strength," including universal military training.

If his next year is like the others, the U. S. A. is in for a lot of legionizing.

Started as a Cripple

Cocke has been a whiz at everything he tries. His young life includes a crippled boyhood, zooming business and civic success, and a hair-raising, almost incredible World War II adventure.

He's a six-foot-two, 210 pounder with a rugged countenance, bright brown eyes, wavy brown hair, hearty handshake and plenty of smooth talk. Despite his glamor and good looks he's a bachelor.

Even when he was 27, political dopesters had tagged him as a good prospect for governor of Georgia. Now some friends are really booming him. But Erle is sticking to business and the Legion, so far.

His story began in the little southwest Georgia peanut town of Dawson. The boy crippled at the age of 18 months, wore casts or braces on his left leg until he was nine. Today he wears a size 11 shoe on his left foot, size 12 on his right.

Versatile in School

Young Cocke became president of the literary society at the University of Georgia in Athens. At the same time he was manager of the football team. Coach Wally Butts called him the nation's "All-America manager."

Then came the war. Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, who said "nuts" to the Nazis at Bastogne, told an Atlanta friend Cocke was "the best individual soldier I saw during the war."

Captain Cocke set out with a corporal, a jeep and a carbine to contact a cut-off U. S. battalion near Bueren, Germany. First he ran into a column of 80 German soldiers, opened fire and "put the entire enemy column to flight," capturing three Nazis and liberating five French prisoners.

At Balzholz, he was pinned by machine-gun and small-arms fire and both he and the corporal wounded and captured.

Cocke was lined up with 17 other U. S. prisoners and marched to Oberwilzinghen. Left with two guards, Cocke clubbed one guard while other GI's jumped the other. They escaped.

The little band marched up to the Burgomaster (mayor) and Cocke persuaded him the town was surrounded by the Allies and resistance was futile. Oberwilzinghen and two little nearby towns were surrendered to the ex-prisoners.

But Nazis Came Back

A Nazi artillery battalion, two rifle platoons and other German soldiers gave up their arms. Finally Cocke sent all but four of his men back to allied lines—taking 592 prisoners with them by official French count.

Then a Nazi panzer division rolled into Oberwilzinghen, and the odds were a little too great. Cocke and his tiny group opened fire but were captured again. Cocke was questioned by the same Nazis who had questioned him two days before, after his first capture.

"He didn't like my looks and I didn't like his," says Cocke. He swatted the Nazi in the jaw and German guards opened up on him at 20 feet with tommy guns.

The captain fell and was left on the spot, believed dead. Finally two old women hauled him to a hospital in a hand-pulled, wooden-wheeled cart.

A German doctor gave him the first of 17 operations that took him to 27 hospitals over 14 months He was decorated with the French Croix de Guerre, the U. S. Silver Star, Purple Heart with three clusters and the bronze star with clusters.

After his recovery, Cocke received a master's degree in business administration from Harvard and became assistant general manager of the largest peanut butter manufacturing plant in the world, at the age of 25.

In 1948 he became general industrial agent for the Central of Georgia railway and recently became assistant to the president of Delta Airlines. He is a past commander of the Legion in Georgia.

Tells How To Fight Reds

New York—Angela Calomiris spent seven years as an FBI plant inside the Communist party —but she doesn't have any foolproof method of spotting a Red.

"When something walks like a duck, quacks like a duck and looks like a duck," she said, "chances are it's a duck. But if you've never seen a duck before, it's hard to identify the first one you do see."

The tiny, dark - haired photographer was approached by federal bureau agents in 192 and asked if she would be "converted" to communism, join the party, work hard in it—and report its activities to the bureau. She accepted the assignment—without pay and without protection. The seven years of gruelling, hectic and frequently boring and unsatisfying work are recounted in her new book, "Red Masquerade."

ANGELA CALOMRIS
. . . Fooled the Reds . . .

Angela made a good Communist —rising from the lowest rank to financial secretary of an important Manhattan unit of the party completely unsuspected. In fact, she was held in high party esteem the very day when she appeared as a government witness in the New York trial of the Communist party's 11 top leaders—and identified each man as having actively taught and advocated overthrow of the goverment. Her appearance and calm statement she had always been a goverment agent was a bombshell in the courtroom.

"I think control of communism is the most important problem we face today," she said. "I think the answer lies in legislation, but I don't think the new Communist registration act is the complete answer.

"There is one big advantage in outlawing the party, however It means that anyone willing to support communism is violating the membership from growing.
bership from growing."

The party, Miss Calomiris said, is prepared to disappear completely into the underground to function efficiently.

"That means that the FBI will hae to go underground with it," he said. "Their will have to be more government plants in the party and danger to them will increase. Any plant's life is in danger."

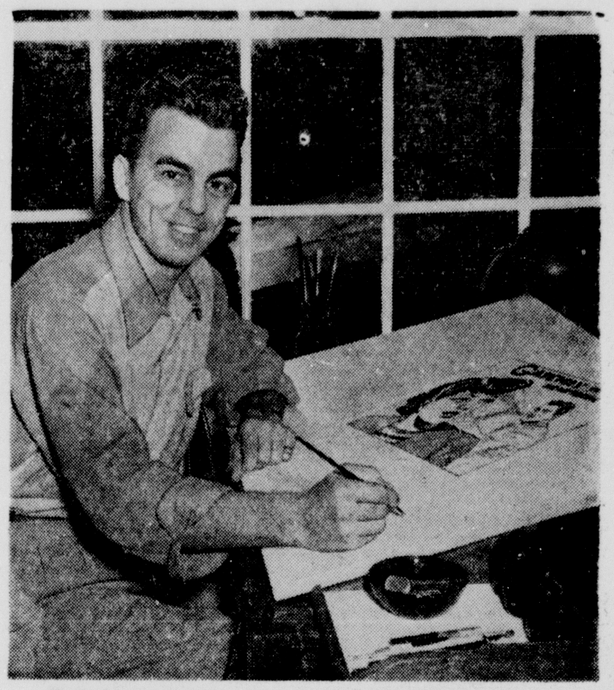

LESS COTTON GINNED

St. Joseph, La., Nov. 25.—(Special)—According to T. Carl Gipson, special agent of the bureau of the census, there were 11,622 bales of cotton, ginned in Tensas parish prior to November 1, this year, as compared with 12,350 baes ginned to November 1, 1949.

AN ARTIST AT WORK

Local Free Lance Artist Achieves National Fame

By Yvonne Brett

In the never, never land of fantasy the trend these days is toward a new cycle in the American-born institution of comic strips. A leader in this field is one of our native sons, M. D. Swayze.

The comic strip like every major factor in our life has been predicted on the whims and fancy of the public. Each decade has seen its cycle of slapstick, blood and thunder, criminal detection, adventure, illusion, romance, boots and saddles, war, reflections of invention, magic, politics and the age old story of love. They have covered the scene according to the dictates of an escape hungry public, who unconsciously appreciate the comedy era that runs like a thread through our existance.

Midway of the century of 1950 saw the rebirth of romance. Maybe it is an indication of how the American heart and mind are at work. That would be a logical guess but the facts remain that Time magazine gave a recent report on the publishers of comic strips and featured as outstanding Fawcett publication's "Sweethearts", selling more than two million copies per month. Fawcetts are the chief advocates of the new trend to romance.

The lead story in "Sweethearts" is drawn by M. D., a gifted artist, who's forte has not always been the romantic outlook that he is soaring to fame with now. When he was staff artist for Fawcett Publications a few short years back, his career first came into prominence when he wrote and drew the feature "Captain Marvel". Later he became perhaps the busiest comic strip artist in America when he took over the art work and writing of "The Phantom Eagle" and at the same time drew "Flyin' Jenny" distributed by Bell Syndicate.

Lettering of the strips are done by M. D.'s sister, Daisy Swayze, who is recognized as being an outstanding professional. The team of brother and sister are at present the only known one in the free lance artist field.

Artist Marcus D. Swayze was born in Monroe and except for brief periods has lived here all of his life. He attended O. P. H. S. and is a graduate of Neville High School and attended Northeastern when it was still Northeast Center of L. S. U. He began as an art major and prolonged his stay at Junior College to three years by changing his curriculum to music. His life's work seemed cut out for him when he went on to Louisiana Tech to win his B. A. degree in art

He has this to say about his school years, "I'm grateful for the encouragement I received from every teacher I had. For technical training I am indebted to Miss Louise Moore of Monroe and to Miss Elizabeth Bethea and Miss Mary Moffett of the Louisiana Tech art department."

One thing he failed to say was that he can be credited with designing the first Neville High senior class ring, the design that Neville still uses today.

The layman often wonders how a youngster with comparatively no practical experience breaks into the big time. Marc describes his entrance into the national field as "nothing spectacular." By the time of his graduation from Louisiana Tech he had determined that he favored commercial art over the fine arts. He sent samples of his work to all the major syndicates and magazine publishing houses. His first offer came from Fawcett Publications of New York City and was followed closely by another from NEA Syndicate of Cleveland. The NEA offer had to be forwarded to New York, however, for by that time young M. D. was on his way. It was some time later that he learned he was the only applicant Fawcett Publications had accepted without a personal interview in their thirty year of existence.

During this time he came back to Monroe and met the romance of his life, the attractive June Bloomer, a Little Rock, Ark., girl who had moved to Monroe during his absence. They were married and are now representative of the ideal family since the addition of pretty little daughter Judy and baby son Marcus D. Swayze, Jr.

Although the Swayze family might live anywhere in the United States that suits their fancy, they choose to live modestly in a cozy little home on Dick Taylor street. Artist Marc's days are happily filled with an avalanche of work at the drawing board and with the close association of a family that probably inspires some of his best illustrations.

The two million readers of his "Sweetheart" stories often will find scenes from his beloved hometown. Although he is constantly using local scenes in his drawings, Marc is rarely seen out sketching on the streets of the Twin Cities. The reason for this is the fear of appearing "arty." He usually remains in his car, slumps down furtively behind the steering wheel and goes to work with a stub of pencil and a scrap of card board. The sketches, ranging from the busiest corners of DeSiard street to the old City Hall of West Monroe, have eventually found their way to all parts of the United States and with the printed matter transated to many foreign countries. The action in one of his stories took place in "LaFooshe' swamp. "I spelled it that way," he said, "so the readers wouldn't have to worry about pronouncing it."

There has been no mention yet about how Swayze is also an accomplished musician. . . . He has played with Bing Crosby, Ezio Pinza, Spike Jones, Sinatra, Como ect. . . . He also arranges music or possibly more dignified scores it.

Marc's fondness for Monroe and the people in it apparently works both ways for recently he was elected to the Ouachita Parish school board by a large majority.

Bit Of A Bittern Outflashes Flash

What's quicker than a flash? It could be a little bird called a bittern, smallest member of the heron family. Here is one held by Mrs. Peter H. Snyder, amateur ornithologist and member of the Audubon Society, who rescued it from a San Diego, Calif., lawyer's office. It was terrorizing the lawyer and his staff. They were afraid of its knitting-needle beak lunging quicker than a flash. A stenographer called Mrs. Snyder, who now feeds it small frogs and minnows. It snatches its food so fast that a camera set at 1/400 of a second can't quite catch the action without a blur. It lunges nine inches. Bitterns usually are so tricky about concealing themselves that they are seldom seen, says Mrs. Snydr.

Korean Vets May Get Extra Pay

Washington, Nov. 25—(AP)—A plan to give extra pay to thousands of men and officers with combat duty in Korea may reach congress soon, Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) said today.

The senator's office produced a letter from an army spokesman saying a premium pay plan was submitted to the department of defense by army officials. Extra pay for each month of combat duty in Korea was suggested.

The letter from Col. C. G. Blakeney, army legislative liaison officer, said the defense department expressed considerable interest. He added that army officials expect the plan will be sent soon to congress.

At present extra "hazard duty pay" goes to men and officers assigned to regular flying duty, on submarines, in bomb disposal work and to a few other jobs.

WHO'S A GOOSE AT CROSSING?

HONK! HONK! Take a gander at this sign! The geese warn the motorists near Palo, Iowa. "Cattle Crossing" and Deed Crossing" signs are familiar to mororists throughout the country. But according to Mrs. Ethel Gibney, who has a goose farm near Palo and raises 235 laying geese, selling another 250 every Thanksgiving time, hardly a car passes that doesn't slow or stop in hope of seeing a goose waddle across the road. The geese have to cross the road to feed in the cornfield. And Mrs. Gibney says they are pretty self-sufficient. They feed on the leaves and weeds after they are six weeks old. They get corn only in time to fatten them for holiday tables. A big advantage of the sign, Mrs. Gibney points out, is that the slower the cars go, the less dust they blow up from the gravel road.

McCain-Richards Open House Is Great Success

The McCain-Richards Anniversary Open House Friday and Saturday was attended by one of the largest crowds ever gathered in the Twin Cities for such occasions. Greeted by executive hosts, Bill McCain, J. W. Richards, Vagie Rivers and Charles Nelms, visitors and guests enjoyed individual baby Aloha orchids from Hawaii, as well as a premiere view of the new 1951 Ford which went on display throughout the nation Friday.

Comments throughout the demonstration of the new Ford ranged from excited ooh's and ah's to "revolutionary" and "unbelievable." Receiving greatest acclaim were the beautiful new dash, the balance-lift trunk, the anti-lock bumper drive and, unanimously, the Fordomatic Drive.

Among famous visitors to the McCain-Richards celebration were General Claire Chennault and family. And one of the show-stealers was the anniversary cake sent by the News-Star—World, designed by Irene Reid and produced in beautiful colors by Bond's Bakery.

During the two-day celebration, bonuses were awarded every member of the McCain-Richards firm, with additional bonuses presented to six employes who have served the firm ten years and 2 persons who have served it five years.

The new Ford is now on display at the concern, 1201 Louisville Avenue.

Youngster Has Natural Swing

By Darrel Wilson
(NEA Staff Writer)
Kansas City, Kans. Professional

Youngsters are never too young to start in golf.

Our little girl, age six, has been on a course all her life—even in a perambulator as an infant.

If you give kids a club and the opportunity to play, they have a tendency to fall into a natural swing.

Their muscles have not set to any particular type of swing. This makes it much easier for them to develop a golfing arc.

Kids at a young age will invariably grip a club in baseball fashion, for the simple reason that it is easier to keep a firm grip that way. This is all right for a while.

When they get old enough to remember things that make a good grip, then is the time to place their hands on the club in the proper position.

Make changes one at a time.

Patience is the prime requisite.

Don't try to force a desire to play.

Give them clubs and they'll want to learn.

Once a child has picked up the rudiments of the swing, polishing comes naturally and easily.

I spent quite some time at a driving range with my six-year-old daughter. There she would hit a bucket of balls.

On the course, she played only a few holes near the clubhouse, had as low as a five on a 155-yard, par three hole.

Give a club to any child, and the results will be amazing.

I also have a son, 12, who is playing in the 80s, has been in the lower 70s. He scored 161 for 36 holes in the state junior tournament.

Being on a course, having the opportunity to play, a chance to watch others and practice enables a child to do things which are very beneficial, if the child has the desire.

My youngest daughter, 3, ½ at this young age is getting a semblance of a swing. I have given her a light club and a putter and in the next year or so, I will begin to give her the fundamentals of golf.

As I stressed in Professional Golfer, more important than any instruction I can give for children is that whatever you do, let 'em swing.

Through the day, little boys and girls go to school too often in the thinest kind of summer clothing permitting bleak wintry winds to penetrate to the bone.

In homes of the unfortunate there is little hope for the future and at holiday time, pinching poverty gets in its worst, most destructive forces. It seems to these people then as if all the world rejoices but them.

It is to aid such as these that Good Fellows find a real field for labor.

Won't you give to Good Fellows, be it a large or small gift? Remember, the Good Book says: "Inasmuch as ye have done it to the least of My children, ye have done it unto Me."

CUTS TOOTH DECAY
San Francisco—(AP)—It has long been known that diet could be used to reduce tooth decay. The trouble was that most patients would not stick to the prescribed diet.
Now Dr. Herman Becks, professor of dental medicine at the University of California reports he has discovered a trick that often gets results. Instead of trying to hold his patients to a special diet he asks that they give up some single habit item in ther diet. That item may be almost anything with a high sugar content—gum, candy, soft drins, ice cream ,jam etc.
Frequently the result is a sharp reduction in tooth decay, Beckks says.

REAL FREEDOM SCHOOL TOPIC

Ability To Grow With Adequate Facilities Discussed By P.-T. A.

Mrs. Crystal Anthony, a sixth grade teacher of the Selman faculty, was guest speaker at the regular November meeting, Selman P. T. A. Mrs. Anthony chose for her subject, "Freedom to Grow With Adequate Educational Facilities". She said in part: "There are some terms I would like to define before we proceed with our discussion—First adequate, according to the New College dictionary, means equal to the requirement or need, suitable or fit and applied to our school situation it refers to the feeling of 'What can I do?'
Secondly, facilities means making possible the easier performance of any action. . . . I'd like to tell you a story about an animal school . . .Once upon a time the animals had a school. The curriculum consisted of running, flying, climbing and swimming, and all the animals took all the subjects. The duck was good in swimming, better in fact than his instructor and he made passing grades in flying, but he was practically hopeless in running. Because he was low in this subject, he was made to stay in after school and drop his swimming in order to practice running. He kept this up until he was only average in swimming, but average is acceptable so no one worried, except the duck. The eagle was considered a problem pupil and he was disciplined severely. He beat all the others to the top of the tree in the flying class . . . but he had his own way of getting there. The rabbit started at the top of the running class, but he had a nervous breakdown and had to drop out on account of so much make up work in swimming. The squirrel led the class in climbing, but his flying teacher made him start his flying lessons from the ground instead of from the top of the tree ,down. He developed Charley-horses from overexertion at the take off and began getting C's in cimbing and D's in running. The practical prairie dogs apprenticed their offsprings to a badger when the school authorities refused to add digging to the curriculum. I'll agree with you this is an absurdity, but you and I know that our children today have a much more interesting and challenging school day than even you and I had.
Of course things have changed and as has times. Look at the boys and girls now—They are anxious to get to school. I like to point out a few things about our physical plant. We are proud of buildings. We have a safe, healthful, spacious and convenient location. Our school is large enough, as you know we have nearly 600 children here, yet it is not too large that everyone doesn't know everyone else. All of our buildings are one story frame buildings, every room is on the ground floor. It has been said that these buildings are some of the most modern in the entire south.
It is true we have no stately auditorium and gym, but if the war situation had not arisen, we would have had these too. The furniture and equipment in our rooms are certainly adequate. Any child can move his desk to any desired position, There are shelves for ample storage. Each room has its own individual play equipment plus group material for the outside We have a variety of audio-visual materials such as—radio, phonographs, loud speaker, etc. We have work space for assembling and preparing materials. We have access to our local health unit any time we care to call upon them—a service which is free. There is no clear cut line between learning materials, since both work and play taken together form educational facilities. So let me say as was said long ago—'Behold, I say unto you. Lift up your eyes and look on the fields; for they are white—already to harvest'. Remember that all things work together for GOOD for those who love the Lord."
Mrs. J. H. Alford, president, presided during the business session. The most important matter to come before the house was the decision to purchase a coffee urn for the unit. Miss Martha Turnley's third grade won the room award.

TO BE ORDAINED

WALTER MANGHAM

YOUNG MANGHAM INTO MINISTRY

Local Young Man, Baylor Senior, To Be Ordained Here

The First Baptist Church, Monroe, will this afternoon ordain to the full gospel ministry one of its finest young men, Walter Mangham, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Mangham, 202 Smith Ave., of this city. Such a service is one of the most sacred hours in a minister's life and of a church, which is thus highly honored by the Lord.
Mr. Mangham is now in his senior year at Baylor University, and is serving as pastor of the Erath Baptist Church, Erath, Tex. This church was organized under his able leadership and is showing rapid growth. In the university he is seeking both the bachelor of music and bachelor of arts degrees and has attained as a student to the high honor of membership of Alpha Chi Society, national scholastic organization. Upon completion of his college work, Mr. Mangham plans to pursue his seminary training in Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary of Fort Worth, Tex.
The ordination service is scheduled at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the church auditorium with several Baptist ministers of nearby churches assisting the pastor, Rev. James T. Horton. A cordial welcome is extended all.

OUR CHILDREN

THE SCHOOL LIBRARY

In schools, books are a great part of every day's activities. They are the source of the pupils' knowledge, inspiration, and possibly, joy. Anything that lessens the appeal of books is a threat to the successful functioning of the school.
Children are entitled to the books available. By available I mean that they are on the publishers' shelves ready for distributions and use. These books should be provided generously so that every child can hold one in his hands, see its contents. There is something about owning and handling a lovely book that goes straight to the heart of a reader, opening his mind and warming it for the reception of knowledge.
A dogeared, scribbled over, dirty textbook is repellent to a pupil, however interested he may be in studying its contents. Such a book should not be offered any pupil. We spend money enough on schools to afford decent textbooks, new for each pupil as he needs them. And it would be a good idea to allow pupils to buy their books at the close of a term at a reduced price so they may have them at hand in years to come.
The library is the home of the best books. On its shelves children should find the best stories, reference books and texts that the market affords. They should be sent there for study periods, armed with assignments and notes for reference reading. The librarian should be notified first so he can be prepared to meet the requirements of the students' study hours.
Each class should use the library on schedule time for a set purpose, but there also should be a time when children may go there to read as they please and find there the best books for their age and reading ability. No school can function fully in the lives of its pupils without a good library.
Knowing how important a love for books can be in the education of children and young people every teacher naturally, does all that is possible to instill fondness for reading eagerness for study, in the pupils. No thoughtful teacher would ever use study as a punishment, nor send a child to the library as a means of discipline. That would be unthinkable.
The reading of good books is a great privilege and should always be held before the pupils as such. Let the books be beautiful in their make-up as fine in their contents as wisdom and art can make them. Then put them into the hands of the children, that they may learn the beauty and the glory that is truth and wisdom.

ENOS PLAN TO BECOME MO...

Former Businessman, Back With Wife, To Return To Private Life

After ten months in a benedictine monastery, Donald D. Foster, 50-year-old former San Francisco businessman, was reunited with his wife, May, here yesterday.
"I am going back to private life," said Foster. He also released a statement which said that certain requirements had to be met if he were to receive a papal dispensation to continue his studies for the priesthood.
When Foster renounced the world last January, he said the dispensation would be granted if Mrs. Foster entered a convent. Mrs. Foster said then she also hoped to take religious orders—"when the time is reached, by prayer."
But last night she said: "I am living a normal everyday life and I want to continue."
Foster told a reporter "nothing has been done by her at all" about entering a convent. Both he and Mrs. Foster declined to say whether she had taken any steps toward settling family affairs, but she said that she had not discussed the matter of becoming a nun with any spiritual adviser.
Married 25 years, the Fosters have a daughter who is a nun, Sister Mary Matthew, a teacher at St. Elizabeth's convent in San Francisco.
Foster admitted his plans are indefinite; he and Mrs. Foster may stay at a Los Angeles hotel for several days, talking things over.
His decision to become a Monk was made after many years of mulling it over, Foster said last January. They sold a hobby shop which had grossed $49,000 in 1949 when he made the decision. Foster previously was a supervising state tax investigator for 16 years.
A spokesman at St. John's Abbey in Collegeville, Minn., where Foster was admitted as a lay brother, said he is "not in any way bound, and can easily come back."
The formal statement, which Foster said was drawn up by the abbey, declared that he had devoted himself to the study of Latin during the ten months, with the intention of preparing himself as a candidate for priesthood—upon receipt of the dispensation from the holy see.

Bible Comments

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

In that chapter he has been rebuking the divisions and the partisan attitudes that had arisen among the disciples in Corinth, some saying, "I am of Paul"; others "I am of Apollos"; and some even making Christ a partisan leader with the words, "I am of Christ."
Paul gives them wise words concerning the common work of the Gospel, in which they were all engaged and the test by one's work must be tried, with a subtle rebuke, also, of those who were trusting in their own wisdom.
But more magnifecent is his conclusion: "Therefore let no man glory in men: for all things are yours; and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's."
Just what, and how much, did Paul mean by that strange and sweeping statement? It is in line with much that he wrote elsewhere as when he referred to these same Corinthian Christians "as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing and yet posessing all things."
How could Christians be poor, and yet posess all things? We get a glimmering of the truth when we reverse the order of the verses in 1 Corinthians 3, and start with God.
It is evident that all things belong to God. The notion that some things "belong to Caesar," and do not belong to God, is and utterly mistaken notion, due to an entire misinterpretation of that incident in which Jesus asked for a coin, and turned what was intended as an embrassing question back upon those who sought to trap Him.
Second in Paul's logic is that the things of God belong to Christ. (See Ephesians 1:21-22.) The third step is that through Christ these things are ours.
Of course, Paul is speaking in spiritual, and not in materialistic language. Nevertheless the Christian ownership of which he writes is, or can be very real.
Material money may mean much if one is hungry, and hasn't a cent in his pocket. And foolish people who prate about the blessing of poverty, have no realism about sickness and misfortune, with no money to pay the doctor, or to meet acute needs. The Bible has a great deal to say about the blessings of plenty and abundance.
But, when that is said, there are a thousand evidences that the material ownership of wealth may not be the real ownership. The classic poet who wrote, "Cleon hath a thousand acres, but the landscape I" stressed this fact; and a popular song tells how "the best things of life are free."
It was such things in a larger and Christian sense that Paul had had in mind when he wrote of the limitless life and possessions of the Christian who has found "the unserchable riches of Christ."

College Gets Gift Of Rare Old Books From U. S. Women

New York — (AP) — A collection of first, as well as other editions, of outstanding literary works by women from early Colonial days to the present, has been presented to Barnard College by one of its graduates, Mrs. Frederick C. Overbury of San Marino, Calif., member of the Barnard class of 1896. Mrs. Overbury also has provided for a future maintenance fund of $15,000 for the collection. Most of the books will remain in her possession during her lifetime.
While the collection, valued at $12,000, now includes some works by men, the emphasis in the future is to be mainly on the contributions of women, and specifically, American women, according to Miss Esther Greene, librarian of Barnard College, who announced the gift.
Included in the collection of books which Barnard will receive are the 1758 edition of the poems of Anne Bradstreet; the Robert Hoe copy of Ann Elizabeth Bleecker's Posthumous Works, and several volumes by Susanna Rowson.

CUTS TOOTH DECAY

San Francisco—(AP)—It has long been known that diet could be used to reduce tooth decay. The trouble was that most patients would not stick to the prescribed diet.
Now Dr. Herman Becks, professor of dental medicine at the University of California reports he has discovered a trick that often gets results. Instead of trying to hold his patients to a special diet he asks that they give up some single habit item in ther diet. That item may be almost anything with a high sugar content—gum, candy, soft drins, ice cream ,jam etc.
Frequently the result is a sharp reduction in tooth decay, Beckks says.

Bible Comments

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

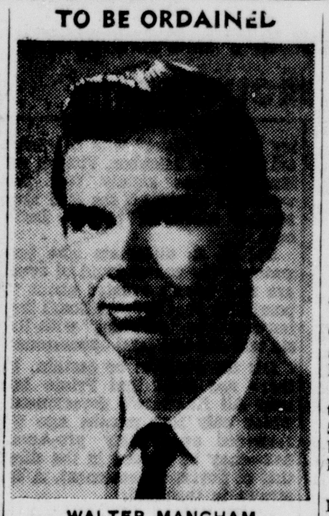

One of the most remarkable statements in the New Testament is that by St. Paul in the closing verses if - Corinthians 3.
In that chapter he has been rebuking the divisions and the partisan attitudes that had arisen among the disciples in Corinth, some saying, "I am of Paul"; others "I am of Apollos"; and some even making Christ a partisan leader with the words, "I am of Christ."
Paul gives them wise words concerning the common work of the Gospel, in which they were all engaged and the test by one's work must be tried, with a subtle rebuke, also, of those who were trusting in their own wisdom.
But more magnifecent is his conclusion: "Therefore let no man glory in men: for all things are yours; and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's."
Just what, and how much, did Paul mean by that strange and sweeping statement? It is in line with much that he wrote elsewhere as when he referred to these same Corinthian Christians "as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing and yet posessing all things."
How could Christians be poor, and yet posess all things? We get a glimmering of the truth when we reverse the order of the verses in 1 Corinthians 3, and start with God.
It is evident that all things belong to God. The notion that some things "belong to Caesar," and do not belong to God, is and utterly mistaken notion, due to an entire misinterpretation of that incident in which Jesus asked for a coin, and turned what was intended as an embrassing question back upon those who sought to trap Him.
Second in Paul's logic is that the things of God belong to Christ. (See Ephesians 1:21-22.) The third step is that through Christ these things are ours.
Of course, Paul is speaking in spiritual, and not in materialistic language. Nevertheless the Christian ownership of which he writes is, or can be very real.
Material money may mean much if one is hungry, and hasn't a cent in his pocket. And foolish people who prate about the blessing of poverty, have no realism about sickness and misfortune, with no money to pay the doctor, or to meet acute needs. The Bible has a great deal to say about the blessings of plenty and abundance.
But, when that is said, there are a thousand evidences that the material ownership of wealth may not be the real ownership. The classic poet who wrote, "Cleon hath a thousand acres, but the landscape I" stressed this fact; and a popular song tells how "the best things of life are free."
It was such things in a larger and Christian sense that Paul had had in mind when he wrote of the limitless life and possessions of the Christian who has found "the unserchable riches of Christ."

REAL FREEDOM SCHOOL TOPIC

Mrs. Crystal Anthony, a sixth grade teacher of the Selman faculty, was guest speaker at the regular November meeting, Selman P. T. A. Mrs. Anthony chose for her subject, "Freedom to Grow With Adequate Educational Facilities". She said in part: "There are some terms I would like to define before we proceed with our discussion—First adequate, according to the New College dictionary, means equal to the requirement or need, suitable or fit and applied to our school situation it refers to the feeling of 'What can I do?'
Secondly, facilities means making possible the easier performance of any action. . . . I'd like to tell you a story about an animal school . . .Once upon a time the animals had a school. The curriculum consisted of running, flying, climbing and swimming, and all the animals took all the subjects. The duck was good in swimming better in fact than his instructor and he made passing grades in flying, but he was practically hopeless in running. Because he was low in this subject, he was made to stay in after school and drop his swimming in order to practice running. He kept this up until he was only average in swimming, but average is acceptable so no one worried, except the duck. The eagle was considered a problem pupil and he was disciplined severely. He beat all the others to the top of the tree in the flying class . . . but he had his own way of getting there. The rabbit started at the top of the running class, but he had a nervous breakdown and had to drop out on account of so much make up work in swimming. The squirrel led the class in climbing, but his flying teacher made him start his flying lessons from the ground instead of from the top of the tree down. He developed Charley-horses from overexertion at the take off and began getting C's in cimbing and D's in running. The practical prairie dogs apprenticed their offsprings to a badger when the school authorities refused to add digging to the curriculum. I'll agree with you this is an absurdity, but you and I know that our children today have a much more interesting and challenging school day than even you and I had.
Of course things have changed and as has times. Look at the boys and girls now—They are anxious to get to school. I like to point out a few things about our physical plant. We are proud of buildings. We have a safe, healthful, spacious and convenient location. Our school is large enough, as you know we have nearly 600 children here, yet it is not too large that everyone doesn't know everyone else. All of our buildings are one story frame buildings, every room is on the ground floor. It has been said that these buildings are some of the most modern in the entire south.
It is true we have no stately auditorium and gym, but if the war situation had not arisen, we would have had these too. The furniture and equipment in our rooms are certainly adequate. Any child can move his desk to any desired position. There are shelves for ample storage. Each room has its own individual play equipment plus group material for the outside We have a variety of audio-visual materials such as—radio, phonographs, loud speaker, etc. We have work space for assembling and preparing materials. We have access to our local health unit any time we care to call upon them—a service which is free. There is no clear cut line between learning materials, since both work and play taken together form educational facilities. So let me say as was said long ago—'Behold, I say unto you. Lift up your eyes and look on the fields; for they are white—already to harvest'. Remember that all things work together for GOOD for those who love the Lord."
Mrs. J. H. Alford, president, presided during the business session. The most important matter to come before the house was the decision to purchase a coffee urn for the unit. Miss Martha Turnley's third grade won the room award.

OUR CHILDREN

THE SCHOOL LIBRARY

In schools, books are a great part of every day's activities. They are the source of the pupils' knowledge, inspiration, and possibly, joy. Anything that lessens the appeal of books is a threat to the successful functioning of the school.
Children are entitled to the books available. By available I mean that they are on the publishers' shelves ready for distributions and use. These books should be provided generously so that every child can hold one in his hands, see its contents. There is something about owning and handling a lovely book that goes straight to the heart of a reader, opening his mind and warming it for the reception of knowledge.
A dogeared, scribbled over, dirty textbook is repellent to a pupil, however interested he may be in studying its contents. Such a book should not be offered any pupil. We spend money enough on schools to afford decent textbooks, new for each pupil as he needs them. And it would be a good idea to allow pupils to buy their books at the close of a term at a reduced price so they may have them at hand in years to come.
The library is the home of the best books. On its shelves children should find the best stories, reference books and texts that the market affords. They should be sent there for study periods, armed with assignments and notes for reference reading. The librarian should be notified first so he can be prepared to meet the requirements of the students' study hours.
Each class should use the library on schedule time for a set purpose, but there also should be a time when children may go there to read as they please and find there the best books for their age and reading ability. No school can function fully in the lives of its pupils without a good library.
Knowing how inportant a love for books can be in the education of children and young people every teacher naturally, does all that is possible to instill fondness for reading eagerness for study, in the pupils. No thoughtful teacher would ever use study as a punishment, nor send a child to the library as a means of discipline. That would be unthinkable.
The reading of good books is a great privilege and should always be held before the pupils as such. Let the books be beautiful in their make-up as fine in their contents as wisdom and art can make them. Then put them into the hands of the children, that they may learn the beauty and the glory that is truth and wisdom.

College Gets Gift Of Rare Old Books From U. S. Women

New York — (AP) — A collection of first, as well as other editions, of outstanding literary works by women from early Colonial days to the present, has been presented to Barnard College by one of its graduates, Mrs. Frederick C. Overbury of San Marino, Calif., member of the Barnard class of 1896. Mrs. Overbury also has provided for a future maintenance fund of $15,000 for the collection. Most of the books will remain in her possession during her lifetime.
While the collection, valued at $12,000, now includes some works by men, the emphasis in the future is to be mainly on the contributions of women, and specifically, American women, according to Miss Esther Greene, librarian of Barnard College, who announced the gift.
Included in the collection of books which Barnard will receive are the 1758 edition of the poems of Anne Bradstreet; the Robert Hoe copy of Ann Elizabeth Bleecker's Posthumous Works, and several volumes by Susanna Rowson.

ENDS PLAN TO BECOME MO[illegible]

Former Businessman, Back With Wife, To Return To Private Life

After ten months in a benedictine monastery, Donald D. Foster, 50-year-old former San Francisco businessman, was reunited with his wife, May, here yesterday.
"I am going back to private life," said Foster. He also released a statement which said that certain requirements had to be met if he were to receive a papal dispensation to continue his studies for the priesthood.
When Foster renounced the world last January, he said the dispensation would be granted if Mrs. Foster entered a convent. Mrs. Foster said then she also hoped to take religious orders—"when the time is reached, by prayer."
But last night she said: "I am living a normal everyday life and I want to continue."
Foster told a reporter "nothing has been done by her at all" about entering a convent. Both he and Mrs. Foster declined to say whether she had taken any steps toward settling family affairs, but she said that she had not discussed the matter of becoming a nun with any spiritual adviser.
Married 25 years, the Fosters have a daughter who is a nun, Sister Mary Matthew, a teacher at St. Elizabeth's convent in San Francisco.
Foster admitted his plans are indefinite; he and Mrs. Foster may stay at a Los Angeles hotel for several days, talking things over.
His decision to become a Monk was made after many years of mulling it over, Foster said last January. They sold a hobby shop which had grossed $49,000 in 1949 when he made the decision. Foster previously was a supervising state tax investigator for 16 years.
A spokesman at St. John's Abbey in Collegeville, Minn., where Foster was admitted as a lay brother, said he is "not in any way bound, and can easily come back."
The formal statement, which Foster said was drawn up by the abbey, declared that he had devoted himself to the study of Latin during the ten months, with the intention of preparing himself as a candidate for priesthood—upon receipt of the dispensation from the holy see.

U. S. In Danger Of Losing Iranian Oil Resources

By Robert Hewett

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 25—(AP)—America is in danger of losing the cold war battle to keep Iran and her oil fields from slipping into the Russian orbit.

That's the fear of United States diplomats and other foreign observers here. They are worried about Soviet economic and propaganda gains in recent weeks.

In the same period American prestige has fallen. This is due to what many Americans and Iranians here feel is a fumbling, half-hearted program of U. S. economic and military assistance for Iran.

While world attention has been focused on open Communist warfare in Korea, Indo-China and Tibet, the Soviets have adopted entirely different tactics to win influence with their nervous southern neighbor.

The soft voice of professed Soviet friendship—backed by a $20,000,000 trade treaty—has been substituted for the Kremlin threats and frontier incidents that have made Iranians jittery for the last five years.

The signing of the Russo-Iranian barter trade agreement this month was greeted by a relieved outburst of pro - Soviet sentiment. Iranian newspapers, parliament members and just plain ordinary citizens hailed the Soviet switch to a peace offensive with an uncritical fervor that astonished most foreign observers here.

Westerners remember—although many Iranians seem to have forgotten—similar pledges of friendship by Hitler and Kremlin promises that were scrapped when the Soviets made satellites out of such neighbors as Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria.

"The war of nerves is beginning to pay off for the Russians here," is the way one western-educated Iranian described his countrymen's reaction. "Our people have been frightened—with reason, of course—at Soviet Russia's hostile attitude since the end of the war. Now they are grasping at the sudden Russian friendship move like a drowning man at a straw."

It's only natural for Iran—the modern day name of Persia — to try to "get along" with her colossal northern neighbor. Fifteen million Iranians rightly feel they would be helpless if the Red army started marching to the Indian ocean.

But U. S. diplomats who have watched the recent trend of events are now openly worried about the possibility that the traditional Iranian desire to "get along" with Russia will slip into fatal appeasement.

It's too early to be certain, but there are signs that Prime Minister Ali Razmara's government—which only four months ago was regarded as strongly pro-American—may be headed in the direction of Soviet appeasement. A few straws in the wind:

Radio Tehran has stopped relaying Voice of America programs; Soviet economic influence is on the increase in the northern provinces; anti - American press attacks and parliament speeches are growing in intensity; court action is underway to free leaders of the Tudeh (Communist) party who were jailed last year; there are increasing restrictions of travel of foreigners in the country—a move that hits Americans harder than any other nationality.

The Iranian government denied that the ban on both Voice of America and BBC broadcasts was due to foreign pressure. Local newspapers said the cancellation followed an informal Soviet protest against Voice attacks on Russia. Without mentioning Russia by name, a propaganda department statement said Iran would not tolerate any foreign pressure from whatever source.

DOROTHY DIX

Working Mother

Wife's Duty To Child To Care For It Herself

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife and I have been having a controversy over whether or not she should go to work outside of the home. We have a 7-month old baby whom we both love dearly. We want to make our child's life a happy one, one on which she can look back without feeling that she has been cheated. Here are our arguments: The wife says: I feel as if I am wasting my time doing housework. My husband makes a living for us, but the money that I could earn would give us many luxuries and comforts that we have to do without. Also, I enjoyed my work and felt more up-to-date, more in touch with the news of the world and more pepped up when I worked in an office.

DOROTHY DIX

The husband says: I feel that if we hire someone to care for the baby that she will not look to my wife for the things that all children expect of their mothers. Also, I feel a man's natural desire to support his family and be the head of the house. Yet I feel that if I refuse to let her go and do the work she loves that I would be as selfish as she would be if she would ask me to stay at home and do the housework. Please help us to settle this vexed question.

HUSBAND AND WIFE

ANSWER: As I have remarked many times, being a woman is the most complicated job on earth and every day it gets more and more involved. For a woman's emotional life always clashes with her business life and each one unfits her for the other and makes her dissatisfied with the other.

THE MONEY WILL HELP

More money will ease the husband's burden and perhaps give the baby a better environment in which to live, but business is a jealous mistress and any woman who goes into it must give her first thought, her best energies to her job. Moreover, a husband who has a wife who works outside of the home must often pinchhit for her in it and make allowances for the nerves and exhaustion of a woman who has had a hard day at the office and whose boss has been grumpy.

And nothing on earth can make up to a child for not having been reared by its mother and not having had the divine love and patience that only a mother can give. Money cannot hire anyone who can take a mother's place. And the poorest child who has a mother's hand to guide it, a mother's voice to teach it, a mother's heart to understand it, is better off and has a better chance in the world than the little millionaire who is turned over to the rearing of servants and governesses and tutors.

I am firmly convinced that no woman has a right to have a baby unless she is going to give it her personal attention.

DEAR MISS DIX: A rich girl is very much in love with me and has proposed marriage to me. I like her all right and because of her financial advantage over the other girls I go with I am tempted to accept her offer. However, she thinks I would look after her financial affairs and I object to the work it would require of me. Also she wants to settle down, while I want to travel. Please tell me whether I should marry her or not.

UNDECIDED

ANSWER: I should earnestly advise you to say "No" to the rich girl and firmly decline to accept her hand and fortune. For it doesn't seem to me that you are able to make a fair return for all she gives you. You haven't any love to bestow upon her and you aren't even willing to clip her coupons, which has always seemed to me a light and pleasing occupation. However, not having had the experience in this line of endeavor, I do not speak with authority.

Anyway, for a man to marry for money is a contemptible thing for him to do. It is selling himself to some woman who will have him on the leash and whose bidding he has to do. She makes him sit up and eat out of her hand or roll over and play dead or jump through the hoop, and it takes a man with mighty little spirit and independence of character to be willing to do it. I have never seen the poor husband of a rich wife who looked happy or contented.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been wanting to go to Texas and be a cowboy for years, but my mother won't let me. I am 15. There will never be any happiness for the rest of my life if I can't be a cowboy. What shall I do? TEXAS

ANSWER: My boy, there isn't any more wild, free life of the plains nor picturesque cowboys such as you see in the moving pictures or on television. Being a cowboy now is just about as exciting a life as being a soda jerk.

DOROTHY DIX cannot answer personal mail. If you are contemplating divorce or legal separation, her leaflet D-2 'Divorce," contains points to consider in making such a decision. A CHRISTMAS CAROL

By Charles Dickens

Bob Cratchit asked Scrooge for a great favor—Christmas Day off. "A poor excuse for picking a man's pocket every twenty-fifth of December!" wailed Scrooge. "Oh, very well. But be here all the earlier next morning!"

Overjoyed, Bob ran all the way home to Camden Town as hard as he could pelt.

At last Scrooge went home. He had the shock of his life when the face of his dead partner appeared to him on his door knocker. Jacob Marley, dead these seven years! But even more shocking things were to happen to Ebenezer Scrooge on Christmas Eve!

U. S. In Danger Of Losing Iranian Oil Resources

By Robert Hewett

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 25—(AP)—America is in danger of losing the cold war battle to keep Iran and her oil fields from slipping into the Russian orbit.

That's the fear of United States diplomats and other foreign observers here. They are worried about Soviet economic and propaganda gains in recent weeks.

In the same period American prestige has fallen. This is due to what many Americans and Iranians here feel is a fumbling, half-hearted program of U. S. economic and military assistance for Iran.

While world attention has been focused on open Communist warfare in Korea, Indo-China and Tibet, the Soviets have adopted entirely different tactics to win influence with their nervous southern neighbor.

The soft voice of professed Soviet friendship—backed by a $20,000,000 trade treaty—has been substituted for the Kremlin threats and frontier incidents that have made Iranians jittery for the last five years.

The signing of the Russo-Iranian barter trade agreement this month was greeted by a relieved outburst of pro - Soviet sentiment. Iranian newspapers, parliament members and just plain ordinary citizens hailed the Soviet switch to a peace offensive with an uncritical fervor that astonished most foreign observers here.

Westerners remember—although many Iranians seem to have forgotten—similar pledges of friendship by Hitler and Kremlin promises that were scrapped when the Soviets made satellites out of such neighbors as Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria.

"The war of nerves is beginning to pay off for the Russians here," is the way one western-educated Iranian described his countrymen's reaction. "Our people have been frightened—with reason, of course—at Soviet Russia's hostile attitude since the end of the war. Now they are grasping at the sudden Russian friendship move like a drowning man at a straw."

It's only natural for Iran—the modern day name of Persia — to try to "get along" with her colossal northern neighbor. Fifteen million Iranians rightly feel they would be helpless if the Red army started marching to the Indian ocean.

But U. S. diplomats who have watched the recent trend of events are now openly worried about the possibility that the traditional Iranian desire to "get along" with Russia will slip into fatal appeasement.

It's too early to be certain, but there are signs that Prime Minister Ali Razmara's government—which only four months ago was regarded as strongly pro-American—may be headed in the direction of Soviet appeasement. A few straws in the wind:

Radio Tehran has stopped relaying Voice of America programs; Soviet economic influence is on the increase in the northern provinces; anti - American press attacks and parliament speeches are growing in intensity; court action is underway to free leaders of the Tudeh (Communist) party who were jailed last year; there are increasing restrictions of travel of foreigners in the country—a move that hits Americans harder than any other nationality.

The Iranian government denied that the ban on both Voice of America and BBC broadcasts was due to foreign pressure. Local newspapers said the cancellation followed an informal Soviet protest against Voice attacks on Russia. Without mentioning Russia by name, a propaganda department statement said Iran would not tolerate any foreign pressure from whatever source.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife's Duty To Child To Care For It Herself

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife and I have been having a controversy over whether or not she should go to work outside of the home. We have a 7-month old baby whom we both love dearly. We want to make our child's life a happy one, one on which she can look back without feeling that she has been cheated. Here are our arguments: The wife says: I feel as if I am wasting my time doing housework. My husband makes a living for us, but the money that I could earn would give us many luxuries and comforts that we have to do without. Also, I enjoyed my work and felt more up-to-date, more in touch with the news of the world and more pepped up when I worked in an office.

DOROTHY DIX

The husband says: I feel that if we hire someone to care for the baby that she will not look to my wife for the things that all children expect of their mothers. Also, I feel a man's natural desire to support his family and be the head of the house. Yet I feel that if I refuse to let her go and do the work she loves that I would be as selfish as she would be if she would ask me to stay at home and do the housework. Please help us to settle this vexed question.

HUSBAND AND WIFE

ANSWER: As I have remarked many times, being a woman is the most complicated job on earth and every day it gets more and more involved. For a woman's emotional life always clashes with her business life and each one unfits her for the other and makes her dissatisfied with the other.

THE MONEY WILL HELP

More money will ease the husband's burden and perhaps give the baby a better environment in which to live, but business is a jealous mistress and any woman who goes into it must give her first thought, her best energies to her job. Moreover, a husband who has a wife who works outside of the home must often pinchhit for her in it and make allowances for the nerves and exhaustion of a woman who has had a hard day at the office and whose boss has been grumpy.

And nothing on earth can make up to a child for not having been reared by its mother and not having had the divine love and patience that only a mother can give. Money cannot hire anyone who can take a mother's place. And the poorest child who has a mother's hand to guide it, a mother's voice to teach it, a mother's heart to understand it, is better off and has a better chance in the world than the little millionaire who is turned over to the rearing of servants and governesses and tutors.

I am firmly convinced that no woman has a right to have a baby unless she is going to give it her personal attention.

DEAR MISS DIX: A rich girl is very much in love with me and has proposed marriage to me. I like her all right and because of her financial advantage over the other girls I go with I am tempted to accept her offer. However, she thinks I would look after her financial affairs and I object to the work it would require of me. Also she wants to settle down, while I want to travel. Please tell me whether I should marry her or not.

UNDECIDED

ANSWER: I should earnestly advise you to say "No" to the rich girl and firmly decline to accept her hand and fortune. For it doesn't seem to me that you are able to make a fair return for all she gives you. You haven't any love to bestow upon her and you aren't even willing to clip her coupons, which has always seemed to me a light and pleasing occupation. However, not having had the experience in this line of endeavor, I do not speak with authority.

Anyway, for a man to marry for money is a contemptible thing for him to do. It is selling himself to some woman who will have him on the leash and whose bidding he has to do. She makes him sit up and eat out of her hand or roll over and play dead or jump through the hoop, and it takes a man with mighty little spirit and independence of character to be willing to do it. I have never seen the poor husband of a rich wife who looked happy or contented.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been wanting to go to Texas and be a cowboy for years, but my mother won't let me. I am 15. There will never be any happiness for the rest of my life if I can't be a cowboy. What shall I do?

TEXAS

ANSWER: My boy, there isn't any more wild, free life of the plains nor picturesque cowboys such as you see in the moving pictures or on television. Being a cowboy now is just about as exciting a life as being a soda jerk.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

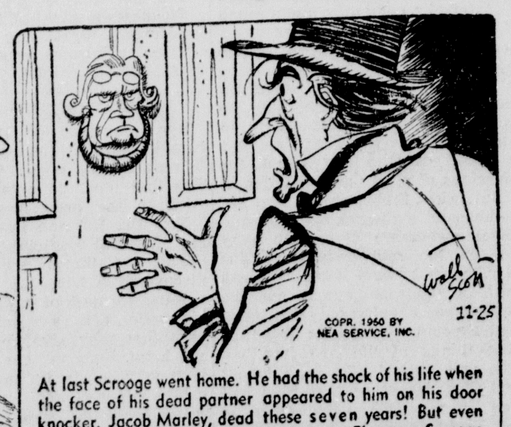

By Charles Dickens

Bob Cratchit asked Scrooge for a great favor—Christmas Day off. "A poor excuse for picking a man's pocket every twenty-fifth of December!" wailed Scrooge. "Oh, very well. But be here all the earlier next morning!"

Overjoyed, Bob ran all the way home to Camden Town as hard as he could pelt.

At last Scrooge went home. He had the shock of his life when the face of his dead partner appeared to him on his door knocker. Jacob Marley, dead these seven years! But even more shocking things were to happen to Ebenezer Scrooge on Christmas Eve!

Colorful 'Rio Grande' Opens An Engagement At Paramount Soon

John Wayne And Maureen O'Hara Starred In 'Boots And Cavalry' Film

It's a sad and forlorn turth, but the glorious "Boots and Saddle" cavalry of yore—the mounted soldiery who raced recklessly across battlefields of the War for Independence and the Civil War to engage the enemy, and drew a bead from plunging horses on the painted warriors of Sitting Bull—is no more. It fell to an enemy more relentless than any it had ever faced, the clanking advent of mechanized warfare.

The largest "cavlary" unit yet remaining in the service is the 1st Cavalry Division, still organized as 'squadrons' and 'troops,' although its hard-fighting men have covered themselves with glory in Korea while slogging on foot or rumbling along in armoured vehicles. But as for the rest, it is now officially titled "Armor." Only a few horses are left under army jurisdiction, most of them for ceremonial purposes.

Perhaps the greatest days of the "yellow-legs" were those spent pacifying the Western plains, when only 1,200 cavalry (augmented by about a thousand infantry) staunchly faced 300,000 Indians at the start of a bitterly fought campaign. General Phil Sheridan of Civil War fame commanded the army of the west, and forged his totally outnumbered contingent into a hard, tightly disciplined striking force.

All the color, danger and romantic adventure associated with the exploits of Sheridan's troopers is faithfully painted in John Ford's "Rio Grande," starring John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara, which arrives Wendesday at the Paramount Theatre. Based on a Saturday Evening Post story by James Warner Bellah, it dramatically relates an amazing and little-known exploit of the cavalry soon after the Civil War. Also starring in the big-budget Republic production are Ben Johnson, Calude Jarman, Jr., Harry Carey, Jr., Chill Wills, J. Carroll Naish, Victor McLaglen and the Sons of the Pioneers song group.

Ferriday, La., Nov. 25—(Special)—Dr. F. L. Jaubert, president of the Louisiana Society for Crippled Children has notified Mrs. E. E. Wallace of Ferriday that she has been elected to membership on the board of directors of the society. The board meets quarterly in February, May, August and November, and a special meeting of the board will be held Sunday, January 21, at the society headquarters, Maison Blanche building in New Orleans.

SAGA OF THE U. S. CALVARY

Jimmie Fidler:

IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Nov. 25.—Do those huddles between Judy Garland and Sid Luft, estranged husband of Lynn Bari, mean they're talking an independent picture deal? . . . Time out for Peggy Ann Garner, ill in New York with case of bursitis. . . . Lilli St. Cyr, the stripper, is feuding with her sister, Dardy Orlando, whom she accuses of stealing some of her best routines. . . . Billy Eckstein, the Negro song-star will screen-debut in the Van Johnson-Gloria de Haven co-starrer, "East of Broadway."

Joan Crawford is mourning for a white mink evening wrap, virtually ruined at the "All About Eve" premiere by ink from an autograph hunter's leaky fountain pen. . . . Forrest Tucker and Marilyn Johnson have scheduled their long-expected alter-trek for next Valentine's Day. . . . Ha! Next fall will see Red Skelton satisfy a burning ambition and the L. A. Rams get some off-the-beaten track publicity; he'll be a team member for one play in one game. . . . Paramount will celebrate Alan Ladd's ten years of stardom on that lot by issuing a special short subject, made up of slips from all his pictures. . . . Romantic (in New York) Myrna Dell and John Howard.

Wotzis about Howard Duff incurring that broken leg, not via a fall down the stairs of his home, but in a battle with two adversaries, waged on a Sunset Boulevard parking lot? . . . Hal Wallis will film the radio serial, "Life With Luigi." . . . Hear Lex ("Tarzan") Barker will have $485 extra to spend for Xmas, thanks to a big money gin runny game.

Preview Nights: Pic of a week Hollywood must have had in mind when it thought up that slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever": UA's "Cyrano de Bergerac" (Jose Ferrer-Mala Powers). A masterpiece that deserves rating as one of the really significant milestones in Hollywood history, and a must-see attraction for every fan. . . . Excellent: MGM's "The Magnificent Yankee" (Louis Calhern-Ann Harding). A magnificent film tribute to a magnificent American, Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. . . . Columbia's "Born Yesterday" (Judy Holliday-Broderick Crawford-William Holden). Miss Holliday of the New York stage stakes a claim oh an Academy Oscar with one of the most rib-tickling performances of recent years. . . . Warner Brothers' "The West Point Story" (James Cagney-Virginia Mayo-Gordon MacRae). An ultra-enjoyable musical that is upper-echelon in every department. . . . Good: Paramount's "Branded" (Alan Ladd-Mona Freeman-Charles Bickford). A bang-up saddle saga, as actionful as it is Technicolorful. . . . Best Performance: A nod to Jose Ferrer in "Cyrano de Bergerac," with well-deserved honorable mentions to Judy Holliday and Louis Calhern.

The suspension of stars who refuse to play assigned roles is becoming too commonplace in Hollywood to excite much comment, but it does seem a bit noteworthy when Robert Mitchum takes a walkout powder at RKO and has his name stricken from the payroll as a result. Mitchum is probably sincere in his contention that the role does not suit him, but it seems to me that he's hardly in the best of positions to balk at any reasonable request made by the bosses of RKO. It's been only a couple of years since he was involved in a headlined scandal that could easily have cost him his career. If those same RKO bosses hadn't believed in him strongly enough to brave public opinion in his behalf, he might have no assignments, today, to rebel against.

Hollywoodites who enjoy a bit of irony in their diet will get it when they see the 20th Century-Fox picture, "Will You Love Me in December." Lamarr Trotti, the author of the screenplay, has written in some very sarcastic comments on the practice of retiring workmen at the age of 65—which happens to be the exact age at which the studios own employees are scheduled for involuntary retirement!

First-hand reports of a statement made by Bette Davis at a recent party leave me somewhat awed. Without a single quibble, she credited "All About Eve," her current screen vehicle, with saving her career; without a single alibi, she stated that had she not been lucky enough to land the top role in that remarkable picture, she would have been "washed up."

Bette's not the first star, by any means, whose career has reached so precarious a condition that it depended upon a single role, but she's one of the first to make so frank an admission. She leaves me as impressed by her honest humility as I am by her acting ability.

I like the philosophy advanced by Stanley Kramer: "The Hollywoodite who flatters himself that he's 'in the groove' is usually merely in a rut."

ITALIAN ACTOR

ALDO FABRIZI

Aldo Enjoys His First In English

By Alburn West

Rome.—Aldo Fabrizi, rolypoly funnyman and character actor of the Italian screen, soon will make his bow to the American movie public as a comedian in his frst English-speaking film.

The 240-pound Aldo, known abroad for his serious roles in 'Open City' and 'To Live in Peace', speaks English in the new movie even though he does not know the language. The secret, of course, is that he memorized his lines phonetically.

Aldo is cast as a cemetary caretaker, a strong part in a movie story of an ex-GI who returns to Italy to get his buried ill-gotten gains on the wartime blackmarket. The film, 'Three Steps North' is produced and directed by Hollywood's W. Lee Wilder. Lloyd Bridges is the former GI. A promising Italian starlet, Lea Padovani, plays opposite him.

The movie also boasts of having Ingrid Bergman and her Italian producer-director husband, Roberto Rossellini, as exstras. The Swedish star, whose romance palyed across the frontpages for months, will be seen strolling with her husband through a cafe in Amalfi, tourist-famed southern Italian seaside village.

The producers of 'Three Steps North' are not making any predictions about the film. But if the fans have as much fun seeing it as the producers claim they had making it, all will be well.

Aldo Fabrizi, they say, was a show all by himself. Memorizing his English lines purely phonetianly cost the fat volatile Italian many hard-working hours. In the heat of the Roman summer, he insisted on studying in his hotel room so he could have the comfort of sitting around naked.

Aldo also found that he could use sumbols for words to help him remember the sounds. For instance if the words 'beautiful girl' appeared in his lines, he sketched an appropriate figure replete with voluptuous charms. Standard equipment on the set was a big blackboard covered with Aldo's drawings.

Wilder hired a seven year old Amalfi boy, Nicolo Maneri, to play a small role. His pay was $100, a new suit, new pair of shoes and all he could eat.

Then there was a 65-year old oldster in Amalfi who was picked for a bit part because of his beard and long, grey hair. After shooting part of the scene one afternoon, he was told to return that night for the remaining shots. He showed up clean-shaven with his gray locks trimmed and greased in movie-idol style.

In one scene, a group of tough-looking characters were hired to jump on Lloyd Bridges and steal his passport. Afterward Bridges discovered his billfold was missing.

ENGLISH AID AIR FORCE

Aucdland, New Zealand —(AP)— Defense Minister Thomas L. MacDonald said in Parliament 200 more former members of the Royal Air Force would be brought to New Zealand. They would serve in technical branches of the Royal New Zealand Air Force, he said.

The minister said it was becoming more difficult to recruit men in England, and some of the next group would be married. Already 448 air force men, mostly fully trained ex-members of the R. A. F., have come from overseas to serve in the R. N. Z. A. F.

LEGION SPONSORS DANCE

Ferriday, La., Nov. 25—(Special)—A dance every Saturday night is being sponsored here in the Veterans' Hall, formerly the Legion Hall, by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. TO REBUILT PALACE

Rangoon —(AP)— Mandalay's citizens will ask Prime Minister Thakin Nu to permission the rebuilding of King Midon's golden palace when the prime minister visits Mandalay this November, a government official said. Midon was the last but one of the Burmese Kings. His 72-year-old palace was destroyed by Japanese bombs in 1942.

'Breaking Point' At Paramount

John Garfield is a rugged and independent fishing boat skipper in southern waters just home from the war with a mortgage on his craft, a plain wife and two little girls. Into this situation comes a beautiful playgirl in the form of Patricia Neal, a shady lawyer (Wallace Ford) with a proposition for easy money, and with them, trouble.

Just how much, forms the basis of the new Warner Bros. drama, "The Breaking Point, from a story by famed novelist Ernest Hemingway.

From the point at which the skipper decides to pick up some of that money, thefilm races along through a series of thrilling episodes until just desserts befall the wrongdoers. Garfields first excursion in illegal traffic comes with the smuggling of eight Chinese into the country. Forced to kill the leader, he finds himself with a crime on his conscience until he meets lovely Pat Neal.

Again and again he runs the gauntlet of the law until some gunmen kill his friend, the first mate, played by Juano Hernandez. He now plots vengeance and a climatic gun battle ensues at sea, one of the most suspenseful filmed, according to advance word.

IN MOVIELAND

Hollywood, Nov. 25.—(AP)—This week Hollywoodians were treated to a thorough history of their town.

The Hollywood Citizen - News, sole daily newspaper in the glamor town, issued a five-section edition called "Hollywood—50 years of progress." It disclosed many little-known facts about a well-known town.

Judge Harlan Palmer, publisher of the paper since 1911, recalled when Hollywood and Vine was the site of a home surrounded by a four-acre orange grove.

Cecil B. DeMille pointed out that Hollywood was the first location of the first commercial air lines with schedued flights for passengers. During the first World War, he helped form the Mercury Aviation Co., which also trained pilots for the army.

Mrs. Daeida Wilcox, who came to California from Topeka, Kan., in 1883, gave the town its name. On a trip east, she met a lady who called her summer home "Hollywood." Mrs. Wilcox liked the name and called her ranch "Hollywood."

Other facts disclosed in the edition:

A corner at Hollywood Blvd. and Highland Ave. was offered for $3,500 in 1904. Recently a million-dollar offer was refused for the same land.

More than 1,800 firms make products with the label "Made in Hollywood". They employ about 50,000 workers.

The first of the Edgar Rice Burroughs' Tarzan stories was made into a movie in 1918.

The Biograph Company opened the first studio in Los Angeles in 1906. The first picture made here, "The Count of Monte Cristo," was filmed the following year by the Selig Company.

The hottest day here in 50 years was Sept. 17, 1913 when the mercury hit 107.8. Coldest day was Jan. 4, 1949, when the town shivered at 28 degrees.

Hollywood was incorporated as a community in 1903 when it boasted 1,050 souls. Later it was absorbed by Los Angeles.

In 1909, an ordinance forbade the keeping of bulls or more than five sheep, cows or goats in one Hollywood premise. Furthermore, no such animals could be kept within 95 feet of any residence.

Colorful 'Rio Grande' Opens An Engagement At Paramount Soon

It's a sad and forlorn turth, but the glorious "Boots and Saddle" cavalry of yore—the mounted soldiery who raced recklessly across battlefields of the War for Independence and the Civil War to engage the enemy, and drew a bead from plunging horses on the painted warriors of Sitting Bull—is no more. It fell to an enemy more relentless than any it had ever faced, the clanking advent of mechanized warfare.

The largest "cavlary" unit yet remaining in the service is the 1st Cavalry Division, still organized as 'squadrons' and 'troops,' although its hard-fighting men have covered themselves with glory in Korea while slogging on foot or rumbling along in armoured vehicles. But as for the rest, it is now officially titled "Armor." Only a few horses are left under army jurisdiction, most of them for ceremonial purposes.

Perhaps the greatest days of the "yellow-legs" were those spent pacifying the Western plains, when only 1,200 cavalry (augmented by about a thousand infantry) staunchly faced 300,000 Indians at the start of a bitterly fought campaign. General Phil Sheridan of Civil War fame commanded the army of the west, and forged his totally outnumbered contingent into a hard, tightly disciplined striking force.

All the color, danger and romantic adventure associated with the exploits of Sheridan's troopers is faithfully painted in John Ford's "Rio Grande," starring John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara, which arrives Wendesday at the Paramount Theatre. Based on a Saturday Evening Post story by James Warner Bellah, it dramatically relates an amazing and little-known exploit of the cavalry soon after the Civil War. Also starring in the big-budget Republic production are Ben Johnson, Calude Jarman, Jr., Harry Carey, Jr., Chill Wills, J. Carroll Naish, Victor McLaglen and the Sons of the Pioneers song group.

DIAL SYSTEM PROMISED

Davis of Ferriday has been notified that the petition recently passed by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, was signed by 89 per cent of the telephone users of Ferriday requesting the dial system. Mayor Davis was informed by Lonie Clark, manager of the district for Southern Bell that the dial system would be installed as soon as the equipment became available and that the residents fo Ferriday could expect the change over in six to nine months.

Ferriday, La., Nov. 25—(Special)—Dr. F. L. Jaubert, president of the Louisiana Society for Crippled Children has notified Mrs. E. E. Wallace of Ferriday that she has been elected to membership on the board of directors of the society. The board meets quarterly in February, May, August and November, and a special meeting of the board will be held Sunday, January 21, at the society headquarters, Maison Blanche building in New Orleans.

SAGA OF THE U. S. CALVARY

Jimmie Fidler: IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Nov. 25.—Do those huddles between Judy Garland and Sid Luft, estranged husband of Lynn Bari, mean they're talking an independent picture deal? . . . Time out for Peggy Ann Garner, ill in New York with case of bursitis. . . . Lilli St. Cyr, the stripper, is feuding with her sister, Dardy Orlando, whom she accuses of stealing some of her best routines. . . . Billy Eckstein, the Negro song-star will screen-debut in the Van Johnson-Gloria de Haven co-starrer, "East of Broadway."

Joan Crawford is mourning for a white mink evening wrap, virtually ruined at the "All About Eve" premiere by ink from an autograph hunter's leaky fountain pen. . . . Forrest Tucker and Marilyn Johnson have scheduled their long-expected alter-trek for next Valentine's Day. . . . Ha! Next fall will see Red Skelton satisfy a burning ambition and the L. A. Rams get some off-the-beaten track publicity; he'll be a team member for one play in one game. . . . Paramount will celebrate Alan Ladd's ten years of stardom on that lot by issuing a special short subject, made up of slips from all his pictures. . . . Romantic (in New York) Myrna Dell and John Howard.

Wotzis about Howard Duff incurring that broken leg, not via a fall down the stairs of his home, but in a battle with two adversaries, waged on a Sunset Boulevard parking lot? . . . Hal Wallis will film the radio serial, "Life With Luigi." . . . Hear Lex ("Tarzan") Barker will have $485 extra to spend for Xmas, thanks to a big money gin runny game.

Preview Nights: Pic of a week Hollywood must have had in mind when it thought up that slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever": UA's "Cyrano de Bergerac" (Jose Ferrer-Mala Powers). A masterpiece that deserves rating as one of the really significant milestones in Hollywood history, and a must-see attraction for every fan. . . . Excellent: MGM's "The Magnificent Yankee" (Louis Calhern-Ann Harding). A magnificent film tribute to a magnificent American, Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. . . . Columbia's "Born Yesterday" (Judy Holliday-Broderick Crawford-William Holden). Miss Holliday of the New York stage stakes a claim oh an Academy Oscar with one of the most rib-tickling performances of recent years. . . . Warner Brothers' "The West Point Story" (James Cagney-Virginia Mayo-Gordon MacRae). An ultra-enjoyable musical that is upper-echelon in every department. . . . Good: Paramount's "Branded" (Alan Ladd-Mona Freeman-Charles Bickford). A bang-up saddle saga, as actionful as it is Technicolorful. . . . Best Performance: A nod to Jose Ferrer in "Cyrano de Bergerac," with well-deserved honorable mentions to Judy Holliday and Louis Calhern.

The suspension of stars who refuse to play assigned roles is becoming too commonplace in Hollywood to excite much comment, but it does seem a bit noteworthy when Robert Mitchum takes a walkout powder at RKO and has his name stricken from the payroll as a result. Mitchum is probably sincere in his contention that the role does not suit him, but it seems to me that he's hardly in the best of positions to balk at any reasonable request made by the bosses of RKO. It's been only a couple of years since he was involved in a headlined scandal that could easily have cost him his career. If those same RKO bosses hadn't believed in him strongly enough to brave public opinion in his behalf, he might have no assignments, today, to rebel against.

Hollywoodites who enjoy a bit of irony in their diet will get it when they see the 20th Century-Fox picture, "Will You Love Me in December." Lamarr Trotti, the author of the screenplay, has written in some very sarcastic comments on the practice of retiring workmen at the age of 65—which happens to be the exact age at which the studios own employees are scheduled for involuntary retirement!

First-hand reports of a statement made by Bette Davis at a recent party leave me somewhat awed. Without a single quibble, she credited "All About Eve," her current screen vehicle, with saving her career; without a single alibi, she stated that had she not been lucky enough to land the top role in that remarkable picture, she would have been "washed up."

Bette's not the first star, by any means, whose career has reached so precarious a condition that it depended upon a single role, but she's one of the first to make so frank an admission. She leaves me as impressed by her honest humility as I am by her acting ability.

I like the philosophy advanced by Stanley Kramer: "The Hollywoodite who flatters himself that he's 'in the groove' is usually merely in a rut."

ITALIAN ACTOR

ALDO FABRIZI

Aldo Enjoys His First In English

By Alburn West

Rome.—Aldo Fabrizi, rolypoly funnyman and character actor of the Italian screen, soon will make his bow to the American movie public as a comedian in his frst English-speaking film.

The 240-pound Aldo, known abroad for his serious roles in 'Open City' and 'To Live in Peace', speaks English in the new movie even though he does not know the language. The secret, of course, is that he memorized his lines phonetically.

Aldo is cast as a cemetary caretaker, a strong part in a movie story of an ex-GI who returns to Italy to get his buried ill-gotten gains on the wartime blackmarket. The film, 'Three Steps North' is produced and directed by Hollywood's W. Lee Wilder. Lloyd Bridges is the former GI. A promising Italian starlet, Lea Padovani, plays opposite him.

The movie also boasts of having Ingrid Bergman and her Italian producer-director husband, Roberto Rossellini, as exstras. The Swedish star, whose romance palyed across the frontpages for months, will be seen strolling with her husband through a cafe in Amalfi, tourist-famed southern Italian seaside village.

The producers of 'Three Steps North' are not making any predictions about the fiim. But if the fans have as much fun seeing it as the producers claim they had making it, all will be well.

Aldo Fabrizi, they say, was a show all by himself. Memorizing his English lines purely phonetianly cost the fat volatile Italian many hard-working hours. In the heat of the Roman summer, he insisted on studying in his hotel room so he could have the comfort of sitting around naked.

Aldo also found that he could use sumbols for words to help him remember the sounds. For instance if the words 'beautiful girl' appeared in his lines, he sketched an appropriate figure replete with voluptuous charms. Standard equipment on the set was a big blackboard covered with Aido's drawings.

Wilder hired a seven year old Amalfi boy, Nicolo Maneri, to play a small role. His pay was $100, a new suit, new pair of shoes and all he could eat.

Then there was a 65-year old oldster in Amalfi who was picked for a bit part because of his beard and long, grey hair. After shooting part of the scene one afternoon, he was told to return that night for the remaining shots. He showed up clean-shaven with his gray locks trimmed and greased in movie-idol style.

In one scene, a group of tough-looking characters were hired to jump on Lloyd Bridges and steal his passport. Afterward Bridges discovered his billfold was missing.

ENGLISH AID AIR FORCE

Aucdland, New Zealand —(AP)— Defense Minister Thomas L. MacDonald said in Parliament 200 more former members of the Royal Air Force would be brought to New Zealand. They would serve in technical branches of the Royal New Zealand Air Force, he said.

The minister said it was becoming more difficult to recruit men in England, and some of the next group would be married. Already 448 air force men, mostly fully trained ex-members of the R. A. F., have come from overseas to serve in the R. N. Z. A. F.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Quick Outs Aren't Always Best

Written for NEA Service

When your hand is set up for a quick out it is pretty good policy to meld right away and play for that quick out. If you can succeed in going out before the opponents meld at all you will gain from 800 to 1200 points depending on how many red threes appear.

However, there are occasions when it will pay to play for a big hand. For instance, here is a real triumph for Hold-up Harry.

Each side had 3500 points. Harry was the first player. The dealer turned up a joker and covered it with a king. Harry picked up the following magnificent hand. Joker-joker-king-king-king-7-6-6-5-5 2.

If he wanted to play for our he could take the discard pile and meld joker-joker - king-king-king-king. He could discard the seven and leave himself with two wild cards and two pairs. Assuming his partner could complete the canasta in kings Harry would be out on his second play.

This plan did not appeal to Harry and I don't blame him. He held two jokers and one was already in the discard pile. Of course someone else might have the count anyway but there was a good chance that his opponents would not have 120 or anything like it. Therefore, Harry drew from the stock, and promptly discarded one of his three kings. Incidentally, his draw happened to be a second seven, so he held three low pairs.

Harry's right hand opponent discarded a king at his first play. Without batting an eye Harry drew from the stock. He had started for a big hand and was not going to take the discard pile until it had really grown. Furthermore he hoped that enough kings would get into the pile so that when he did take it he would have a natural canasta in kings.

I am not so sure that I approve of this second play. However it worked beyond his fondest hopes, although afterwards Harry admitted that he became distinctly nervous before he finally got the discard pile.

It seems that the player to Harry's' right held a particularly bad hand but it did include a black three and four fours. Those cards were his next five discards and of course Harry could not touch them.

In the meanwhile the last four kings had appeared. Three were thrown by Harry's partner and left hand opponent; the last one was drawn by Harry himself. This did give him three absolutely safe discards and he took advantage of them.

Finally virtue or obstinacy, whichever it may be, triumphed. A five was discarded to Harry and this time there was no more delay. He grabbed the discard pile and when the smoke finally cleared away Harry had won a game.

Woman Becomes A Gemologist

AP Newsfeatures

Philadelphia — Tall, blue-eyed Elaine Cooper entered her father's jewelry business 14 years ago as a shy 19-year-old entrusted with such simple tasks as wrapping packages and running errands.

Today Miss Cooper is not only head of the business, but also a certified gemologist—a title held by less than 10 other women in the world.

To attain her certification from the American Gem Society of the United States and Canada,, Miss Cooper spent six years in the study of precious gems and metals and the related subjects of mineralogy, geology, physics, optics and chemistry.

The society was founded in 1934 by a group of leaders in the jewelry profession whose goal was to establish a protective code of ethics and a system of examining and classifying precious stones.

It is a non-profit organization, numbering some 1,400 jewelers, scholars and scientists.

Miss Cooper's studies consisted of correspondence course at night after business hours and finally classes in New York where hundreds of gems were examined and identified.

Every stone, Miss Cooper said, has its own individuality of color, brilliance and durability, while the three cardinal virtues of a gem stone are beauty, durability and rarity.

Miss Cooper and her brother, Theodore are grandchildren of F. R. Cooper, goldsmith, who opened a shop in 1883 in Colchester, England.

Odd Things You Hear With A Hearing Aid

BY DAVID G. BAREUTHER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The smaller they come the quicker they notice the gadget in your ear and the harder they stare.

Its too bad sometimes—for the youngster, that is.

I know from experience. Not that Im a youngster. Not by 50 years. But by having worn "that thing in my left ear for some 15 years, I've unintentionally causeed many a kid to get-rough tretment from his mother.

I'll be waiting for an elevator. The door will open and a little fellow, about to get out, wil stop short. His blue yes open as wide as Eddie Cantor's ever did. His jaw drops in frank amazement. His mother, behind him, gives a push.

He stumbles past me without taking his eyes off "that thing." Staggering backward and still looking, he trips and sits down. Yanking him to his feet, his mother gives him a smart cuff on the stern.

A Sure Danger Sign

On a bus or in a restaurant it is common for a little one to start whispering urgently to a parent, while staring bug-eyed at me. I know what is being whispered without using any lip-reading. And I hate to see it start, because I know the parental rough stuff that is to follow.

One time while I was dusting my jalopy at the curb, two prekindergartners spied me. They dropped their toys and went into a huddle. Soon one apparently delegated as spokesman, came forward and asked:

"Are you a doctor?'

When I told him I was not—that the doctor's office was across the street—he challenged me:

"Well, then, what are you wearing that thing in your ear for?"

I patiently explained that I was deaf and that this contrivance was like a little telephone.

"Does it go?" he asked.

And they don't have to be old enough to talk to notice a hearing aid. One tiny girl merely put a finger in her ear, tipped her head to one side, squinted and gave me a quizzical grimace. I nodded my head affirmatively and she smiled satisfied.

Oldsters Curious, Too

The curiosity seems to carry over into second childhood, too. A doddering old gent, offering profuse apologies, asked me if I were deaf in only one ear. After I told him no, both ears, he wanted to know why I didn't wear one in both ears!

A nice thing about it is the way pretty girls notice it. Before I wore one of these instruments, they never gave me a second look. When I'd pass a pretty girl on the street I did all the looking. Now they look at me. They look, then look away from modest habit, and then look right back agin to make sure of what they saw.

The thing almost got me pinched though. Because of the parking problem, taxicabs were permitted to stand in front of fireplugs. The theory was that it was safe as long as the driver was at the wheel. So I thought I'd try it—very foolishly, of course, because I was waiting for my wife, who promised as usual that she would be "right out."

I fell asleep waiting, and was awakened by a cop who walked up from the traffic side.

"What's the matter, Buddy?" he asked. "Been drinking?"

Mumbling "no," I started to get out of the car ro prove it and explain.

"Thats all right, that's all right Stay where you are," he said. "I just wanted to find out if that thing in your ear worked."

He didn't see the fire plug on the other side of the car.

Some Work, Some Don't

One of the uses of an ear phone (some people want us to call them audicales) is to hear with. If you get one to fit your deficiency property, it works wonderfully. Otherwise it can be a screeching device of the devil.

Before I ever wore one, no one would speak up. Now when some people see it, they start hollering even though I can hear whispers.

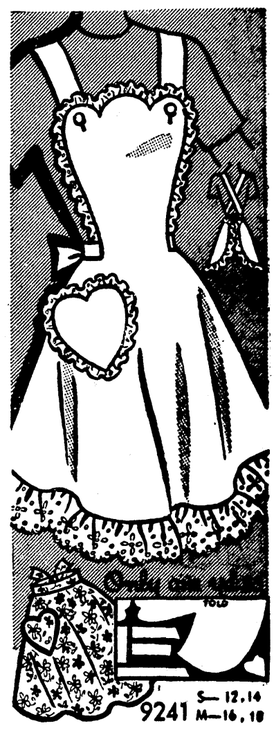

I was hard of hearing for so many years that I had forgotten what music sounded like. First the violins faded from an orchestra and then, as the years rolled by, the entire melody vanished. The first hearing aids I wore fitted so poorly that music was only another noise to turn off. I finally got a new device that was perfect for my case.

It was Christmas time and my wife wanted me to take her to church. We went to a carol service on Christmas eve. I hadn't heard those songs since I was a kid, and frankly I cried like a kid.

The Sound and The Fury

But it had been fun wearing that first wierd distortion device, too. I thought a horse was clomping along behind me on the sidewalk. I turned around and it was young woman. I hadn't heard a womans heels for so long.

World Butterflies Net Profit For Collector

By Gaile Dugas
(NEA Staff Writer)

New York — (NEA) —The thousands of butterflies hovering in captured, iridescent color in the dim interior of The Butterfly Store are a tribute to Margaret Scherbaum's way with a wing.

These butterflies, infinitely fragile, are perfectly held in lampshades, cuff links, rings, bracelets, ashtrays and paperweights. Her New York shop is the only one of its kind in the country and it has some 10,000 butterflies valued at more than $30,000.

To the person offended by the notion of transforming a shimmering butterfly into a paperweight, Miss Scherbaum says simply:

"Any storm kills more butterflies in one day than I could kill in a lifetime."

It's a temptation, of course, to refer to Miss Scherbaum as Madam Butterfly; she's married, though her husband isn't interested in butterflies. And if he were, she feels that it's a mistake for a husband and wife to be in business together.

Margaret Scherbaum started in the butterfly business 33 years ago, when she came to New York from Vienna. She was looking for a job when she saw a "Girl Wanted" sign in a store window, and thus became assistant to the owner of The Butterfly Store, the late Oscar Fulda. Eventually, she became a partner, and for many years alternated with Fulda in going on butterfly-hunting expeditions all over the world.

Although Fulda knew 50,000 butterflies by sight, Miss Scherbaum gave the business new life by putting them into jewelry, lampshades and other keepsakes. She makes these things herself, using whole butterflies or patiently "painting" with the solid iridescent sections of the wing. Her customers are all over the world.

The butterflies, too, come from all over the world. Miss Scherbaum has regular customers who depend upon her for interesting finds from Asia, South America, Africa, and Madagascar. For these, they pay from 35 cents to $100 apiece. The weather, as well as rarity of the butterfly, has a great deal to do with determining the price. If a tornado kills off masses of butterflies in a certain corner of the world, the price rises sharply.

FORM FOR PENICILLIN

Los Angeles.—(AP)—A new form in which penicillin can be taken in the normal breathing process has been developed at the University of California.

The penicillin is combined chemically with procaine. The procaine slows the absorption rate and allows a longer period of action for the penicillin, the researchers say. They also claim that the new product has fewer side reactions.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Quick Outs Aren't Always Best

Written for NEA Service

When your hand is set up for a quick out it is pretty good policy to meld right away and play for that quick out. If you can succeed in going out before the opponents meld at all you will gain from 800 to 1200 points depending on how many red threes appear.

However, there are occasions when it will pay to play for a big hand. For instance, here is a real triumph for Hold-up Harry.

Each side had 3500 points. Harry was the first player. The dealer turned up a joker and covered it with a king. Harry picked up the following magnificent hand. Joker-joker-king-king-king-7-6-6-5-5 2.

If he wanted to play for our he could take the discard pile and meld joker-joker - king-king-king-king. He could discard the seven and leave himself with two wild cards and two pairs. Assuming his partner could complete the canasta in kings Harry would be out on his second play.

This plan did not appeal to Harry and I don't blame him. He held two jokers and one was already in the discard pile. Of course someone else might have the count anyway but there was a good chance that his opponents would not have 120 or anything like it. Therefore, Harry drew from the stock, and promptly discarded one of his three kings. Incidentally, his draw happened to be a second seven, so he held three low pairs.

Harry's right hand opponent discarded a king at his first play. Without batting an eye Harry drew from the stock. He had started for a big hand and was not going to take the discard pile until it had really grown. Furthermore he hoped that enough kings would get into the pile so that when he did take it he would have a natural canasta in kings.

I am not so sure that I approve of this second play. However it worked beyond his fondest hopes, although afterwards Harry admitted that he became distinctly nervous before he finally got the discard pile.

THERE'S STILL A SPARK OF LIFE, BUT B.O. HAS BEEN IN A COMA FOR 12 DAYS.

THIS IS OUR ONLY HOPE TO BREAK THE COMA.

WE'VE TOLD HER IT'S A SHOW FOR KIDS IN ONE OF THE WARDS.

IF HIS DAUGHTER'S PLAYING DOESN'T BRING HIM BACK TO CONSCIOUSNESS, NOTHING WILL.

PUT HIM ON THE CART, MEN.

NOW YOU STAY RIGHT HERE, HONEY, TILL THE CHILDREN ARE IN PLACE.

OH, MR. TRACY, IT HAS TO WORK— IT HAS TO!

SCREENS ARE PUT IN POSITION SO THAT SPARKLE CANNOT OBSERVE HER DAD BEING WHEELED INTO THE BACK OF THE ROOM.

EVERYTHING'S READY. TESS IS INTRODUCING SPARKLE.

GOSH, ARNOLD! YOU DON'T HAVE TO STAND FOR THIS... WALK OUT ON THE OLD WOMAN AND DON'T COME BACK UNTIL SHE SAYS SHE'S SORRY!

I CALLED THE AIRPORT, AND THERE'S ONE SEAT ON THE 7:20 PLANE. I TOLD 'EM TO HOLD IT IN YOUR NAME!

YOU SLIP OUT AS SOON AS IT'S DARK... WE'LL MEET YOU AT THE GATE AND DRIVE YOU OUT TO THE AIRPORT.

WHERE DOES THE 7:20 PLANE GO?

WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES THAT MAKE?

BUT SHUCKS, SUSIE! WE'RE JUST GOING TO DRIVE AN OLD FRIEND OUT TO THE AIRPORT. WE'LL BE BACK IN AN HOUR!

IF YOU'RE GOING, MAC, I THINK I'LL GO ALONG, TOO!

SWELL! I HAVEN'T BEEN OUT OF THE HOUSE ALL DAY... I'LL GO WITH YOU JUST FOR THE RIDE!

BUT, SLUG, YOU CAN'T GO AWAY JUST WHEN THE TWINS ARE GETTING SO INTERESTED IN THE PIANO.

THAT'S THE WAY YOU LOOKED THE TIME YOU CAUGHT YOUR TAIL IN THE SCREEN DOOR!

YEH, BUT I RAISED THE DICKENS AND GOT LOOSE!

BUT, GEE WHITH, MYRTLE, I'M NOT GOING TO THE AIRPORT!

I'LL SAY YOU'RE NOT!

I STILL SAY US BACHELORS ARE LUCKY!

KEEP ON MAKING EYES AT LILLIAN AND YOU'LL END UP JUST LIKE ARNOLD!

DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH WHILE I'M EATING.

GEE, MRS. SMALTZ! AREN'T YOU GOING TO STOP ARNOLD ?

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

SICK WITH TERROR, BLAKE FIRED AT THE NEAREST BEAST- A HUGE YELLOW APE.

IN THE CONFUSION, LUSHA CUT TARZAN'S BONDS AND HANDED HIM THE KNIFE. SUDDENLY SHE GASPED--"MY FATHER!"

The PHANTOM

By LEE FALK and WILSON McCOY

A MONTH AGO I WAS A TRAMP. TODAY I'M THE RICHEST MAN IN THE JUNGLE, THANKS TO THIS GOOD LUCK RING!

TIMES HAVE CHANGED FOR FATSY SINCE HE FOUND THE PHANTOM'S RING--

THIS MAN DEMANDS MORE GOLD AND JEWELS EVERY DAY--FROM ALL OUR TRIBES! WHEN WILL HE STOP?

IF HE DOES NOT STOP WE'LL DRIVE HIM FROM THE JUNGLE!

FATSY'S GREED BEGINS TO ANGER THE NATIVE CHIEFS--

YOU HAVE COMPLAINTS AGAINST ME? WHAT?

ER--NOTHING, FRIEND OF THE PHANTOM.

BUT WHEN THEY SEE THE FABULOUS PHANTOM RING, THEY LOSE THEIR COURAGE.

HOW'D YOU EXPECT ME TO GIVE YOU SALT AND CLOTH IF YOU HAVE NO GOLD?

MY GOLD IS GONE, GIVEN TO THE PHANTOM'S FRIEND, WEARER OF THE RING. SEE, HERE IS THE MARK OF THE RING.

TRADER JOE

SO THAT'S THE "WEARER OF THE RING" WHO'S BEEN BLEEDIN' THE TRIBES! FATSY! WHY, HE'S BEEN KICKED OUTA EVERY BAR ON THE COAST!

HI, FATSY. REMEMBER ME, TRADER JOE? LOOKS LIKE YOU HIT IT RICH.

--I'LL BE THE RICHEST MAN IN THIS COUNTRY!

SURE GLAD TO HEAR IT.

IT'S THE RING! IF I HAD IT I'D BE THE RICHEST. WHAT'S TO KEEP ME FROM TAKIN' IT AWAY FROM HIM?

FRANKLY, I SHOULD PINK-SLIP YOU FOR YOUR STUPIDITY TODAY! YOU WERE AS TENSE AS A BANJO STRING!

ER—LT PINFEATHERS, I HEAR THAT STUDENTS CAN SORTA CONFIDE IN THEIR INSTRUCTORS—

—BECAUSE OF TH' COMMON BOND THAT COMES FROM INSTRUCTORS HAVING TO RISK THEIR NECKS WITH DUMB STUDENTS LIKE ME!

* FAILING GRADE FOR THE DAY.

—I KNOW I WAS A KNUCKLEHEAD TODAY, BUT, SIR, I'M KINDA NERVOUS AND MENTALLY UPSET!

—I FEEL SURE I'LL GET OVER IT— IF YOU'LL JUST GIVE ME A LITTLE TIME, SIR!

—THE SEVENTH WEEK IS ABOUT THE TIME MOST 4TH CLASS CADETS MEET CUTE LI'L DE-ICERS WHOM THEY THINK THEY MUST DATE, OR END IT ALL!
